GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held here Wednesday, September 14. The winners of the society's prizes were as follows: Best three melons, S. J. Trepass; best six peaches, J. Duthie; best six apples, G. Wilson; cultural certificate to F. Johnston for onions, splendid specimens of enormous size; honorable mention to G. Barton for pears, and to F. Petroccia for celery. The prizes for the next meeting will be for twelve gardenias, twelve peony-flowered dahlias and best head of cabbage.

A lecture on "Gardens of Italy" was given at the opera house in the afternoon to the members and friends of the society by J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Farquhar for giving us such a treat.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

No. 1. Half of the clamp for holding a single pipe hook. Two of them are used at top and bottom of hook plate for more than one hook.

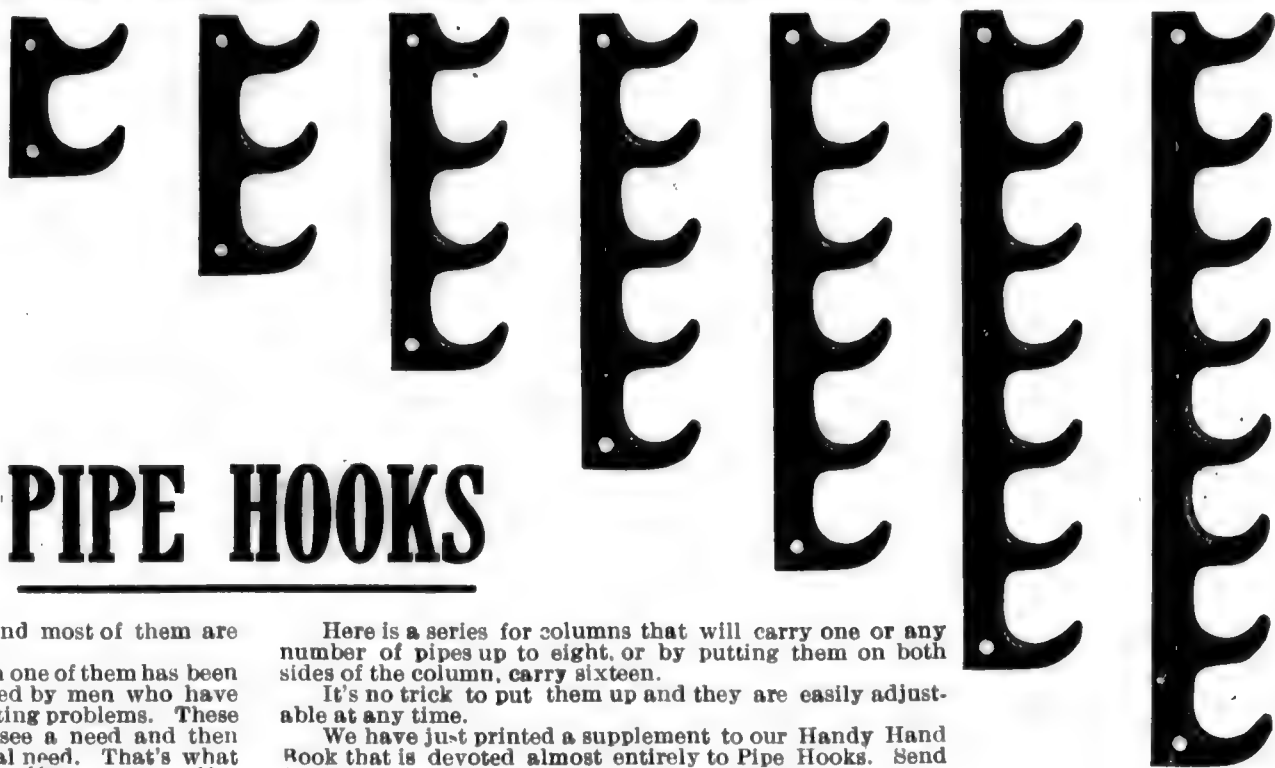

No. 2. In combination with No. 1 forms the single hook.

No. 3. By bolting No. 2 together in this fashion, you have a "double sider."

Hooks are one of our long suits and most of them are trumps.

They are not just hooks, but each one of them has been carefully and understandingly designed by men who have been up against the stiffest kind of heating problems. These are the men in the business who first see a need and then design a special thing to fit that special need. That's what we mean when we say our hooks are not "just hooks."

PIPE HOOKS

Here is a series for columns that will carry one or any number of pipes up to eight, or by putting them on both sides of the column, carry sixteen.

It's no trick to put them up and they are easily adjustable at any time.

We have just printed a supplement to our Handy Hand Book that is devoted almost entirely to Pipe Hooks. Send for it—it's sure to save you money—and troubles.

The Judges

decided that there was ONE florists' supply house in America. Our exhibit was worthy of receiving the ONLY award of

at the Convention of the S. A. F. O. H., Rochester, N. Y. It is needless to say to wide-awake florists that this highly coveted award was made to

M. RICE & CO.

THE leading florists' supply house in America.

We want to bring this fact home to you when you read these lines; we want you to think what it means--these years of untiring work in studying your needs. The judges of your Society believe that we have accomplished that which has been accomplished by no one else; that our exhibit showed an intelligent understanding of the needs of the florist of to-day; that we are working with you and with your best customers for the advancement of floral art.

We hope you will feel that it is to your interest to come to us and tell us of the difficulties you meet in your work and let us help you with them.

Our Sprinkleproof Chiffon

retains its lead as the PRACTICAL CHIFFON. As originators of this most useful fabric we merit our title of CREATORS OF FLORISTS' TEXTILES. Beware of imitations of Sprinkleproof Chiffon (trade mark).

THE PROPER PIN is an important factor in corsage work. Originally a small accommodation line for the convenience of our customers, the good values and original styles have steadily increased the business until this small beginning has developed into a complete department. We will be pleased, upon request, to send a small assortment upon approval.

DUTCH BULBS

THE FORCING OF BULBS.

[A paper by Alex. R. Wilkie, of Outremont, Montreal, Can., read at a meeting of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, March 7, 1910.]

To force bulbs successfully, we want the right compost or soil. Three parts good loam to one part dried cow manure, and a dash of sharp sand to keep the whole open, is a good mixture. Of course, old carnation soil or mum soil, with a little fresh loam mixed, will answer the purpose if difficulty is experienced in getting the first mentioned compost.

Next we must have good bulbs. Good bulbs are half the battle. Do not get cheap varieties and think you are making a bargain. We cannot expect to get first-class flowers from third-sized bulbs. There is not a great difference between first and second sizes; you can get nearly as good blooms from seconds as you can from firsts, but avoid No. 3, if you wish to be successful and have a creditable show for your money.

I shall speak first of daffodils, narcissi, tulips and hyacinths. They all come along together, as it were, and the same sort of treatment will answer. We generally get our bulbs in from Holland during October and the early part of November.

Treatment on Arrival.

Where some people make a mistake right at the start is by leaving the bulbs lying around for days, and perhaps weeks, before getting them potted or boxed. They ought to be handled as soon as they arrive. Then, after being potted or placed in flats, they should be given as much water as the soil will take, and kept moist until stored away in coldframes or bulb sheds. My purpose in watering thoroughly as soon as potted is to plump up the bulbs and put them in a good growing condition.

Now the question follows, what is the best method of storing bulbs for forcing? Different growers have different opinions about this, but I should advocate the coldframes, or, better still, digging trenches and covering with wood and litter, to keep them dark until the root growth has advanced far enough to be able to supply food to perfect the blooms. It takes about four weeks to root narcissi, tulips and daffodils, and a little longer to root hyacinths.

A Succession of Hyacinths.

French grown Roman hyacinths can be had in bloom during November, until Christmas, with the Dutch Roman miniatures, in different colors, to follow. Some good doers are: L'Innocence and La Grandesse, white; Gigantea and Gertrude, pink; Charles Dickens, Grand Maitre and Czar Peter, blue. The double varieties come in well afterward, such as Prince of Orange, Princess Alexandra and Frederick the Great, red; La Grandesse, Princess Alice and Miss Nightingale, white; Lord Wellington and Rembrandt, blue; Bouquet d'Orange, Goethe and Ophir d'Or, yellow.

Paper White narcissi are the earliest of their class and can be had nicely in flower by the first week in December. They do not like too strong a heat until the flower spikes are showing. After that they should have a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees until showing color; then the temperature should be reduced to 50 or 55 degrees, or they will get leggy and will not have much substance. Paper White is about the only narcissus that is forced in quantity before New Year's.

Tulips and Daffodils.

In tulips, Proserpine (pink), Yellow Prince and Chrysolora can be got in for Christmas fairly well. Then follow King of the Yellows, White Swan, White Hawk, Rembrandt (scarlet), Belle Alliance, La Reine (pink), Murillo (double pink), Ophir d'Or, Salvator, etc.

Daffodils for succession from January 1 are: Trumpet Major, Von Sion, Golden Spur, Bicolor Victoria, Empress, Horsfieldii and Emperor. I may mention that Narcissus poeticus ornatus does not force successfully before the third week in January.

All the aforesaid can be forced inside three weeks from the time of putting Easter Lilies.

A few words now about liliiums. Attempts have been made over and over again to keep liliium bulbs in cold storage until November and then force right from the start. Some growers seem to think that by so doing they prevent the disease from having time to develop, but neither do the plants have time to develop. Liliium bulbs, to get the best results, must be permitted to take their own time for the first six weeks, more or less. To allow for this, the bulbs must be potted up as soon as received in September, and put into a coldframe until well rooted. Then you can weed out all showing signs of disease when housing.

This plan gives you the chance to put in a cold storage batch of bulbs to make up your number, if the early potted lot are not up to the standard. The early batch can be brought in for Easter, say the first week in April, in a temperature of 50 degrees, while the cold storage lot require a temperature never under 60 degrees, and up to 90 degrees, to get them out for the same time. Now, it stands to reason that the bulbs treated naturally and brought along gently will be the best at the finish, while those forced in a high temperature will be weak them in the heat. All bulbs should be finished in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, as they thus have more substance and healthier foliage. Pink colored tulips gain a richer color by being shaded from the light after first showing color.

and leggy, and the blooms will be small and of questionable quality.

The Black-stemmed Variety.

The black-stemmed bulbs are coming into favor rapidly, owing, no doubt, to the shorter season of growth and their being more easily forced. Black-stemmed bulbs, potted into 6-inch pots in November, can be had in bloom by the first week in April. It takes four weeks from the time they first show buds to get them to full bloom.

Iris bulbs can be forced along in a temperature of 60 degrees after they are well rooted. This refers principally to Spanish iris.

The gladiolus season can also be lengthened by early forcing. Such varieties as Blushing Bride, Colvillei alba, etc., can be had in April and May by growing in a temperature of 45 to 60 degrees.

Other bulbs which can be forced to advantage are: Eucharis Amazonica, Agapanthus umbellatus, amaryllis, Freesia refracta alba, Freesia Purity, ixias, lachenalias, Scilla Siberica, nerines, etc.

VARIOUS BULBS.

Please give full directions for forcing Gladiolus America, Augusta, Peach Blossom, The Bride, Spanish iris and ixias. Include the temperature at different stages for best blooms. What fertilizer should be used and when? Little stable manure can be had here. Can all be grown in the same house? We have overhead flows and the returns on the side of solid beds. Would boxes be better? How early could each be planted and when would they commence to bloom? Can Peach Blossom bulbs be held and planted in early spring? They are not reliably hardy here in Virginia.

C. W. B.

The small bulbed gladioli, including such popular varieties as Peach Blossom, Colvillei The Bride, Blushing Bride, Crimson Queen, Ackermann, Mathilde, Muna and others, are procurable early in September. While they can be grown in benches, we have always found they do much better in flats containing four inches of soil. These can be placed on a cellar floor or in a coldframe. They need no covering over the soil, but the sun's rays should be excluded until the growths start. A flat 4x12x24 inches will hold fifty to sixty bulbs of any of the varieties named. A suitable compost consists of two-thirds well decayed sod and one-third old, well rotted barnyard manure; cow manure is the best; next to this, horse and sheep. If you cannot secure any good stable manure, perhaps you can secure bags of pulverized sheep or shredded cattle manure, using it in the proportion of one to ten or twelve. Chemical fertilizers should not be used. I have seen many ill results from experimenting with them.

The large bulbed gladioli, such as America, Shakespeare, May, Augusta and others, are not to be had, as a rule, before the end of November. If grown in boxes, these require to be six to eight inches deep. They do well in benches or solid beds. From a crop planted in December, you could in your state start to cut about the middle of March. Successive plantings can be made, to prolong the season. A temperature of 50 degrees at night is as high as these gladioli care for. Certainly it should not go beyond 54 degrees in midwinter. A carnation temperature is about right, and soil used for mums, roses, violets or carnations will answer well for gladioli.

The small bulbed gladioli should be grown in a coldframe until the end of October and kept in a pit or cold greenhouse until the first week in January, by which time they will have the flats well filled with roots and growth several inches long. A night temperature of 50 degrees will suit them; 60 degrees is too high and will make them weak and spindling, and the flowers will lack substance. Weak liquid manure can be applied once a week after the flats are placed in heat.

Spanish iris requires much the same treatment as the smaller bulbed gladioli and the same number of bulbs should go in a flat. Four to five inches of soil is needed. Grow cool and as light as possible at all stages of growth. Anything in the nature of forcing will spoil the plants. Avoid using strong liquid manure, as it will cause the ends of the leaves to turn brown. Heavy fumigation with tobacco stems will also similarly affect them. These irises want a copious water supply. They can be grown in beds or benches in a cool house, but it is an advantage to have them in flats, as then they can be moved around at will. They are sometimes dotted among carnations and violets as a supplementary crop. The violet temperature is the most to their liking. Peach Blossom and other gladioli can be kept cool and dry, and planted outdoors as soon as frost has left the ground.

The charming little bulbs of ixias are not so much grown as their merits deserve. They are commonly classed as fussy subjects, many growers failing with them entirely. I have grown them well planted among violets. In flats they have not been a success, the least excess of moisture causing the flowering shoots to damp off just above the bulbs. In pots or pans, well drained, six to seven inches in diameter, they succeed well. A suitable compost consists of two-thirds loam and the other third equal parts of leaf-mold and old hot-bed manure, to which is added sufficient sharp sand to keep it porous. If the soil is moderately damp, no water need be given until growth starts; then avoid giving too much. Keep the plants in a coldframe as late as possible. Always underwater rather than overwater them. Place in a cool, light house in December, where the temperature will be 45 to 50 degrees at night. In such a place they will grow well. Afford a little liquid manure when the spikes show. The best commercial ixias are craterioides major and rosea plena Wonder. Ixias would winter outdoors with you on well drained soil. Plant out just before the ground freezes and mulch so as to exclude frost. Remove the covering early in April and protect from late spring frosts.

PAPER WHITES FOR CHRISTMAS.

When is the proper time to plant Paper Whites in a house kept at 50 degrees at night and 60 degrees in the daytime, to have them for Christmas?

J. C. E.

Your best plan will be to plant the bulbs now, in flats containing four inches of soil, and stand them in a coldframe or on a cellar floor. The bulbs lose much of their strength if kept out of the soil too long. In a temperature averaging 50 degrees at night and 60 degrees in the daytime, allow five weeks after housing for the plants to flower. Growing in flats will give you better results than planting directly in the house. If you prefer the latter plan, you need not put in the bulbs until the beginning of October.

CHARLES W. SCHMIDT.

Charles W. Schmidt, president-elect of the Springfield Florists' Club, was born December 16, 1868, the son of Adam Schmidt, the well known pioneer druggist at Springfield, O. He attended the public schools, graduating from the high school in 1884, following which he spent a year in Nelson's Business College. Engaging as bookkeeper for the district superintendent for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., sixteen years were spent, when Mr. Schmidt began to cast about for a business in which to invest his savings. Nothing appeared more inviting than the mail order plant trade. A partnership was formed with Robert Botley, a practical florist of thorough English training, and a strong team of German and British blood was thus yoked together to pull what seems to be their life business.

The start was made in a small way at the nearby village of Husted in the fall of 1891, under the firm name of Schmidt & Botley.

In 1893 six acres of land were secured on what was then the edge of Springfield, and three houses erected. Additions were made rapidly until the present total of twenty-eight was reached, aggregating about 65,000 square feet of glass. The first five of these houses are being rebuilt this fall. To better facilitate the business of the growing concern, the Schmidt & Botley Co. was incorporated in 1908, with Adam Schmidt president, Robert Botley vice-president and superintendent, and Charles W. Schmidt secretary and treasurer.

A recent purchase of thirty-two acres of land about two miles out of the city was made, which will eventually be planted with hardy shrubs; an adjoining tract of nine acres was acquired later. On the larger tract a bungalow has been built, at which Mr. Schmidt and family spend their summers. In 1894, Mr. Schmidt married Alice Barnes,

WINTERICH'S BRIGHT IDEA.

Did you ever get a whole summer's advertising out of a few hundred 2-inch geraniums? If you didn't, this is how it may be done. Christ Winterich, Defiance, O., originated the process, but it is not covered either by patent or copyright, nor would he patent it if he could. Everybody is welcome.

An annual event at Defiance is the fall festival; pretty nearly every town has something similar, a county fair or some other event at about this date. Knowing that the fall festival would take place in September, last spring Mr. Winterich advertised in his local paper that on a certain afternoon he would give to each school child five 2-inch geraniums, these to be grown on for exhibition at the festival in September, when prizes would be awarded to those showing the best plants.

The accompanying illustration shows a part of those who came for the plants in the spring. The picture is so much reduced it may not be apparent, but each child in the group has a package of geraniums in his hand. You can imagine the talk in that town when so many youngsters lined up at the wire to get their start in the race.

When the fall festival came around the school children's exhibitions were one of the star features. Quite naturally it was the center of interest for the children, and consequently for their parents. Those whose geraniums had enjoyed only a fleeting existence were on hand to see what the more successful ones had accomplished, and it is just within the possibilities that some of the plants Mr. Winterich sold in 3-inch and 4-inch pots during summer were bought to take the place of one or more of those given away that had not withstood amateur cultural methods.

Anyway, it was a big ad for Mr. Winterich; a big ad in the spring, a good ad all summer long, and another big ad in the fall. The local newspaper gave the display half a column write-up, from which it is gleaned that "Lois Stonebreaker won the first prize, a large palm. She had five plants which were uniform in size. Paul Fahy won the second prize, a large fern. Clarence Rost won third prize, a beautiful cyclamen. Isabelle Davis won fourth prize, a bed of geraniums. Lucile Schlembaugh won fifth prize, a bed of cannas. Irene and Edmund Nickle won a special prize of a large fern. They had grown their ten plants in one large tub. Paul Duerk has the best single plant. Many of the children had less than five plants, and for these honorable mention was given to several." Their names followed.

Next season the show will grow.

PACKING VIOLET PLANTS.

What is the best way of packing field-grown violet plants for shipment? Some of them measure ten to fourteen inches in diameter. Should I leave much soil on the roots? E. A. P.

A good way in which to pack violet plants for shipment is to put a thin layer of excelsior in the bottom of the box, and then pack the plants upright in straight rows across the box, pressing the roots firmly together in the row. If the plants are to be shipped far, there should be a narrow wooden cleat nailed across the box between every other row, in order to keep the plants in place. Then nail a slat cover on the top of the box, so that the plants will have plenty of ventilation.

Do not remove all the soil from the roots. In case the soil is light and falls away from the roots too much, it is best to pack a thin layer of damp excelsior between each row of plants in the box. Pack tightly, but give the foliage all the air you can, to avoid heating in the box. W. H. T.

Wakefield, Mass.—Otto Runge has opened a new store on Albion street and is enjoying a marked increase in his business.

AUCUBA JAPONICA.

Can you give me some information regarding the summer treatment of Aucuba Japonica, both green and variegated? I have had some fine plants turn black and die, and am at a loss to know how to prevent the same thing occurring again. P. N. D.

Aucubas, both green and variegated, will do well planted in any good garden soil in summer, where they will get full sun. If placed with azaleas, ericas and other hard-wooded greenhouse plants, within reach of the hose, they will make splendid growth. If kept in tubs, all they require is plenty of water and an occasional dose of liquid manure. Probably your plants were kept too dry in winter, which would cause their turning black when the warm weather came on. Keep them in a temperature just clear of freezing in winter. Some frost will not hurt them. C. W.

PALMS.

Which is considered to be the best all-round palm for florists' use, for decorations indoors and outdoors? Is a house running east and west or one running north and south best adapted for growing palms? Is a solid concrete bed filled with ashes considered good to grow them on? F. H. W.

If limited to one species of palm for general decorative utility, Kentia Forsteriana would doubtless receive the most votes in its favor.

Houses running east and west are favored by most palm growers, but from the fact that most palm houses are shaded to some extent for a large part of the year, the direction does not make so much difference.

A solid bed filled with ashes is excellent for growing palms in 6-inch pots or larger, but the young stock is more under control when grown on side benches, where they will have the benefit of the heating pipes beneath them. W. H. T.

Hot Springs, Ark.—The Johnson Floral Co. says that trade is rather quiet at present, and it takes only a little stock to supply the demand. CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Early Varieties.

During the last days of September the commercial grower is always hoping for a good frost. Sometimes he gets it and sometimes he does not, but when he does, it creates immediately a healthy demand for good mums and then the grower who has been speculating mostly on early varieties reaps his harvest. It cannot be denied that, from this year's experience, Golden Glow has done the market more harm than good, as it has been in flower and on sale in the market for the last month. Some of the later flowers were excellent in quality.

Now, just when the large flowered types are ready to come in and the market should be in a healthy condition to receive them, we are confronted with the low prices at which Golden Glow has been sold, and the professed inability of the buyer to see why he has to pay more for other kinds. The newness has worn off and the man who has been anticipating a good call at a fair price for his early stock, like Monrovia or Crocus, seems doomed to disappointment unless he is helped by the weather.

Monrovia, I always think, is a much better flower than Golden Glow. It is also of a deeper color, and, under normal conditions, will keep better, but one cannot afford to grow Monrovia in competition with Golden Glow, as it needs more care and the quantity of first-class flowers from a given space in a bench is not so large.

We have, at the present time, some excellent flowers of Yellow October Frost, on 6-foot stems, and these are better than either Golden Glow or Monrovia. This only goes to prove that we must try to get something a little better than the other fellows, all the time, if we are to keep in the front rank.

Comoleta is looking well, as is also Gloria, and before we know it the rush will be on in full swing.

There is plenty of room for a really good early pink, to be ready October 1. A new French variety that we are trying this year, called Chateau des Rodrets, seems to possess some good qualifications, but it is rather early yet to pass judgment on it. Certainly it will be poor if the color does not beat that of Montmort, as the color of the latter on early buds is always wretched.

Midseason Varieties.

Midseason varieties, particularly where they are growing in the same house with the early kinds, must be looked after so that, before the flower shows color, the insects may be all disposed of. One is too often prone, when cutting begins, to neglect the later varieties, and while one cannot well fumigate heavily with a section of the house in flower, still a light smoking will do no harm if the ventilators are opened early in the morning.

Cut off all feeding on all varieties as soon as the buds show color. Any plant that is properly grown should finish its flowers without any difficulty when it is brought to that stage, whereas feeding, if carried on too long, makes the flowers extremely soft and unsatisfactory.

The question of ventilation should also be considered from now on. During all the summer and early fall months the ventilators have been left open night and day, but now, with a temperature which may often range down to several degrees of frost at night, more care is necessary.

The temperature of the house should not be allowed to go below 45 degrees. At the same time, it is not advisable to close the ventilators tight, with the idea of retaining the sun heat in that manner. Leave two inches or so of air on at the top of the house and, if necessary, run a coil of steam around. This will create a dry atmosphere and keep the moisture from settling on the petals. Chrysanthemum flowers object, above everything else, to being sweated in any way. They will endure the cold far better. Chas. H. Totty.

ARE YOU SOLD OUT?

The Review always has brought its advertisers good results, but increasing circulation is this year giving even better returns than heretofore. For instance, all the following letters were in one day's mail:

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

CORSAGE BOUQUETS.

In leading flower stores, especially those that cater to transient trade, such as is done at a hotel store, corsage bouquets are an important item. Their variety is infinite. They may consist of a simple spray of cattleyas and a tie to match, or they may be built to any size and include many flowers. In the winter season the most popular corsage bouquet for ordinary uses is made of violets, with a gardenia standing up just a little way in the center of the bunch, or a few spikes of valley. Since violets have gone out and the Spencer varieties of sweet peas have come into season, corsage bouquets of the long-stemmed peas have been the vogue. Made up by a man who has the knack, their popularity is well deserved. But it isn't every cut flower worker who knows how to make up corsage bouquets of peas. "Bunch" is the trade word for any arrangement of flowers in the form of a bouquet, and it is accurately descriptive of the work of some who style themselves "floral artists"—did you ever get a first-class haircut at the hands of a "tonsorial artist"?

There is only one use for a corsage bouquet, but the occasions for its use are as various as the flowers of which it is made. Most corsage bouquets are for street or dinner wear, but sometimes an order for wedding flowers includes a corsage bouquet of roses and valley. This usually is worn by the mother of the bride, but sometimes at a morning wedding the bridesmaids wear instead of carrying flowers. The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of such a corsage bouquet made by R. Irving Gresham, manager of the C. A. Dahl Co., Atlanta, Ga. He makes it of white, pink, yellow or, sometimes, even of red roses and valley, with a little Adiantum Farleyense mixed in. A corsage shield of the same color of the roses is used.

WEDDING FLOWERS.

The October 1 issue of the Ladies' Home Journal is designated as "The Marriage Number," and one of its features is a page of brides' bouquets and wedding flowers from designs by Charles Thorley, New York. As the Journal has something over a million circulation, such publicity is sure to add to the demand for flower accessories for weddings, but an even more important result will be the education of the public taste to demand better things. The florist who wishes to keep in step with the times must keep himself informed on the progressive excellence of arrangements of wedding flowers and must be prepared to give his customers advice and service in keeping with the most advanced ideas.

THE QUESTION OF CREDIT.

[The substance of an interview with one of the trade's leading managers of credit.]

The florist is an expert in growing plants and flowers. He thoroughly understands their needs, gives them what they require, and produces results that are oftentimes marvelous. The floral artist understands the arrangement of colors and foliage, the selection of bloom, the making up of designs, and their relative value. But it sometimes happens that what may be called the business knowledge of his profession is not clearly understood by the florist. Unfortunately, a business-college education was not considered part of the necessary training some years ago and all that many of our florists know of business methods has been picked up here and there.

Prior to about 1896 half-yearly settlements were in vogue among florists. It was understood that all bills for the half year were due on the first day of January and on the first day of July, cash discounts being given to those who paid more promptly. As the volume of business grew and business methods became better understood, this system, or perhaps want of system, of payment was outgrown. No one doing a business of any extent could pay his salary list and other obligations promptly while giving six months' credit. Outside interests demanded prompt payment; they laughed at the idea of waiting six months; they must have their money promptly or they did not want our business.

So about fourteen years ago this was changed; accounts for plants, seeds and bulbs were sold on a credit of ninety days; cut flowers on a credit of thirty days. As the observance of this rule becomes more and more general, florists rank higher and higher in the opinion of the business world, and they profit thereby.

There are several points in the credit system that are misunderstood by many florists. The most important of these is that of meeting obligations when due. A florist would not dream of sending an order the day after it was required, yet he thinks nothing of failure to meet his obligations when due. It seems to him a satisfactory excuse to say that he has not the money, but how will that excuse help pay the other fellow's salary list? Many florists regard the bank with awe; they feel that to say to the bank that they want money is a disgrace, yet that is exactly the purpose for which the banks are conducted, or rather one of the most important purposes. When you want a suit of clothes, you go to the tailor; when you want sugar, you go to the grocer; when you want money, you should go to the bank. What disgrace is there in borrowing money from the bank to pay just bills?

The method is simple. Goods are purchased in September on ninety days' credit. There is no ready money to meet the obligations when they fall due in December. A statement of conditions is made to the bank and, if satisfactory, a four months' loan is effected that will fall due at Easter. This loan costs a comparatively small sum; it keeps credit high, which means that the buyer is welcome everywhere. Is not this worth while?

Sight drafts are not clearly understood by all florists. The credit of a man who meets a sight draft when presented is equal to that of a man who sends his check when payment is due. The credit of a man who declines a sight draft is weakened with the bank presenting it, even though he sends his check when refusing the draft.

The credit of a man who promises to pay at a stated time and fails to keep that promise is weakened, even though additional credit be extended him, because the house giving credit has its own obligations to meet and cannot afford to extend this courtesy to those who do not understand its value. Take, for instance, the case of a house with a salary list of $2,500 each week. To meet this salary list it has obligations

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Early Varieties.

During the last days of September the commercial grower is always hoping for a good frost. Sometimes he gets it and sometimes he does not, but when he does, it creates immediately a healthy demand for good mums and then the grower who has been speculating mostly on early varieties reaps his harvest. It cannot be denied that, from this year's experience, Golden Glow has done the market more harm than good, as it has been in flower and on sale in the market for the last month. Some of the later flowers were excellent in quality.

Now, just when the large flowered types are ready to come in and the market should be in a healthy condition to receive them, we are confronted with the low prices at which Golden Glow has been sold, and the professed inability of the buyer to see why he has to pay more for other kinds. The newness has worn off and the man who has been anticipating a good call at a fair price for his early stock, like Monrovia or Crocus, seems doomed to disappointment unless he is helped by the weather.

Monrovia, I always think, is a much better flower than Golden Glow. Take, for instance, the case of a house with a salary list of $2,500 each week. To meet this salary list it has obligations coming due this week. Of these obligations several fail and ask for more time. Thus the money that must be raised for the salary list is not forthcoming. Can it reasonably be expected that these buyers will be given credit in future?

Consider how the restriction of credits helps the honest florist. It prevents the beginner from buying large quantities of stock and, it may be, underselling the man with an established business before he has proven himself worthy. It prevents the unscrupulous from obtaining for nothing that for which the conscientious buyer must pay. Thus restriction of credits proves a direct benefit to all legitimate business.

The business success of the florists today must depend largely on foresight; the ability to see far enough ahead to know whether the money will be ready when the bills come due is of paramount importance. The faithful promiser, who promises and pays not, cannot hope to compete in the race with the man who meets his obligations when they are due. Phil.

will be found pushing up freely from the earlier and stronger varieties, like Fothergilli major and cornusca. Any top-dressing should now be given and the plants placed in a cool, airy house. It is unwise to repot nerines until they become much matted and the bulbs overcrowded. They never bloom satisfactorily until the pots are a veritable network of roots.

Amaryllis Belladonna is also now pushing its flower stems. It is hardly ever seen commercially, although its beautiful pink flowers, which have a delicious perfume, should sell on sight. This amaryllis wants the same baking as the nerines. It also needs much larger pots. Southern growers can do this well outdoors, but those in the north either have to grow it planted out in protected brick frames or in pots.

Mignonette.

Many growers have already had recourse to fire heat. This is especially necessary where roses and colored-leaved plants of a tropical nature are grown. On such crops as mignonette there will, of course, be no need to use it for some time yet. The house, if up to 40 or 42 degrees in the morning, is sufficiently high and air should be left on about all the time, both night and day.

The green worms have been unusually troublesome on the foliage. Close hand-picking has, however, prevented much damage being done to the foliage. As there is little demand for mignonette before colder weather, it is better to let the plants run up, so as to show flower, and then head them back well. This will allow three or four shoots to start from near the base. These will give fine spikes, if the soil, temperature and other conditions are right. Just as soon as time will permit run the wires and cross strings along the beds to keep the stems straight. Mignonette with crooked stems no one wants.

Brief Reminders.

House and start a batch of Paper White narcissi, now that the flats are full of roots.

Formosa lilies above ground, if placed in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night, will start flowering in January and follow Harrisii nicely.

Stake any cosmos being grown in boxes or pots securely. Rain and wind storms will raise havoc with them otherwise.

One of the finest hardy flowers now in season is Anemone Japonica alba. If you are not growing it, make up your mind to do so another year. For floral work it is invaluable.

Continue transplanting any late perennials or biennials. These grow rapidly at this season and there are still several weeks in which they can make growth.

GIGANTEUM FOR EASTER.

Will you kindly tell me the proper time to start giganteum lilies for Easter 1911? P. N. D.

Pot the bulbs of giganteum any time during the month of October, or up until the middle of November. Easter comes next year quite late, April 16. In growing them you want to get them along so as to see buds by the first week in March. C. W.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Azaleas.

Azaleas which were planted out in the field in early summer must now be lifted and potted. A light freeze will not injure the flower buds, but it is much better not to run any risks. Reduce the balls with a sharp-pointed hardwood stick so that they will go in as small pots as possible. A compost of three parts loam, one part leaf-mold and a good dash of sharp sand will suit the plants. Any manure used must be old and thoroughly decayed. The old idea about peat being a necessity for successful azalea culture has been long ago exploded. Be sure to work the soil well around the sides of the pots and ram it firmly, so as to leave no open spaces. Soak well with water and stand outdoors in the full sun until threatened frost compels their removal indoors. The best place to store them is a pit, where they can get sufficient light and where frost can be excluded without any resort to fire heat, unless it be in zero weather. Spray the plants freely for a week or two.

Ericas.

Ericas make more roots than azaleas when planted outdoors and the balls will need more reducing in order to get them in pots of moderate size. A compost in which they are found to grow remarkably well consists of equal parts of fibrous loam and leaf-mold, to which is added some sand and well decayed cow manure passed through a fine mesh screen. It is not possible to press the soil around the pots too firmly. All hard-wooded plants should have the soil rammed hard. While ericas planted out make much stronger growth than when pot grown, the latter make buds earlier and prove better for Christmas flowering. E. melanthera is the best all-around sort. Lifted plants may wilt a little on hot days, to counteract which they should be kept well sprayed. They are better kept outdoors as late as possible.

Callas.

A good many grow callas in beds or benches, but quite a number of small growers grow them in pots, which are stood outdoors in a sunny spot. It is better not to risk these outdoors much longer. They will make better headway under glass and will not be subjected to soddening rains, which we usually get at this season. Keep the surface soil well stirred and the plants will grow all the faster for it. Do not use any liquid manure for some time yet.

Lorraine Begonias.

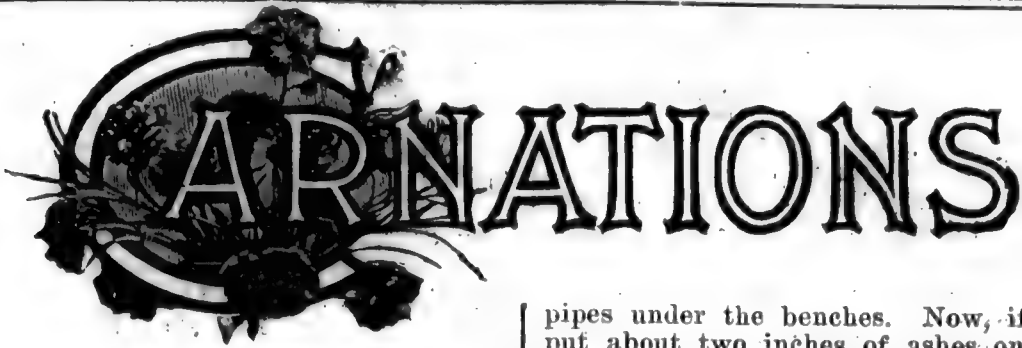

Lorraine begonias will now require stakes. These should be light and not rise above the growths. If they are green, they will never be noticed at all. It is absurd growing a lot of nice plants and, as blooming time approaches, neglecting giving them support. Of course, as hanging specimens, supports are not needed, but the vast majority are not grown in this way. Where the earliest batch has the pots well filled with roots, weak liquid manure applied every fourth watering will prove helpful. Do not give it to any which are not well rooted. It will only help to sour the soil and make the plants sickly. A temperature of 58 to 60 degrees at night will grow Lorraines well. When in bloom, they are better 10 degrees cooler. The cooler house makes the blooms have more substance. As growth now is rapid, the plants will need more frequent spacing, and it is a good plan to elevate the larger specimens well.

Eucharis Amazonica.

Where a Christmas crop of Eucharis Amazonica is wanted, the plants, whether in beds or pots, should be rested until the middle of November. Do not withhold water entirely at once, and do not let the plants at any time become so baking dry as to lose much of their foliage. A lower temperature, say 50 degrees at night, is better for the plants while they are being rested. When the time comes to start them up, a soaking of warm water, some bottom heat and 70 degrees at night will bring the spikes along in season for the holidays.

Nerines and Amaryllis.

Nerines, which have been baking in the sun on their sides since last May, should now be examined. The spikes

FAIRY RING.

Will you please let me know what is the trouble with my carnations? I have never before seen them act in this way. The buds seem to dry up when they are small. Some get a little larger, but get a ring around them or turn yellow in the top. The varieties are Enchantress and White Enchantress. The plants seem to be in good health, for they are growing fast. They were planted during the first two weeks in August. There is a good lot of horse manure in the soil. Can that be a reason for the trouble? The soil is medium heavy.

H. E. Y.

The nature of the disease which is causing your trouble is easily detected. You have a case of fairy ring on your hands. It was most likely caused by the too liberal use of stable manure, perhaps coupled with too much syringing. This would produce a humid atmosphere which is just to the liking of all these fungous diseases, such as fairy ring, leaf-spot, etc. If the manure was only partly decayed, it would be worse than if thoroughly rotted before being added to the soil.

I do not wish to give the impression that the liberal use of manure is wrong. On the contrary, it is necessary that you enrich your soil well if you want high grade stock. It is essential, however, that the manure be in a proper state of decomposition when you apply it. It should first pass through that state of fermentation during which it loses its heat and rankness, after which we term it spent manure. Then it is safe to use.

If you will get busy at once, you can likely get your plants clean before the winter sets in, and in time to realize good returns for the season. First pick off every leaf or stem that shows a sign of the spot. To leave any of them on the plants would mean the perpetuation of your trouble. Burn them as soon as you take them off. Then spray liberally with Bordeaux mixture twice each week until you are rid of the disease. Do not be content with going over the plants and picking off the leaves once, but look them over every day or two until it is stamped out.

Keep the atmosphere as dry as possible by discontinuing syringing altogether for a time, and by liberal ventilation at all times. Dust some slaked lime around under the benches and wherever dampness may collect. Make a hard fight now, while the weather is still in your favor.

A. F. J. B.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE PIPES.

We have a room, 12x40 feet, which we plant in carnations. The house is seven feet high at the ridge, and four feet high at the sides. It runs north and south and has raised benches. There is one 2-inch pipe around the room, above the bench, and four 1-inch pipes under the benches. Now, if we put about two inches of ashes on the ground and about five inches of earth on top of that, then plant our carnations and move the 1-inch pipes under the walk, which is two feet wide, would this have the right effect, or should we have some more pipes above our carnations?

M. M.

I would not advise piping your house in the way you suggest. The 2-inch pipes on the sides of the house may be all right, but the 1-inch pipes should be distributed more over the house. Put one on each side of the house under the bench, against the wall. Lay the other two on top of the walk, one on each side. This will allow much freer radiation than would be possible with the pipes underneath the walk.

Always bear in mind that the cold always comes in from the outside, and not from the ground upward, as some seem to imagine. So in a narrow house most of the pipes should be along the sides of the house, with only enough scattered through the middle of the house to take care of the cold which would drop downward from the roof.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Conditions continue to improve nicely. Occasionally there comes an off day, but the market has not been more bare of flowers for a long time. The supply from outdoors is steadily on the wane and the indoor cut is not yet heavy, although constantly growing. Roses are not overabundant and are moving well at somewhat improved prices. Killarney and White Killarney are once more the leaders. Some nice, well colored Marylands are seen. Richmonds are as yet small. Bride and Maid move the slowest of any varieties. Mrs. Aaron Ward is again coming in good shape. Carnations are more plentiful and of rather better quality. Enchantress, Beacon, Winsor, Winona, Pink Delight and White Perfection seem to be the leaders so far. Quite a few single violets are now coming in; these make 50 cents per hundred.

In addition to Golden Glow, some pink and white chrysanthemums are arriving, such varieties as Marquis de Montmort, Mme. Bergmann and Fitzwygram. Polly Rose and Glory of the Pacific are due in a few days. Orchid flowers are becoming more plentiful and sell quite well. Such gardenias as are seen bring good prices. Lilies are now mostly longiflorum and are sufficient for all demands. Valley is selling quite well and is abundant. Some good Bouvardia Humboldtii is seen.

Asters are nearing the end. Prices rule higher, the best making $2 and smaller flowers $1 per hundred. Gladioli are fewer and of poorer quality. The demand is not good. Plenty of cosmos is seen and a moderate quantity of dahlias, tuberoses and other outdoor flowers. There is a rather better demand for green stock.

Exhibition.

The fall flower, fruit and vegetable show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which opened September 24, proved to be a remarkably fine one, completely filling all available hall space. The arrangement of exhibits was good and the quality all around excellent. For the best collection of hardy herbaceous flowers R. & J. Farquhar & Co. were the sole exhibitors, filling 500 square feet of space with a grand collection finely arranged.

Dahlias were shown in great numbers. In fact, they were more numerous than at the New England Dahlia Society's show a week previous. For twenty-four show varieties, prizes went to W. D. Hathaway, A. E. Johnson and E. W. Ela. For twelve varieties, to W. K. Hall, E. W. Ela and Mrs. L. A. Towle. W. D. Hathaway had the best twenty-four varieties peony-flowered and W. F. Turner & Co., New Bedford, led for twelve varieties. The best peony-flowered varieties shown were Bertha von Suttner, Holstein, Alsace, Andrew Carnegie, H. Hornsveld, La Riente, Allendale, Germania and Queen Wilhelmina.

Cactus varieties were shown in large numbers. For twenty-four varieties, the winners were W. D. Hathaway, Joseph Thorpe and J. K. Alexander. The winning collection included H. Shoesmith, Ruby Grinstead, Aurora, Royal Scarlet, Ianthe, Ignea, Malcolm Richardson, Belle, Mercury, Rev. T. W. Jamieson, Crepuscule, Advance, Dorothy, Phineas, Directeur Quennee, Elsie, Countess of Kenmare, Gustave Beers, William Marshall, Clincher and Master Carl. For twelve cactus, the winners were W. F. Turner & Co., Joseph Thorpe and E. W. Ela.

Decorative varieties came next to the cactus in popularity. For twenty-four varieties, W. D. Hathaway again led with Le Colosse, Yellow Colosse, Beaute Lyonnaise, Souvenir de Gustave Doazon, Le Grand Manitou, Louis Hariot, Jeanne Charmet, Mrs. Roosevelt, Commandant Rivoire, Santa Cruz, Gabriel Delain, Ville de Lyon, Lucy Fevrier, Papa Charmet, Helene Charmet, Van den Dael, Morocco, La Geant, La France, Marie Collett, Mme. Mollard and Source de Feu. Competition was keen for twelve varieties of decoratives. W. F. Turner & Co., who were first, had the grandest blooms seen of this class in the entire show. They were as follows: Souvenir de Gustave Doazon, Helene Charmet, Jeanne Charmet, La Geant, Phenomenal, Mrs. Grinstead, Le Grand Manitou, Marie Collett, Yellow Colosse, Gigantea, Lucy Fevrier and Mammoth. W. K. Hall was second and E. W. Ela, third.

For twelve varieties of pompons, J. K. Alexander was well in the lead as usual, E. W. Ela, second. Twelve vases of singles, W. F. Turner & Co. were first, E. W. Ela, second. Largest and best collection of named varieties, one flower of each, brought out a big display. George Walker won with a splendid collection, well staged; J. K. Alexander, second; H. L. Winter, third.

B. Hammond Tracy secured the silver medal for the best display of gladioli. A dinner-table decorated with Dawn looked inviting. Other varieties well shown were Independence, America, Sunrise, Tiger, Rosella, Harvard, Mrs. Francis King and Maiden's Blush.

There were also many of the Cedar Acres seedlings included.

Among the many miscellaneous exhibits not in competition were large displays of dahlias from Andrew W. Preston, W. D. Hathaway and R. & J. Farquhar & Co. The latter firm filled a large, low table with flowers arranged in large vases on long stems, to show their value for decorative effects. They had a fine collection of the peony-flowered class. They also had a collection of palms, ferns and hybrid tea roses, a collection of Wilson's new Chinese discoveries, including dishes of fruit from some of the new rubus. They received honorable mention for their new bedding or basket tuberous begonia, Alice Manning, golden yellow in color.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. filled several tables with a big collection of dahlias in several hundred varieties from the Marblehead farm, also vases of lilies and gladioli, such as Mrs. F. Pendleton, Jean Dieulafoy, Brilliant, Rosella, Mrs. Francis King and Harvard. The collection received a silver medal. Mrs. E. M. Gill showed some of the best blooms in the hall. Her Souvenir de Gustave Doazon, nine inches in diameter, were noteworthy, also big vases of A. D. Livoni, Jumbo and Grand Duke Alexis, with many good single seedlings. George B. Gill also had a good display of dahlias.

The Henry A. Dreer Co. received a silver medal for a display of aquatics. It included such nymphæas as Ernest Ludwig, Pennsylvania, Frank Trelease, Sturtevantii, Bissettii, dentata superba and Mrs. C. W. Ward, and such nelumbiums as Shiroman, roseum plenum and others, and Victoria regia.

Mrs. H. F. Durant, Thomas Watt gardener, had a fine specimen plant of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii. William Thatcher, gardener for Mrs. J. L. Gardner, had excellent specimens of Adiantum polyphyllum, Davallia Fijiensis plumosa, Acanthus montanus, etc.

There was a fine display of vegetables of all kinds. The two leading prize winners were Col. F. Mason, E. L. Lewis gardener, and Oliver Ames, Edward Parker gardener. Fruits were also of fine quality. The class for greenhouse grapes, calling for not less than four varieties, two bunches of each, brought out a remarkable display. Thomas E. Procter, Topsfield, Mass., James Marlborough gardener, led with a grand lot of twenty-three bunches in all, many being five to six pounds in weight, of the following varieties: Black Alicante, Lady Hutt, Appley Towers, Mrs. Pince, Golden Queen, Black Hamburg, Mrs. Barron, Muscat of Alexandria, Madresfield Court, Lady Downe, Mrs. Pearson and Gros Maroc. The last named carried a high bloom. A silver medal was hardly sufficient for this superb collection. The second prize went to Morton F. Plant, T. W. Head gardener, who had fine Barbarossa, Black Alicante, Muscat of Alexandria and Black Hamburg. A good collection also came from Mrs. J. C. Whitin, William McAllister gardener, consisting of Lady Downe, Mrs. Pince, Golden Queen, Muscat of Alexandria, Mrs. Pearson, Black Alicante and Gros Guillaume. Mr. Marlborough also had a fine group of Adiantum Farleyense.

Admission to the exhibition was free and the attendance large, especially on Sunday, September 25, when the halls were crowded.

Various Notes.

Herbert Belcher, of Winthrop, is this season growing 150,000 bulbs, including 30,000 Golden Spur narcissi and 25,000 Paper Whites. He will have plenty of the latter in bloom in October. Mr. Belcher also has 8,000 chrysanthemums and a quantity of single violets. George Cartwright acts as his salesman at C Park street.

William H. Elliott has a splendid lot of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses. This variety sells well. Maryland is coming of a high color at present. Killarney and White Killarney are of good quality.

Julius H. Zinn, among other flowers, is this week showing some extra good achimenes, gladioli, large vases of Sedum spectabile, Cattleya Harrisoniae and chrysanthemums in variety.

Thomas Roland is first in the market with pink chrysanthemums, the variety being Marquis de Montmort. He also has a nice lot of Lady Fitzwygram.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, and the Sutermeister estate, of Readville, are sending in quantities of white eupatorium, which sells well while flowers are none too abundant.

Johnson & Neilson, of Framingham, are among those sending in excellent carnations to the Boston Flower Exchange, also good Princess of Wales violets and splendid asters.

Charles J. Harvey, of Needham Heights, has just finished two new houses, 20x100, in which he will grow wall flowers, mignonette and his other specialties. He will heat them with a Kroeschell boiler.

J. J. Casey, of The Rosary, on Clarendon street, returned home from a European trip September 17 and reports an enjoyable trip. Business at his well-equipped store is starting in satisfactorily.

The Cummings brothers and William Spillsbury, the two Woburn single violet specialists, are once more regularly seen at the markets with quantities of nice flowers, Princess of Wales being their favorite variety.

Letters from William Downs state that he had a pleasant passage to Europe, only missing one meal. His health is already showing an improvement.

Visitors last week included J. S. Hay, of Philadelphia, and David Smith, representing Thomas Smith & Sons, Stranraer, Scotland, on his annual visit to America. Mr. Smith finds demand good for Scotch-grown roses, rhododendrons and other nursery stock.

William F. Aylward is handling an excellent cut of Bride and Bridesmaid roses at the Boston Flower Exchange, grown by his father.

Robert Cameron judged the flowers, fruits and vegetables at Easton Grange fair, North Easton, September 21. About $225 were awarded in prizes, chiefly for children's exhibits. One child's collection of vegetables contained sixty-two varieties and there were sixteen collections shown in one class. The various private estates in North Easton all made exhibits. R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, had an extensive display of dahlias and herbaceous plants and J. K. Alexander of cactus dahlias.

The New England Nurseries have the planting contract for an Italian garden fronting the Christian Science temple, almost adjoining Horticultural hall, which will be quite an attraction on Huntington avenue.

Norris F. Comley, of Lexington, is cutting large quantities of fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums. His aster crop is still holding out well. He is cutting quantities of carnations now from his new crop, which includes all the best new varieties.

Matthew F. Ruane, the popular salesman for Peirce Bros., at the Boston Flower Exchange, has opened a flower store at Waltham. Miss Ruane will have charge of it, and there is little doubt but that a good business will soon be built up in the watch city.

W. N. Craig.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With the waning of September, greater life is manifest in the market, and the expected buoyancy appears. Everything of value sold rapidly at last week's close. Now that the gladioli have vanished and the aster crop is nearing its finish, roses and carnations will again dominate, and as these lengthen in stem and increase in size of flower, the market will rapidly respond. Society has started its return to the city, and the fall and winter list of weddings and receptions booked already indicates a splendid season.

The best Beauties rose to 25 cents occasionally last week, but only now and then did they touch that figure, the average of the selected never going above $20 per hundred. Maryland and Killarney are abundant and the best of them have not gone above $5 per hundred to date. Some excellent stock of these and Kaiserin are arriving, but of the lower grades, especially of Killarney, there seems to be no limit. Bride and Maid are comparatively scarce, and one of the oldest wholesalers predicts these two varieties will command a much better price than during the last five years, so general has been the departure of the growers to Killarney and My Maryland.

The effort to raise carnations to 3 cents did not meet with an encouraging response, and $2 per hundred probably will be the prevailing top for a while longer. Lilies had a fluctuating experience last week, selling one day up to 12 cents, with light offerings. On Saturday they were coming in larger volume, and 9 cents was the high rate that evening. Valley only touched 4 cents for a day; most of it was selling at $2.50 per hundred and under as the week closed. There are plenty of orchids, and the sources of supply are many. While all the popular seasonable varieties are in evidence, the retail windows are made attractive by the oncidium sprays. There are plenty of gardenias, and prices range downward from $25 per hundred.

Dahlias were abundant last week, and with the advent of rainy weather their quality will improve. The growers have been sadly handicapped by drought. Some of the leading wholesalers are featuring the dahlia this week by fine window displays. There are few violets as yet, and quality is nothing to brag about.

Some mums sold as high as $4 per dozen. This is likely to be the top price for a long time. The arrivals are increasing daily, and many other varieties besides Golden Glow are seen. In another week the inflow will begin, and then for many weeks the chrysanthemum will dominate the market.

The supply men begin to feel the improvement in the general trade. The October weddings call for large quantities of autumn leaves and wild smilax.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting Monday evening, October 10. J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, will give his interesting stereopticon lecture on "The Florist and the Town," and ladies are invited to attend. Just what Chairman Nugent may have to say in their behalf has not been revealed, but a large delegation is confidently expected. It is suggested that there be no smoking. There will be exhibits for the Hitchings cup, for which Harry Turner scored 85 points last month.

The dahlia show ended Thursday evening, September 22. The attendance was large and the display most attractive. A. J. Manda, of Brooklyn, was the exhibitor of the splendid bank of eighty varieties of crotons, palms, marantas, pineapples and caladiums, not for competition, but which the society awarded a special prize of $50. John C. Galvin, gardener for Irving Grinnell, of New Hamburg, N. Y., showed a fine vase of his new bright scarlet seedling, still unnamed.

M. A. Bowe's new store at 60 West Thirty-third street is handsomely fitted up and is only one door from Broadway and less than a block away from his headquarters during the last dozen years.

Arthur M. Harris is now bookkeeper for Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Mr. Hopkins having been engaged by William P. Ford.

N. J. Hills & Co., the latest addition to the wholesale florists, has opened a neat and convenient store at 58 West Twenty-eighth street.

The auctions feel the need of frost, for the opening sales have been themselves frosty in the matter of attendance, enthusiasm and prices. Better times are coming to this branch of the horticultural industry, as the chilly days develop.

The windows of the seedsmen are a study now in prize vegetables and variety of bulbs. Many are also adding plant departments. All are busy. Fall shipments are enormous, and the many salesmen on the road all report a great volume of orders for spring delivery.

The drought delayed shipments of dahlias much longer than expected, but Gunther Bros. report large consignments now arriving.

Thursday evening, October 6, the Astoria Bowling Club will have its prize night, an annual affair that draws a big house and creates a great amount of amusement and excitement.

David McKenzie is back from his honeymoon in Scotland and the continent, thirty pounds heavier, with many valuable importations, having profitably combined business and pleasure while away.

The Julius Roehrs Co. has done its share this fall in popularizing the celosia. Controlling the sale of the Castle Gould varieties, they have made every retail window unique and attractive. They have several large houses entirely devoted to this novelty.

J. K. Allen's store has been entirely redecorated and painted. It has never looked more attractive.

M. C. Ford has been adding improvements until now there seems nothing more to be done. To be successful now in wholesaledom one has to be up-to-date.

Bowling.

The New York Florists' Club's Bowling Association opened its season September 23, making the following scores:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	4th	Av.
Manda	134	191	174	154	163
Wilson	163	135	157	127	145
Scott	150	153	143	130	144
Shaw	142	155	157	100	139
Smith	112	151	137	123	131
Berry	139	118	122	122	125
Holt	93	140	130	122	121
Moltz	86	129	101	92	102

For the meeting October 10 J. A. Manda offers $5 in gold to the member making the highest score. All members of the New York Florists' Club are invited to participate. No one else is eligible for prizes. At the meeting this week on Friday evening, September 30, there will be three prizes given, as follows: A knife by O. V. Zangen, a box of cigars by the Crescent Cafe, and a knife by the Stumpp & Walter Co. C. W. Scott was elected vice-president and he offers $5 in gold for the high average of the members up to January 1, 1911. The new alleys are at 115 West Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue.

J. Austin Shaw.

Wertheimer Bros. have outgrown their present quarters, which they have occupied only since February 1, and have added an annex at 90 Prince street.

The fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held at the American Museum of Natural History November 9 to 13. Those who have visited the exhibitions in the past know of the unsurpassed facilities offered by this museum for the artistic display of plants and flowers. Schedules of classes and premiums are ready for distribution, and a copy will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York city. The secretary will also be glad to answer any inquiries in regard to the exhibition.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market last week had its ups and downs, and business did not have as much life in it as it should have at this time of the year. But they say the good times are coming and, with cold weather, business should at once become steady. Next week the local festivities will start, and this should help our business, as the west end florists say they have a number of good sized weddings to furnish during the next few weeks.

The wholesale houses were receiving good consignments all the week of a fairly good quality of roses, which met with a fair demand. There was also plenty of other stock, including carnations and dahlias. Carnations are selling better than roses, as not so many are coming in. They clean up almost daily, if they are good. Gladioli, tuberose and dahlias are still arriving in big lots. Mums and violets are expected soon. Smilax, asparagus and other greens sell well.

Fall Flower Show.

The committee in charge of the fall flower show for the St. Louis Horticultural Society met last week at the home of C. C. Sanders, in the country, to perfect plans for the show, which will take place in the big Coliseum building, November 8 to 12. A pomological display will also be given during the show. The show this year promises to be the best and largest yet given by the society.

Besides the Shaw prizes, valued at $50, which include the Henry Shaw gold medal for a new plant, there are three other prizes of $500 each, for cut roses, carnations and chrysanthemums. The four grand prizes, valued at $2,000, should make a grand display and bring out keen competition. It is to be regretted that the Chicago dates are the same, as this may keep away some of our Chicago friends who always pay us a visit during show week. It is to be hoped that President-elect George Asmus, of the S. A. F., who, we note, is manager of the Chicago show, will be able to spend a day with us, as he has many friends here in the trade who wish to congratulate him in person.

Various Notes.

Henry Emunds, of Belleville, Ill., was in this city last week, buying supplies. He says chrysanthemum plants are in fine shape for a good crop this season.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. says its new descriptive catalogue will be out October 1. This firm has 200,000 California privet, which are about as fine as any in the market.

Albert Woerner, of Woerner Bros., was married last week. He is a great boy and was heartily congratulated by his many friends in the trade.

The Metropolitan Floral Co. has installed electric lights in its big new ice-box. Alex. P. Geranios, the head of the firm, says he is much pleased with the business done since the opening.

C. E. De Wever, of Clayton, has had a big cut of fine white and pink Cochet roses this summer, as well as a great cut of fine gladiolus spikes, which were handled by Berning.

George B. Windler, on Delore avenue, will, as usual, have a fine collection of pot chrysanthemum plants this season. Mr. Windler is there when it comes to well-grown plants.

The fall festivities next week will open with the yearly Veiled Prophet's ball, in the Coliseum. This always calls for a lot of first-class stock in cut flowers and a great deal of decorating for big downtown stores. Other events during the week also call for work from the florists, and they are all looking forward to a big week.

William Winter, F. W. Ude, Jr., and Hugo Gross, three of the largest growers in Kirkwood, expect to have great cuts of carnations and violets this season; also sweet peas and bulbous stock in season.

Among those who handled large decorations for fall openings downtown last week were C. Young & Sons Co., Ostertag Bros., C. C. Sanders, C. Beyer, F. Bruenig, Schray & Sons and Chas. Juengel. A few more are on for this week.

A trip through the west end found the florists with their show houses in fine shape for the opening of the season.

On Boyle avenue is F. H. Weber; on Olive street, Fred C. Weber and the Ellison Floral Co., with new decorative and blooming plants. On Delmar avenue Kalisch Bros., Theo. Miller and Sanders are making attractive displays, as also is J. F. Windt, on Bayard avenue. Mrs. Ayers and Geo. Waldbart, on Grand avenue, have attractive displays, while Bentzen, in the north end, and R. J. Windler, C. C. Bergstermann and Charles Beyer, in the south end, are all ready for the opening of the season.

Park Commissioner Scanlan has returned from a three weeks' vacation at eastern resorts. While away, Mr. Scanlan passed much of his time investigating road and park conditions, and he thinks St. Louis is keeping pace with eastern parks.

There is hardly any hope for the revival of the Florists' Bowling Club this year and the florist bowlers have joined the different leagues in the city. They are C. H. Kuehn, Carl Beyer, J. J. Beneke, Geo. Schriefer, A. Y. Ellison and E. W. Guy. They would make a strong team if in one league, but no two of them are on the same team.

Gustave Eggeling, head of the Eggeling Floral Co., was ambushed on Saturday night, when he was returning to town from his greenhouses at Kinloch, in his automobile. But for the presence of mind of his chauffeur, Joe Brown, who turned on full speed, he might have been killed. The highwaymen opened fire on him just as he left the place. Mr. Eggeling says, "We came out without a scratch, and cannot account for the attack."

"Billy" Smith visited Edwardsville on Sunday and has been doing so regularly of late. He reports that Fred Ammann has opened a flower store under the new opera house, which was recently finished on the main street.

J. J. B.

PROPAGATION

Cuttings of such tender bedding plants as coleus, alternantheras, achyranthes and acahyphas should be taken now. The three former can be placed at once in flats of sandy loam, in which they will readily root. Cuttings are less liable to be infested with mealy bug than are old plants. Acahyphas, codium, dracaenas and any other fine-foliaged plants used for subtropical bedding can be easily rooted in a propagating bench, where a little later they can have some bottom heat and be kept well watered overhead. Green and variegated vincas are rarely in oversupply. Before lifting the field plants take a good batch of cuttings, selecting the short, fleshy ones, which are just starting from the base. These root most quickly.

SALVIAS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Please tell me when to sow salvia seeds to have the plants in bloom by Memorial day.

C. U.

Salvia splendens and its several varieties can be sown any time from the beginning to the end of March to have the plants carrying flowers for Memorial day. As the plants are rapid growers, it is inadvisable to sow earlier than March. You can sow until the middle of April and have excellent plants by the end of May. They will not, however, carry any flowers.

C. W.

PROVIDENCE

The Market.

Business was quite satisfactory last week, and the indications are promising for a much better trade during the current week. Several weddings have contributed to the general improvement, while funeral work continues brisk. The frosty nights have cut off the oversupply of field-grown asters so that these flowers are considerably fewer in the market than for several weeks. What are to be seen are of poor quality, generally, although in much demand.

Violets have put in an appearance, the first coming in a few days ago. They are of unusual quality and indicate an excellent crop. They are reported as being especially plentiful. Chrysanthemums are also becoming more plentiful, but the demand will not be heavy for a fortnight or more yet. Carnations are unusually scarce. Roses are showing an improvement as to quality.

Club Meetings.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held at 98 Westminster street, Monday evening, September 19, and was well attended. This is the second gathering since the summer recess and the interest and enthusiasm manifested indicate an interesting fall and winter. President Robert Johnston was in the chair and the various officers and committees made their reports. It was reported that William Appleton, an ex-president of the club, was seriously ill, and the secretary was instructed to send the club's best wishes to the sufferer. James Dillon, gardener at Swan Point cemetery, will read a paper on "Shrubs" at the next meeting.

At the monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, Wednesday evening, September 21, Frederick A. Hawkins, of Pawtucket, and Frank L. Gay and John S. Williams, of this city, were elected to membership. Prof. A. E. Stene, of the Rhode Island College, said the greatest need of the society at the present time is a permanent home, where the meetings could be held regularly, where ample room for the exhibitions would be available and where the secretary could be found at specified hours during the day. He urged the uniting of the horticultural societies to that one end, which he believed would prove beneficial to everybody. As a result of the discussion which followed Prof. Stene's remarks, the president was authorized to appoint a committee of three to look into the matter of a hall for the society and report not later than the December meeting.

Various Notes.

William Craig, of the Robert Craig Co., of Philadelphia, was in the city recently.

Joseph Kopelman is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in the addition of a daughter to his household. The event occurred September 19, and mother and daughter are doing nicely.

E. Bomeverier, manager for Mrs. William Butcher, has returned from an extended tour through England, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Germany.

Albert Holscher is now bringing in some fine early mums. Golden Glow and October Frost supply his principal cuttings.

Johnston Bros., Dorrance street, have completed the interior renovations of their store. Its appearance has been materially improved by the light tints in which it is finished.

S. Kinder & Bro., of Bristol, recently had the decorations for a large wedding in that town.

Andrew J. Dorward, gardener for Mrs. T. J. Emery, of Newport, accompanied by his wife and daughter, have gone to Scotland. Mr. Dorward will return in about a month, but the others will remain abroad for a year or more on account of Mrs. Dorward's health.

William Grosvenor is about to erect a greenhouse on Beacon Hill, Newport, to cost $1,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Saunders recently celebrated their silver wedding at their home, 25 Burnett street, where they entertained their many friends. It is said that more than 5,000 asters were used in the decoration of the rooms.

Johnston Bros. had the decorations for a large, fashionable wedding recently.

M. Macnair reports an unusually busy week delivering potted ferns, palms, etc. Funeral work, as well as social decorations, is also good with him.

George F. Williams, treasurer of the W. E. Barrett Co., was in New York last week on business for the firm.

F. Macrae's Sons announce a fine, large crop of giganteum lilies in bloom, from which they are filling good orders daily.

The W. E. Barrett Co., Providence Seed Co. and W. S. Pino all report unusually busy times filling orders for bulbs during the last ten days.

Mrs. Robert W. Grimes, daughter of Michael Sweeney, one of the oldest florists in the city, died at her home at Edgewood, September 17.

Joseph Kopelman is putting in more than 125,000 bulbs at his place in Oaklawn. He has a large number of Paper Whites already planted.

John Sharkey, head forester for the Elmwood Nurseries, is making preparation for the setting out of nearly 5,000 young maple trees on the streets of this city.

The Burke Rose Co. reports satisfactory business since it took over the William Hay greenhouses on Dyer avenue July 1. Killarney has done exceptionally well and the last crop of Kaiserin, from which they are now cutting, is large.

William Appleton will soon erect a frame boiler house at his range at 294 Broadway.

William Powell, gardener for William Goddard, has broken ground for a new greenhouse for commercial purposes.

Harry A. Budlong and his sister, Florence Budlong Curtis, have asked the Cranston probate court to appoint a conservator of the property of their father, Frank L. Budlong. Mr. Budlong is a member of the firm of J. A. Budlong & Sons Co.

Little Rock, Ark.—D. C. Garrett, of the Cottage Floral Co., has returned from a trip to Chicago, made for the purpose of inspecting some of the large growing establishments.

Monticello, Iowa.—C. L. Van Meter is steadily enlarging and improving his establishment. He has just built a big brick stack, capable of handling considerably more glass than he now has.

New Haven, Conn.—At the regular meeting of the New Haven County Horticultural Society, held here September 14, a beautiful display of dahlias and asters was shown. Among others who received awards, Geo. L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., was first on cactus dahlias. John H. Slocombe, of this city, was first on seedling dahlias and gladioli. This society will give another big exhibit November 1 to 3.

Ashland, O.—A. C. Lamprecht, well known in the trade in Ohio, has begun suit for $10,000 against Mayor Morgan Minnamyer and Chief of Police William Conrad. Mr. Lamprecht was arrested July 5, charged with disorderly conduct. He says he was visiting a photographer's studio, and leaving the same encountered a woman, who asked him to step into her rooms and look at plants. Within ten minutes Conrad and an officer entered the rooms and took him forcibly without a warrant. He says he was imprisoned in the mayor's office and not told of the charge against him. Mr. Lamprecht is a deacon in the Christian church and never was in court before.

Brainerd, Minn.—J. A. McLellan and Miss Emma M. Weid were married September 15 at Cincinnati.

Springfield, Ill.—Richard Schwartz, an employee of Miss Bell Miller, was married September 14, to Miss Selma Ahnert.

Lenox, Mass.—The tenth annual fall exhibition of the Lenox Horticultural Society will be held in the town hall, Wednesday and Thursday, October 26 and 27.

Louisville, Ky.—The Sunlight Double Glass Sash Co. has issued an instructive booklet entitled "How to Use Cold-frames and Hotbeds," written by Prof. W. F. Massey, formerly horticulturist of the North Carolina Experiment Station.

South Orrington, Me.—Ralph W. Ryder and Edith Elizabeth Clark were married September 14. Mr. Ryder's greenhouses are at Orrington Center, where the happy couple will reside upon their return from the honeymoon, which will be spent in northern Maine.

Detroit, Mich.—J. Henry Smith, of Peter Smith & Sons, states that the report that he has gone out of the florists' business is incorrect. Several years ago he put up a fine range of glass near Walkerville, Ont., separate houses now being devoted to violets, carnations, ferns and mums, with lettuce in the rest of the houses.

Taylorville, Ill.—M. B. Leach, proprietor of the Taylorville Floral Co., has sold his establishment to Theodore Steffas, of Springfield, who will take possession about October 1. Mr. Steffas has also acquired a piece of ground near Jayne park and expects to have a branch there later. He will be assisted by his sister, Miss Tena Steffas, of Chicago. Mr. Leach has not yet definitely decided about the future, but it is likely that he and his wife will locate somewhere in the south.

Atlanta, Ga.—A unique refrigerator is being built for the West View Floral Co. It is of peculiar shape, owing to the limitations of the space which it will fill. There is not a square corner in it. The front is twenty-four feet wide and the rear twenty-six feet. The ends are three feet and six and one-half feet, respectively, and it is ten feet high. The outside is white enameled, with drawers in front for mosses, ferns, etc. The floor is tile; the back is mirrored and it is fitted with wire shelves. The cost was $1,800, and although of strange design, it will undoubtedly make a beautiful display. The McCray Refrigerator Co., of Kendallville, Ind., which is building this refrigerator, says that it is one of the largest and handsomest florists' refrigerators ever made.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WITH the present prices of material, it costs about $15 per running foot to build such houses as are characteristic of the big ranges in the Chicago market.

So far as the retail florist is concerned, the horse has had his day. Whether or not it is cheaper, the automobile is ever so much more stylish, and it also is quicker.

BUSINESS is picking up in fine fall fashion. Every mail brings confirmation of the conviction that trade is better with the great majority of florists than it ever has been before at this season.

BENJ. HAMMOND, of Fishkill, N. Y., widely known in the trade, was at Saratoga this week as a delegate to the republican state convention that has been attracting the attention of the whole country.

KNOWS A GOOD THING.

No wide-awake florist nowadays lets a surplus go to waste; he offers it in the Classified Department of The Review and gets a prompt clearance:

That Review of yours certainly is a good salesman. On the third day after my ads appeared I got orders enough to clean me out of celestial peppers. I was surprised, but I guess I will keep a good thing.—Harry Tredway, Dayton, O., September 19, 1910.

It is just such an experience that has led many a man, not content with his limited local field, to work up stock and eventually give most of his attention to the unlimited wholesale mail order end of the business.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The schedule for the spring show of 1911 will soon be issued, giving the list of premiums to be offered for special prizes at the coming national show in Boston.

At the last annual meeting, special letters were issued to Richard Vincent, Jr., as representative of the American Rose Society at the national exhibition held in Belgium and also the one held in the Royal Botanic Gardens at Regent's Park, London. Mr. Vincent reports back that he has received the kindest attention and that the people in charge were delighted with the fact that the American Rose Society had extended the courtesy of a special representative. The honorable secretary, Edward Mawley, of the National Rose Society of England, writing under date of September 6, says: "We were pleased to see the representative of your society, the Rev. S. S. Sulliger, and to welcome him at our leading exhibition, July 8, and we are glad to hear from him that he much enjoyed the time he spent with us." These are pleasant acknowledgments of courtesy, which tend to cement the friendship between the nations—the most desirable thing in these days of continued communication between civilized people.

The American Rose Society aims to have a "rose for every home and a bush for every garden," and it is a fact that more outdoor roses are now in bloom and have been planted within the last three years than ever before saw the sunlight in America.

Benjamin Hammond, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary M. Keitsch.

Monday, September 26, Buffalo lost one of its pioneer florists in the death of Mrs. Mary M. Keitsch. She had been active in the business for the last fifty-six years. She came to this country with her husband, who started greenhouses here, and after his death she assumed entire control, and up to the time of her death was an important factor. A few years ago the firm was organized under the name of the Charles H. Keitsch Sons Co., of which Mrs. Keitsch was president, and her timely advice was the means of building the business they now possess. Mrs. Keitsch lived to the ripe age of 77 years, and is survived by three sons and one daughter, all members of the firm. The business will be carried on by the remaining family.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Business is spotty. Some days there is a rush, and other days things are decidedly quiet. Also, where one wholesaler is busy, another will have few shipping orders, though the next day conditions may be more or less reversed. The result is that only a general summary of conditions will fail of contradiction when applied to the experience of individuals.

The opening of the present week saw a sharp reduction in supplies in practically all lines. There had been three days with scarcely a glimpse of the sun, and for weeks the weather has been cloudy. Asters are practically out of the market, and carnations not yet sufficiently abundant to take their place. Within the week it has been necessary to turn down a large number of orders on which nothing but select asters could be sent, for it is one of the seldom failing circumstances that as stock becomes scarcer, the demand for it increases. Also, wholesalers who have carried standing orders for regular shipments of asters have been compelled to notify their customers that they could no longer supply satisfactory stock. Carnations are steadily increasing in quantity and improving in quality. There now is much nice clean stock on stems of fair length, but the departure of the aster has thrown so much demand on carnations that prices for the short stock for funeral work look a trifle high to buyers, while the best grades are bringing what retailers call stiff rates, forgetting that always at the passing of summer they are required to pay these prices.

Of the roses the supply of Beauties appears to fluctuate more than any other. Supply was lighter at the opening of this week, and prices are firmer; the man who wanted only selected buds on longest stems had to pay extra for them, while those who would not exceed last week's price limit had to be content with less careful selection. The

HIGH GRADE BEAUTIES

We are on with an Excellent Crop

For years our house has been recognized by Beauty buyers as one of the largest and most dependable sources of supply in the entire United States—we ship Beauties all over the country—and this season we have the cut of a larger number of plants than ever before. Now in excellent crop. All lengths. Fine large heads, splendid color and substance, strong stem and heavy foliage; quality that attracts the buyers who hunt out the best stock to be had. Order here and come again.

KILLARNEY

PINK AND WHITE

We are especially strong this week on White Killarney—a big crop is on. This is fine stock, in every way as good as our famous Killarney (pink) have been, and the color is much better than it was in warm weather. In addition to Killarney and White Killarney, we can supply fine

Kaiserin, Maryland and Richmond.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The mum season is now with us and, as always, we have the finest stock you can find. Many buyers know the quality of our Monrovia's of former years—well, we've got 'em again, as fine as ever. Also good Golden Glow, October Frost and other early varieties. Right to the end of the season we shall be headquarters for fine mums.

CARNATIONS

The quality of the carnations is improving rapidly and every day brings an addition to the supply. You can order here with the certainty that you are calling on the largest lot of high grade carnations in this market.

Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Plenty of them NOW. Let your orders come.

Violets

The violet season has opened. As usual, we have the cream of the Hudson river doubles.

Headquarters for Asparagus Bunches, Smilax, Farleyense, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy and the best Fancy Ferns in the country.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

Elegant stock—the Chicago Market Brand—a single bunch or thousand lots, it's here.

quality of Beauties averages first-rate for the season.

Crops of Killarney are not quite so heavy as they were, but the quality of the stock continues to show improvement. Many growers now are cutting stems of good length, and it is possible to find any necessary quantity of extra long, fancy flowers. White Killarney shows the same betterment as the pink variety, with the additional improvement that color is whitening out, as a result of cooler weather. There continue to be moderate receipts of Bride, which command a sale at least as good as White Killarney or Kaiserin. Some fine My Maryland are available, but in no great quantity; this rose is not the factor that some expected it to be. Mrs. Jardine also is good, and Mrs. Field is being cut in fine shape by the few growers who have planted it in quantity.

Chrysanthemums are much more abundant than they were. Monrovia now is arriving in considerable quantity, and has the call over Golden Glow. The price of the best stock has in consequence advanced another notch, but there still are plenty of cheap yellow mums. October Frost also is excellent, and the season now is here when anyone may safely book orders for the queen of autumn in practically unlimited quantity.

Orchids are a little more abundant; the cattleyas are fine. There is a good demand for fancy valley, and an adequate supply. Easter lilies are to be had, but are not pressing for market. Some excellent gladioli are seen, but have become slow sale. Violets are available, but are of the usual September quality.

The green goods market is quiet, but there is an increase in the call for plumosus strings and smilax, because fall openings, as well as weddings, are becoming numerous.

New Wholesale House.

The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., has engaged Room 203 on the second floor of the Atlas block, 51 Wabash avenue and 35 Randolph street, and is preparing to open a wholesale cut flower store. It is understood the business office of the concern will hereafter be in Chicago and that Manager A. T. Pyfer will be personally in charge.

Various Notes.

August Poehlmann, who has just purchased a new six-cylinder Winton seven-passenger touring car, met with an exciting experience near Lyons, Ill., Sunday afternoon, September 25. Sewer builders had obstructed the highway, leaving only a narrow passage for vehicles. One wheel struck a rock that was covered with loose soil, which threw the machine into the excavation, where it turned on its side. The only occupants at the time were Mr. Poehlmann and a nephew. The latter escaped unhurt, and Mr. Poehlmann suffered only a slight bruise over his temple. He thought he was extremely lucky, especially as the car was but slightly damaged and he had taken out an insurance policy on it only the day before. It always has been understood that the automobile fever is extremely contagious, and it is said Adolph Poehlmann already has contracted it.

In order to facilitate the handling of his business, E. C. Amling recently turned it into a stock company, as reported at the time in The Review. He states that beginning October 1 the corporate name will be used, but that there will be no other change, except as the future growth of the business may require.

H. B. Dorner, assistant in floriculture at Urbana, is asking for bids for the carnation crop and the rose crop to be grown this season at the florists' experiment station.

seems improbable that the flower show will run a Sunday this year.

It is reported that C. A. Samuelson has bought a handsome automobile, and will replace his horse delivery outfits with motor cars. Fleischman has a new auto on the street, a duplicate of his first car, except that the color of this one is green. Gus Lange operates an electric vehicle, while the others are gasoline motors, and is thus far well pleased.

E. G. Uihlein's conservatories are specially interesting because of the imported hybrid orchids now flowering. Another unique feature of the place is the new concrete fence with twelve large vases, the like of which is not to be found elsewhere in the city.

It is reported from Elmhurst that Wendland & Keimel are planning to put up fourteen additional houses, more than doubling their present place. Mr. Keimel admits that figures have been obtained, but states that the addition may not go up until a year hence; it depends among other things on how the market runs in the next few weeks.

C. L. Washburn says the radius within which Chicago flowers are sold certainly shows no contraction. Thirteen pages of Bassett & Washburn's order book were filled September 26, and Winnipeg and Fort Worth, Detroit and Omaha were entered there, with many towns between.

John P. Risch, of Weiland & Risch, reports that lightning struck the 75-foot brick stack of Charles Schwind at Evanston on the morning of September 24, splitting it exactly in half. One-half the stack was scattered over the glass, which is devoted to vegetables, while the other half was left standing, to be pulled down by the fire department.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., tells some interesting tales of the great crowds at Montreal during the Eucharistic congress.

Robert Northam says George Reinberg's range is coming into heavy crop again.

George Perdikas now operates three flower stores, and is handling large quantities of stock.

He says Sinner Bros. already are pleased that they dropped Bride and Maid this year.

A. E. Hunt & Co., Evanston, who have a stand in the Flower Growers' Market, state they were without indoor sweet peas only eight days during the summer, cutting the last of the Spencer varieties August 20 and cutting the first Christmas Pink August 28. With them the sweet pea is an all-the-year-around flower.

Wietor Bros. began cutting their chrysanthemum crop last week. They are growing their usual quantity.

Tim Matchen took a half hour Saturday evening to walk through Peter Reinberg's Robey street plant, now devoted exclusively to roses, and was well pleased with the prospects.

At Kyle & Foerster's F. F. Benthley says that things are looking well at the Benthley plant at New Castle, with prospects the best they have been in years.

John Kruchten takes a decidedly cheerful view of the situation, saying that business is better now than ever before at this date, and that the prospect for the next few months looks good to him.

At J. A. Budlong's Phil Schupp says Jardine and Maryland are steadily gaining in favor.

J. F. Czarnik & Co., 1514 West Chicago avenue, say that weddings are giving them more to do than any other line of work. They report having decorations for seven weddings Sunday, September 25, with three more on the following day.

Burglars entered the premises of the Florentine Alabaster Co., 5 East Kinzie street, between Saturday afternoon, September 17, and the following Monday morning. This company manufactures plaster and cement fern dishes, window boxes, hanging baskets, etc., so there was little to reward the efforts of the intruders. About all that they obtained was several dollars' worth of stamps, a small sum of money and a few bronze novelties, but they succeeded in completely disarranging the desks in their search for valuables.

Vaughan & Sperry probably have the only ice-box in the market that gets too cool in the season when no ice is required. They have an electric heater that they use to keep the box up to proper temperature in winter.

At Winterson's horticultural emporium it is said all departments are busy, the counter trade on bulbs having begun to show some signs of awakening as the result of a few cool days.

Henry Van Gelder, manager of the Percy Jones business, says trade for September has been much ahead of last year, in spite of the handicap of remodeling the building.

The Chicago Rose Co. reports many inquiries from those who would purchase its range at Libertyville, but says no one has yet come forward with the ability to put the deal through.

Among recent visitors have been Hugo Schroeter, representing B. Schroeter, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. M. Kranz, Great Falls, Mont., who do a wholesale and retail business, having removed to Great Falls from Minneapolis some twenty years ago, and now making their first trip east in that time.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

The lovers of flowers and poetry who gave to Rochester the title of "The Flower City" surely had a prophetic vision. Could they return today they would see the vision grown to a great industry, covering hundreds of acres of land, and the products thereof known in almost every flower market of the country. A recent advertisement pictured Rochester as one of the great wholesale centers, and a day spent in the wholesale establishments leads one to believe the picture does not do the subject justice.

Asters are the principal flowers coming in just at present, and the great quantities received lead one to ask, "Where do they come from and where do they go?" Well, they come from all over western and central New York, and they go to Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and other prominent wholesale centers. The asters grown in the immediate vicinity of Rochester bring somewhat higher prices than those from other points, possibly because this locality is particularly adapted to growing asters, but more likely the local growers give more care to their plants, thus securing better flowers. Prices for asters ranged last week from 75 cents to $1 per hundred for good stock, and extra fine brought a little more. The retail price runs from Dahlias and gladioli are found in limited quantities—just about enough coming to supply the demand. When sudden calls for these flowers come in, enough can be obtained from local nurserymen to meet all ordinary needs.

Various Notes.

The annual blessing of the graves at Holy Sepulcher cemetery occurred Sunday, September 25. For days previous thousands of flowers were carried to this great cemetery, almost every grave having a small bouquet, while some were literally covered. PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The tropical weather that has prevailed during part of the current week, September 22 to 28 inclusive, has discouraged the equinox and the florists alike. People do not become enthusiastic over flowers when the mercury is doing lofty climbing.

Despite the trying conditions, the market bears up well. There are too many flowers railroaded by the torrid weather and the quality suffers, yet there is no question that the volume of business is increasing week by week.

The dahlia continues the most important flower on the list. The absence of rain and the increase of heat has shortened the stems and opened the flowers too rapidly. The power of the market to absorb dahlias is noteworthy. September 24 more dahlias, and many more, could have been used in certain wholesale houses had they been obtainable in time. The demand is discriminating. Choice varieties, well grown and disbudded, sell in quantity at advanced prices. There is more waste in the poorer varieties and among short-stemmed flowers.

The aster is pretty nearly over and the gladiolus is not much in evidence, though both are obtainable. Roses are increasing in numbers, though the hot weather retards improvement in quality. Violets do not stand the heat at all. Valley is fine, but in oversupply. Easter lilies are in demand. Cattleyas are strengthened by the arrival of labiata, but there is little demand for them. The first new crop sweet peas have come, rather short in stem as yet. Indications point to a heavy supply of sweet peas this fall and winter. Decided improvement is noted in the divine flower; the Wards have been joined in the fancy class by select Enchantress, Beacon, Winsor and O. P. Bassett, while the ordinary class are more numerous and a little longer stemmed. The price holds up well. An overfed market is counterbalanced by the sad havoc wrought by stem-rot. Chrysanthemums have arrived in all colors. Fine Golden Glow are more numerous; white is represented by October Frost, extraordinarily early this season in contrast to the weather, and pink by Marquis Montmort. Their arrival is timely, as but a few days now intervene before the first October weddings. Oak sprays are fine and popular.

The Annual Meeting.

Preparations have been made that will make the annual meeting of the Florists' Club, to be held in Horticultural hall Tuesday evening, October 4, of more than usual interest.

There will be the election of officers to serve for the ensuing year (all the present officers have been renominated without opposition); there will be refreshments to add to the sociability, and, crowning feature of all, the indefatigable J. Otto Thilow, chairman of the essay committee, announces that Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Holland and Its Bulbs." This will be delivered in the lecture room, on the floor above the club room. It will be Mr. Vincent's first appearance before the club and the first time that he has delivered this illustrated lecture. Better come.

The Oak Lane Shop.

Howard W. Garrett has opened his flower shop in Oak Lane, the first of its kind in that pretty suburb of Philadelphia. During opening week Mr. Garrett had his store beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, greens and artificial air plants; the visitors declared it was one of the most attractive shops in the city. Mrs. Garrett entertained all visitors at their home, which was pleasing with the many palms and cut flowers. All the visitors received china swans as a remembrance of the occasion.

in baskets of corresponding color. These, with a few small ferns scattered between, made a most attractive show.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons had a window which was simplicity itself. A large, low basket of Dreer's White dahlia was on the right, Orange King showed up splendidly in the center, with Jack Rose on the left. With some autumn foliage, this dahlia window showed up to advantage.

Frank L. Polites used goldenrod and double and single dahlias to attract passers-by.

H. H. Battles had made one of his large windows into a picture. He had a beautiful wide gold frame to fit the glass, with velvet for the sides, bottom and back. One beautiful white vase was in the center, with just enough Easter lilies to make each one seen. A cattleya was carelessly laid on the vase's pedestal, which added greatly to this charming picture.

The Century Flower Shop window was of filled twig baskets of dahlias, which makes them as attractive as growing plants.

Charles Henry Fox had a unique show, as usual. He had a picnic basket filled with large white grapes and a bottle, with Lyndhurst dahlias in all the nooks. It was most pleasing. A jar of single dahlias set on black velvet behind a mission frame was worthy of notice. One window was entirely devoted to "our way of sending flowers."

One placard giving Mr. Fox's advice about sending flowers said: "Don't send yellow flowers to a blond; they are better suited for a brunette."

The Chestnut street shops favored dahlias and asters for their openings.

Some Dahlia Ideas.

Apropos of the dahlia show of Henry F. Michell Co. this week Maurice Fuld, whose record in Boston has earned him an enviable reputation, was interviewed on the subject. Mr. Fuld's idea is that the Philadelphia dahlia lover is restricted in his varieties by the needs of the flower market. He thinks there are many beautiful but not free flowering or self colored varieties that would be a revelation to dahlia growers here. He hopes to prove that these choice varieties can be grown under climatic and soil conditions existing here and, should they succeed, to introduce them. When asked as to the types of these dahlias Mr. Fuld smilingly replied that those who walk want show dahlias, those who drive want cactus dahlias, while the motorists demand decorative and peony-flowered varieties.

The second annual dahlia show given by the Henry F. Michell Co., 1018 Market street, opened September 27. Two hundred fine flowers of the best varieties were staged, shaped boxwood giving a pretty background. Garden and greenhouse requisites were shown to their best advantage. The company gave prizes to gardeners who wished to exhibit. Robert J. Morrow, gardener to Geo. I. Bodine, of Chestnut Hill, won first for twelve varieties. Wm. Robertson, gardener to J. W. Pepper, won first

This show was advertised in the dailies in order to interest the people in the great garden flower and as a result the firm reports many interested visitors.

Various Notes.

The flowers on view at the dahlia show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society were fine in size and beautiful in color. David Herbert & Sons, Ateo, N. J.; R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., and Wm. F. Bassett, Hammonton, N. J., made large exhibits of beautiful types. The private gardeners had good exhibits, also.

Samuel S. Pennock returned from down east September 22.

Daniel E. Gorman, Williamsport, Pa., took a moving picture view of the floral beauties in the greenhouses of the Robert Craig Co. a few days ago.

Frank J. Farney, of Chicago, is ill with typhoid fever in St. Luke's hospital. He is doing well.

Harry Bayersdorfer and Paul Berkowitz are pleased with the popularity of Imperial chinaware. The new styles and pieces are appreciated.

William J. Baker is enjoying a few days at Gettysburg, where his regiment is renewing old friendships at one of the war's most stirring scenes.

William Berger will open his handsome new store in Germantown October 1, although it will be some days before all is in readiness.

Joseph Josephs, king of the fakers, will enter the storemen's ranks about October 1. Mr. Josephs will open at 1905 Columbia avenue, his City Hall stand remaining in charge of his brother.

Edward Reid left on the midnight train September 23 for two weeks in the south.

Robert Scott & Son are sending some choice blooms of their new yellow rose, Irish Melody, to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. The rose is evidently a hybrid tea, a tint of saffron heightening the golden effect, which contrasts well with the deep green of the foliage. Charles E. Meehan says it is the company's intention to endeavor to place it with a leading retailer in each city, who will push the rose. It is said to be a good winter bloomer and has been largely planted.

The importance of collecting a delinquent account grows every day it remains unpaid

Time wasted on ineffectual methods means—
Not only time lost—but opportunities lost

Favorable opportunities for collection lessen with age. The delinquent's view of his moral obligation lessens in time. Besides, your time wasted in your ineffectual efforts could be put to a better purpose—getting new business.

Spend your gray matter on your business—place delinquents where they belong.

We maintain one big Department for the special handling of delinquents for Florists and Nurserymen

It covers every possible contingency in the field of collections—extends the commercial world over—costs nothing if it fails—never fails if collection can be made.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Last week was a big week in this city, it being the week of the fall festival and industrial exposition, which brought thousands of people into town from all over the state, and while some lines of business reaped a great harvest as a result, the florists, in comparison, did not fare so well. There was not much doing outside of funeral work, while a limited amount of short-stemmed stock was used by some of the exhibitors, and given away as souvenirs.

Stock is coming along finely, however, and crops are good; while not overabundant, still sufficient to keep the customers' wants supplied. Roses of all varieties, American Beauties included, are coming in fine—good size, stem and foliage, but My Maryland, Kaiserin and Rhea Reid appear to be the most preferred varieties.

Carnations, while as yet quite scarce, are of good quality, Enchantress and dark pink sorts being more plentiful than white. The supply of giganteums is also good at present, and the demand keeps up splendidly. The demand for valley is fair.

Various Notes.

The Dayton florists who arranged floats for the opening parade of the festival were the Heiss Co. and the Advance Floral Co., the first named being successful in capturing the third prize, with a float that was artistically decorated with palms and decorative plants, while as a centerpiece they used a large urn filled with various kinds of plants. The float of the Advance Floral Co. was also skillfully arranged, carrying out the idea of a wedding party before the altar.

On the afternoon of September 21 an automobile parade was given, in which some ninety cars took part, all gayly decorated in many different styles and in all kinds of flowers, this being the first parade of its kind in this city. It was quite a success. The Dayton Floral Co. had some part in this, as it was their privilege to decorate a couple of the autos.

Warren G. Matthews had a booth in the Exposition building that attracted much attention. The entire center was formed by an immense bank of palms and bay trees. There were all sorts of flowers, and Mr. Matthews was awarded first premium for his roses, gladioli, cannas and many other flowers. A first prize was also captured by his bridal table, which, furnished complete with service of china and silver, was beautifully decorated with Japanese lilies and valley, and many little butterflies. In addition, there were many distinctive and artistic funeral designs. Mr. Matthews' American Beauty roses were never finer or more beautiful than on this occasion, and they received the first prize in the exhibit. In addition to the floral display, Mr. Matthews had a complete line of florists' supplies, such as ornamental baskets, fern dishes, etc.

GRAND RAPIDS.

The Market.

Weather conditions continue cloudy and warm, but occasionally the thermometer drops sufficiently low at night to give a warning to hurry up with all outdoor stock. All are busy with geranium cuttings and bedding stock of all kinds. Carnations are all housed, and beginning to show that they have taken hold and started to grow. As yet the flower stems are short and the cut far short of meeting the demand. Roses are in fine crop and of good quality, but some mildew an effort made on the part of all exhibitors to have something in the plant line that is really creditable. The exhibitors were Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., Eli Cross, W. Cukerski and H. Danhoff. The hardest competitions and greatest interest centered in the large designs, floral baskets and cut flowers. The awards were as follows:

Floral design, Crabb & Hunter, first, with a large wreath on 4½-foot stand, the wreath being of My Maryland roses and swainsonas, the base of Kaiserin roses; Eli Cross, second, with gates ajar, about three and one-half feet high, done in Killarney, White Killarney and Kaiserin roses, with markings of red carnations; W. L. Cukerski, third, with a 3-foot anchor of white and pink roses and rubrum lilies.

Fancy basket, Crabb & Hunter, first; Eli Cross, second.

Display of roses, Crabb & Hunter, first; Eli Cross, second.

Display of carnations, Eli Cross, first; Crabb & Hunter, second.

Display of gladioli, Eli Cross, first; H. Danhoff, second.

Display of American Beauties, Crabb & Hunter, first; Eli Cross, second.

Display of asters, H. Danhoff, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter, third.

Display of cut cannas, Crabb & Hunter, first; H. Danhoff, second.

In plants Eli Cross took the first prize on general collection of greenhouse plants, coleus, collection of palms, specimen palm, specimen fern, crotons, ferns, and the second prize on fancy caladiums, fuchsias, tuberous-rooted begonias and araucarias.

Crabb & Hunter took second on crotons, flowering abutilons, ferns, single geraniums, Sprenger, plumosus and double geraniums, and first on ornamental-leaved geraniums.

H. Danhoff was awarded first on flowering abutilons, and second on flowering and foliage begonias and Rex begonias.

W. L. Cukerski won second on general collection of greenhouse plants and coleus and first on collection of palms, Asparagus plumosus, fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous-rooted begonias and fuchsias.

Various Notes.

The Greenhouse Vegetable Growers' and Market Gardeners' Association of America, beginning Tuesday, September 27, held a three days' convention in this city. There were exhibits of greenhouse material, heating apparatus and irrigating systems. However, the real, live issue of the convention was a discussion in reference to the discrimination of railroad and express companies. It is expected that as a result an appeal will be made to the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate existing conditions, and if possible remedy them.

VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET.

Recommendations to change the name of the Greenhouse Vegetable Growers' and Market Gardeners' Association of America to the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, to expel members using dishonest selling methods, to further sanitary packing and display and to secure better prices for products made notable the annual address of C. W. Waid, of New Carlisle, Ohio, president of the national organization, at the third yearly convention, which opened at Grand Rapids, Mich., September 27.

To an audience of nearly 200, including a number of women, President Waid said in part: "The man who makes a practice of placing the best vegetables on top of the basket, box or barrel and the inferior stock on the bottom is injuring himself more than others. The association should expel from its membership anyone who follows this harmful and deceitful practice.

"We should demand a fair share of the consumer's dollar. Overproduction and underconsumption are sometimes causes for low prices. But when the consumer pays $1 for something which the grower sells for 30 cents we know there is something wrong. Too many middlemen, dishonest dealers and high transportation rates are some of the reasons for the great difference between the price which the grower gets and that which the consumer pays.

"Better methods in grading and packing are necessary. Cleanliness, uniformity both of package and contents, neatness and attractiveness are often neglected. We have much to learn in this respect. Vegetables displayed in many grocery stores and markets are not only unattractive but unsightly."

The speaker urged the use of better seeds and advocated the association's help in that regard. He also advised legitimate advertising and the betterment of distribution methods. Referring to legislation affecting vegetable growers, President Waid advocated the appointment of a permanent legislative committee. "Fruit growers have been asking help from the agricultural experiment stations," said he, "for years and received it. Vegetable growers have not been as free to ask such help, and they have received according to their requests. This association should encourage vegetable growers to ask for more aid from these stations."

In his annual report Secretary S. W. Severance, of Louisville, said that the director of the 1910 census had agreed to secure statistics relating to the amount of glass used for vegetables in greenhouses throughout the United States, and other data. According to the report, the association has 119 members.

Mayor George E. Ellis delivered the address of welcome, followed by an address by Prof. William R. Lazenby, of the Ohio State Agricultural College at Columbus, who emphasized the independence of the vegetable grower and the honesty and truthfulness induced by tilling the soil.

One of the most important questions will relate to transportation. The northern growers claim that they are discriminated against by the railroads and express companies; that the rates from the south to the north are lower than from the north to the south, and that this discrimination places them at a disadvantage. It is possible the matter will be taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Boston probably will be chosen for the 1911 convention.

Members of the women's auxiliary met in the afternoon in the Library building and discussed various ways of preparing vegetable dishes. Mrs. Sarah Campbell, of Walker township, presided.

Local members of the national association in charge of arrangements for the convention are E. J. Cook, chairman of the committee on hall and exhibit space; George E. Rowe, chairman of the finance committee; Thomas Graham, chairman outdoor trip committee; L. F. Jones, chairman of committee on exhibit of greenhouse and market garden appliances and supplies; Eugene Davis, chairman of committee on fruit, vegetable and flower displays and the woman's auxiliary, and Otto De Jong, chairman reception committee.

Seed Trade News.AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.Pres., E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; First Vice-pres., L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; Sec'y and Treas., C. E.
Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Elliott Nursery Co., Pittsburg, Pa., is preparing to establish a seed department.

A VENTURA grower writes that the Henderson Bush limas are scattering out, entailing an appreciable loss.

THE seed trade at Kansas City is reported increasing at an extremely rapid rate; possibly more rapidly than at points east of the Mississippi.

THE bean growers have not been pleased with the recent weather—too cloudy and cool to assist materially in the maturing of the crop.

VINE seed crops will not be up to the average, for there is a great deal of difference in what different fields, even in the same neighborhood, will turn out.

It is reported ninety per cent of the corn crop in Iowa has been made, with the probability that in other sections an equal proportion of the crop is beyond frost injury.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin, No. 415, entitled "Seed Corn," by C. P. Hartley, physiologist in charge of corn investigations in the Bureau of Plant Industry.

H. FRANK DARROW states that Alfred Emerich, representing Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, is expected to arrive in New York about October 1, on his annual visit to the American seed trade.

LATER reports from the lima bean district of California state that the big rain of September 14 and 15 was followed by good drying weather and the damage to the crop has not been as large as it was feared it might be.

BULB merchants note that an exceptionally large number of small importations are coming in this year, lots of just a few cases consigned through custom house brokers to bulb forcers who never before have made direct importations. It appears that through travelers and by mail orders the Holland exporters added considerably to their list of customers this season.

DUTY ON BULBS.

The Board of General Appraisers, September 22, in a decision by Judge Waite, handed down decisions placing constructions on the provisions in the tariff act of 1909, relating to bulbs of various kinds. The Leonard Seed Co., Vaughan's Seed Store and G. W. Sheldon & Co. appeared as protestants in cases affecting the classification of hyacinth bulbs. The customs authorities had assessed the bulbs under paragraph 263 of the Payne tariff, which provides for "hyacinth, astilbe, dielytra, and lily of the valley clumps." This classification called for a duty of $2.50 per thousand bulbs, whereas the importers contended that the merchandise should be admitted at only 50 cents a thousand under the last clause of the same paragraph as, "all other bulbs cultivated for their flowers or foliage." Judge Waite followed the decision in the Breck case, published in The Review of August 25, and overruled the protests.

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flowering is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year, name on application. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the winter months. Oz. 10 cts., ¼ lb. 40 cts., ½ lb. 60 cts., lb. $1.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.50, lb. $2.50.

Christmas Meteor. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Christmas Captain. Blue and purple. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Florence Denzer. Pure White. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

Greenbrook. White standard, slightly touched with lavender. Large orchid flowering variety. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Le Marquis. This is the same color as Princess of Wales violet; has very large flowers. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Miss Helen M. Gould. White, open flower; standard lilac, marbled. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

filed by William K. Harris, who objected to the imposition of duty on tulip and narcissus bulbs at the rate of $1 per thousand. The importer set up the contention that the bulbs were free of duty under the provision in the new tariff for "bulbs, not edible and not otherwise provided for in this section."

BUSY IN BOSTON.

The seed trade in Boston is busy. Fall business is brisk. The bulb season on florists' orders has been excellent, the advance bookings having been large and the later orders numerous. Of course, deliveries on these are now pretty well over, but the retail bulb season is not yet fairly started. The prospect is that the demand for bulbs for outdoor planting will exceed all and W. W. Rawson & Co, and the consolidation was the most important event which has occurred in the seed trade in Boston in the decade.

The move is looked upon with approval, as giving to Boston a house in every way equipped to take a place as a leader in the seed trade of America. The officers are: President, John Fottler; vice-president, H. E. Fiske; treasurer, W. C. Briggs; secretary, H. W. Rawson. Vice-president Fiske is manager. The understanding is that the business eventually is to be concentrated in the store at 12 and 13 Faneuil Hall Square, formerly the home of the Fiske Seed Co., and before that of W. W. Rawson & Co.

GERMAN GRASS SEEDS.

Writing from Darmstadt, Germany, under date of September 10, A. Le Coq & Co. say that the crops of grass seeds are, on the whole, by no means satisfactory. "The early part of spring was unfavorable to the plants; night frosts in May and the large quantity of rain during summer checked the development of the seeds and have been most deleterious during harvest time." There will be much discolored and light seed. In general, higher prices will rule, especially if the best grades of seeds are required.

burg September 15, Gustav Schott said: "The season so far has been one of great diversity. In its opening stages the weather was characterized by violent extremes and variability. May was untoward, there being a long spell of cold winds and much rain; also June was an exceptionally wet month. The weather improved during the first fortnight of July, but heavy rains again set in afterwards, and from which grass seed crops suffered more or less. Always mention the Florists' Review when writing advertisers.

Most Harrisii bulbs are sold on the strength of what qualities Harrisii possessed long ago. The risk now is entirely too great to bother with them. They may come good but most probably not; that is, they are not apt to average well as compared with other bulbs for less money. It is a certain speculation to buy them. You will find that Lilium Formosum and Giganteum will give much better results for early and late flowering. Why should you buy an uncertain bulb when you can buy for the same money or less a bulb known to be superior in every way to Harrisii?

EVERY QUANTITY

One of the principal departments of our business means more than at first thought might be supposed. There is hardly another item in the florist's business that does about ribbons and chiffons (natural and artificial) of Ribbon values and you may say "loom orders"—manipulation and finish. In ordering our ribbons, we have no off-shades or slow selections.

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

Manufacturers' Prices.

We manufacture many lines of Florists' Supplies, either in our own big building or elsewhere, and all others we handle in such large quantity that we can make our modest profit selling at the prices manufacturers charge smaller buyers. In no case do we permit ourselves to be undersold. The greater part of our business being mail orders for a general line of supplies, we are in a position to defy price competition on the same grade of goods. Outside of price, buyers will appreciate their many advantages in placing their orders all in one place—saving in time, bother and express. We carry so large a stock we can at all times fill all orders promptly.

BUYING BASKETS BY MAIL

Buying Baskets by mail is the simplest and most satisfactory process imaginable. You only have to write us what you want to use the baskets for, what size, shape, style, material, price—anything to let us know your needs—and we send you a collection, as many pieces as you say, or to cost a certain sum of money.

COLLECTIONS AT $5.00, $10.00, $15.00, $20.00, $25.00, $50.00.

You unpack the baskets and look them over, examine them in your own store, judge of quality, style, price. IF NOT IN EVERY WAY SATISFACTORY PACK THEM UP AND SHIP THEM BACK TO US. Or you can send back any part. We take all the risk.

CUT FLOWER AND DESIGN BOXES

We handle so large a line of Cut Flower, Design, Violet and Corrugated Boxes that it would take this entire two-page advertisement to describe and price them all. We believe it is the largest line handled by any one house in America and we know that for quality and price there is nothing to compare with it. About every florist who has looked at our line has recognized that we were offering him "a better box for the same money, or the same box for less money." Send us one of the boxes you now use and get our prices on that quality. We are originators of exclusive styles in Florists' Boxes. For large boxes we can get up a line of Boxes that will be exclusive with them—no one else will have a box like it.

Write us for our Special Proposition on a year's supply of our beautiful Fern Green Felt and White Enamel Boxes. How many do you use?

VIOLET BOXES

Now is the time to order Violet boxes. You will need them in a few weeks and, if you put your violets up using our boxes, it will mean a big increase in your sales.

DUPLEX FOLDING VIOLET BOXES

RIBBONS AND CHIFFONS

QUALITY, COLOR, WIDTH, MATERIAL, PRICE

CHIFFONS

Direct from the looms in France, to you, through us is that devoted to Ribbons and Chiffons. We sell only to florists, and that There is a vast difference between florists' Ribbons and department store list of florists' supplies about which the average florist knows as little as he how could you expect a florist to know textiles?), but we have made a study to us. We do not "job" Ribbons. Our stock is manufactured in what is specially to meet the needs of the florists' trade, in quality, color, texture and time after time you get the same quality every order. Our stock contains as are found in every stock bought as jobs.

ALL RIBBONS AND CHIFFONS AT FIRST HANDS, DIRECT FROM THE MILL

Ribbons of us you get them at the very lowest price at which these qualities can be manufactured and sold. Some ribbons are sent in hands before they get to you. Not so with ribbons bought of Randall. We go to the mill and contract for the manufacture of our business is so large we can manufacture in these large quantities, and we are thereby able to sell ribbons at the prices in quantities have to pay for equal qualities.

Anyone tell you that Randall hasn't got this or that; don't let anyone take your order for something "not to be had elsewhere." Buy every item of florists' Ribbons and Chiffons that anybody offers you. Anything that anyone else shows you, you can place your order to Randall and you will get the goods. A full line of Violet Cords and Ties, all prices.

BUYING RIBBONS BY MAIL

Buying Ribbons and Chiffons by mail is the best and most satisfactory way for any retail florist. All that you have to do is to tell us what widths or colors or prices of stock you need, or, better still, send us a short sample of the Ribbons you want to replace. We make shipment at once. If other goods also are going (either cut flowers or supplies) the Ribbons come to you virtually without cost for express.

WE WANT IT SPECIALLY UNDERSTOOD that all Ribbons and Chiffons ordered of us by mail are sent out with our guarantee of satisfaction. If the Ribbons or Chiffons are not thoroughly satisfactory in quality, color, price and in every other particular, the shipment is to be returned at once and we will pay transportation cost both ways. If any part of the shipment is not as wanted, that part is to be returned.

It is absolutely safe to order of Randall—we take all the risk.

The Market.

Business last week was fairly good. The volume of stock is not as large as it was, owing to the passing of the summer flowers. Fall openings and weddings are taking up many of the blooms.

The roses are becoming finer every day. The cool nights have helped the shipping, and they all arrive in first-class shape. Practically all sizes and varieties find a call. Beauties were especially in request for decorative work.

Some choice carnations are available in the market. This flower seems to be rounding into form sooner than in other years. Dahlias are in oversupply. Easter lilies are offered. Cosmos arrives daily in large quantities. A few single violets were on sale last week.

The supply of green goods is ample, the quality excellent.

Various Notes.

L. H. Kyrk is getting in some fine Maid and Richmond roses and Harrisii lilies.

Chris. Herb, of Mount Healthy, has some excellent young pansy plants. He selects his seed from the largest and best blooms.

Max Rudolph had a large decoration last week, in which he used an especially large number of Beauties, furnished by E. G. Gillett, besides other decorative flowers and material.

Albert Sunderbruch served on the committee at the exposition the day President Taft was here.

Mrs. William Sunderbruch is visiting friends in Minnesota.

Gustav Meier, of the Hyde Park Rose Co., is visiting a brother in Knoxville, Tenn. He is also doing the Appalachian exposition there.

Tom Windram has gone to Grand Rapids, Mich. Later he will join William Murphy at Snow Islands. William Gear and Frank Hunstman have returned from the latter place.

S. D. Green, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week. When he left town his order book was filled. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Moore, of Rushville, Ind.; Miss Carrie Treadway, of Dayton, O., and Ben Thomas, of Augusta, Ky.

C. S. Barnaby, of Columbus, Ind., was a guest at the luncheon to President Taft at the exposition last week.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

At A. C. Gurnee's, where Charles L. Shand is superintendent, the flower garden has been largely increased in size since our previous visit, and the way many of the plants were blooming was a complete revelation to us. One long perennial border had a back row of Aconitum Napellus eight to nine feet high, and Rudbeckia Golden Glow. In front of these came delphiniums and Aconitum bicolor; then came pink and white phloxes and a bordering of giant white candytuft. Sweet peas were clothed with dark green foliage to the ground, and caused President Harry Turner, of the American Sweet Pea Society, to remark that it was at Bar Harbor where the society should meet to see sweet peas. Certainly they are never seen of such quality on the mainland.

Dahlias here were a mass of bloom, one double scarlet show variety, a seedling of Mr. Shand's raising, being a blaze of color. Pentstemons were grand; so were many other annuals. Pretty beds noted were: Swainsona galegifolia alba, edged with Lobelia Emperor William; yellow antirrhinums, edged with Mme. Salleri geraniums; salpiglossis four feet high, with a fringe of the same geranium; Coreopsis coronata, bordered with blue lobelias, and crimson carnations, edged with Little Gem alyssums. Two alyssums were used, but White Fleece was much dwarfer and more compact than Little Gem. In the greenhouses, one house contained a fine crop of melons. Fuchsias, Buddlei Veitchiana, bougainvilleas and other seasonable plants were blooming elsewhere. The condition of everything here reflects great credit on Mr. Shand, who is the secretary of the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society and a hunter of note, as well as a good gardener.

Time would not permit us to visit many other places on this romantic island, that pleasure being left for some future occasion. It does one good to spend a few days here, with the wide-

VICTORIA, B. C.

An influential deputation representative of the florists of the Province has waited on Premier McBride and Deputy Minister W. E. Scott, of the department of agriculture, for the purpose of urging that in the appointment of a new member to fill the existing vacancy on the board of horticulture, a florist should be selected. Several other matters were also informally discussed, and the deputation received an assurance by the premier that the subject matter of their representations would be given early consideration by the minister.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions are improving with a rapid stride. Autumn is evidenced on all sides and the return of the people from the resorts has enlivened things generally. Asters remain the chief flower for general work, yet the recent rains shortened the better grades. Carnations are becoming more plentiful, but are far from the standard. Roses are normal in quantity and quality in spite of mildew, which has been prevalent on all sides and is one of the worst enemies of the rose in this section.

Mums are more abundant, Monrovia and October Frost being added to the list. The market is about cleaned out of large fancy ferns; the unusual demand caused the shortage. Violets have made their appearance, but they are scarce.

Martin Reukauf was in town last week.

The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. was represented at the state fair at Salem last week with a display of field-grown dahlias. N. B. Healy had charge.

Clarke Bros. have just issued their bulb catalogue, containing many new features in plant life. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The weather now shows the approach of the cooler season and stock is generally of better color and substance than it has been. Asters are about out of season and the outside mums are daily becoming more plentiful and cheaper. Speaking of asters, it is with regret that we see their finish for the year, as they have filled in nicely and tided over the time when carnations and roses were scarce and of poor quality. They were better than ever this season and the prices were low enough so that the retailers could handle them to advantage. The chrysanthemum crop, from the present indications, is all right and will help out wonderfully until inside flowers get more plentiful.

If we had more rain and cool nights violets would be abundant, but until these conditions arrive we shall not have these to offer in quantity. The Japanese lilies are almost over and, from what the growers say, they have not been a source of much revenue this season. A few Lilium longiflorum are sent into town and move fairly well.

Other kinds of bulbous stock, such as amaryllis, gladioli, dahlias and other hardy stock, are also showing the lateness of the season and are being superseded by the mums.

Business, except for the ever-present funeral orders, is at a low ebb, but there is some evidence that it will shortly open for the fall season.

The U. S. government has sent blanks to the local dealers, asking for bids to supply plants and seeds for the adornment of the grounds around the new immigrant station at Angel island, San Francisco bay. G.

Serveau Bros. have leased the store in the Roschat-Cordes building on Post street, between Grant avenue and Kearney street, for their downtown flower store. The annual rental is $5,400, and the lease has ten years to run. The intention is to fit the store up in first-class style in white and gold, with large plate mirrors, and open about October 15. The store has a frontage of eighteen feet and a depth of seventy-five feet. It is a high-class retail neighborhood, and the flower store will be in keeping.

Centralia, Ill.—Speaking of their novelties, J. W. Ross says: "We have a new dahlia, Wm. Ross, and a new coleus unnamed. Both are seedlings which originated by chance with us, though the probability is that the coleus is a seedling of perfection. We are looking for a name for it. The dahlia has proved so satisfactory to us in our cut flower trade that we have discarded everything else in its class for it. Next year we will offer it in a general way for the first time and feature both in our spring catalog.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

PETERSON NURSERY, Chicago, reports its peony sales this season as having beaten those of either of the two preceding years.

THE Eucalyptus Growers' Association of Los Angeles, Cal., has begun suit against the Orange County Nursery & Land Co., for $24,180 for alleged breach of contract.

THE Salinas Nursery Co., of Salinas, Cal., has recently started a 17-acre nursery for ornamental stock, roses, etc., and is building two houses, each 24x100, for propagating purposes. O. C. Onken is manager.

GEORGE M. ENMAN, of Sussex, N. B., a traveling man for the Pelham Nursery Co., of 49 Wellington street, east, Toronto, Ont., died suddenly September 18, at South Port, P. E. I. It is thought that death was due to heart failure.

THE Valdesian Nurseries, Bostic, N. C., are erecting large packing sheds adjoining the packing house and basements. The buildings are located within a few hundred yards of the depots of two railroads. Shipping will begin about October 3.

R. A. PEARSON, commissioner of agriculture for the state of New York, has notified all nurserymen within the state of the requirements regarding the inspection of all nursery stock from outside points and is preparing for active operations during the shipping season.

REAPPRAISEMENTS.

The U. S. customs authorities have announced the following reappraisements of interest to the trade:

NURSERY STOCK.—From H. M. Hardyzer, Rotterdam, exported March 25, 1910; entered at New York. File No. 54942. Invoice No. 7388. Findings of Hay, G. A.: Rhododendrons 2 yrs.; entered at .50 florin each. Retinospora obtusa; entered at .60 florin each. Discount 5 per cent. Add packing. No advance.

NURSERY STOCK.—From Jaes Smits, Naarden, exported March 25, 1910; entered at New York. File No. 54902. Invoice No. 7394. Findings of Hay, G. A.: Norway maples 7 to 9 feet; entered at $12 per 100. Ditto 9 to 12 feet; entered at $15 per 100. Andromeda Japonica 8 to 10-inch; entered at $10 per 100. Add packing. No advance.

IMMORTELES.—From Lemoyne Freres, Toulon, exported September 28, 1909; entered at Philadelphia. File No. 53085. Entry No. 22795A. Findings of Board No. 1: Entered at 32 francs, advanced to 34 francs per 100 bunches. Add cases and packing.

every man present. Here is the way the discussion was laid out for the recent annual session of the Texas Nurserymen's Association:

"The Nurseryman's Part in a More Beautiful Texas," Edward W. Knox, of San Antonio.

"Should a Young Man Choose the Nursery Business as an Avocation?" Murray Ramsey, of Austin.

"Is There a Place in the Nursery World for a Woman?" Miss Primie Tucker, of Waxahachie, and Mrs. W. M. Gordon, of Sherman.

"Growing Orange Trees," E. S. Stockwell, of Alvin.

"Magnifying Our Craft," E. W. Kirkpatrick, of McKinney.

"The Fig Industry of Coastwise Texas," R. H. Bushway, of Alcoa.

"Growing Roses in East Texas," Ben Hudnell, of Tyler.

"Ornamentals for the South," R. C. Berekman, of Augusta, Ga.

"What Is Our Supply of Stock for Season of 1910-11?" C. C. Mayhew, of Sherman.

"To What Extent Will the 1910 Peach Crop in East Texas Stimulate Further Orchard Planting in that Section During This Season?" John F. Sneed, of Tyler, M. G. Black, of Mount Pleasant, and A. C. White, of Tyler.

"Perennial Plants; Their Place in Our Ornamental Plantings," J. B. Baker.

"Semi-Tropical Ornamentation for South Texas," Edward Teas, of Houston.

As reported in The Review for September 22, J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, was reelected president. J. S. Kerr, of Sherman, is secretary.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The annual autumn show of the Newport Horticultural Society was this season fully as successful as ever before. It was participated in by the gardeners on most of the large private estates of the neighborhood and the exhibits were in all respects thoroughly creditable. There were few trade exhibits. Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, had a display of aquatics that were a revelation to many visitors. New York, Boston and Philadelphia seed houses contributed many of the special prizes. H. F. Burt, Taunton, Mass., received honorable mention and a gratuity for his collection of dahlias. The table decorations entered in the name of society ladies and arranged by their gardeners were a specially attractive feature. Oscar Schultz won the prize in the class open to commercial florists. The principal exhibitors and prize winners were: James Robertson, gardener for Mrs. T. O. Richardson; James Boyd, gardener for John Jacob Astor; John A. Forbes, gardener for August Belmont; John Urquhart, gardener for R. L. Beeckman; Collin Robertson, gardener for Mrs. Robert Goelet; C. M. Bugholt, gardener for Miss Fanny Foster; John Barron, gardener for Mrs. Delancey Kane; John Mahan, gardener for H. D. Auchincloss; Samuel Speers, gardener for William B. Greene; John Fletcher, gardener for P. W. Hourigan; James Hooper, gardener for Mrs. Theodore K. Gibbs; E. L. Lewis, gardener for Col. Frederick L. Mason; William Gray, gardener to Mrs. William B. Leeds; William J. Matson, gardener to Miss Alice Keteltas; Dennis Shea, gardener to Mrs. Horatius Hathaway; Stewart Ritchie, Hugh S. Meikle, William Kothter, William Miller, Fred S. Fanco, Mrs. William G. Weld, E. S. Manuel, Sisson & Thurston, George S. Stoddard, James McLeish, Samuel Chambers, Mrs. John L. Harrington, Michael McCarthy, Harry V. Mayo, William H. Arnold, W. F. Turner & Co., W. D. Hathaway and Alexander MacLellan.

Marshalltown, Ia.—William H. Ford, who has an establishment at 1400 East Nevada street, recently purchased the C. W. Caton residence at 107 South Third avenue, and intends to build a greenhouse, show house, office and store combined some time this fall or during the winter. A one-story structure, about 20x100 feet, fronting on Third avenue, will be built on the south side of the lot, which has dimensions of 60x180. Mr. Ford eventually intends to occupy the residence.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business in general is improving from day to day, but no doubt the real opening for the coming season will be little felt till after the first frost. There is plenty of stock to fill all orders, but the supply of asters is gradually diminishing and this vacancy is being filled by carnations. The latter are more plentiful at this time than a year ago. In mums, Golden Glow is the only one on this market thus far. There are enough Beauties and other roses to satisfy all, and the same can be said of gladioli.

All the larger department stores had their fall openings last week, and this caused quite a demand for green goods, especially Asparagus plumosus strings.

Various Notes.

James Fox, Jr., who spent last week in the northern woods fishing and hunting, returned Saturday, September 24, and, from reports, had "some" time.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is busy these days, sending bulbs in all directions. This company finds a ready sale for its daily cut of Golden Glow mums, of which there is quite a large, uniform batch.

Currie Bros. had their show window neatly filled with a large assortment of bulbs last week. A reminder of that kind ought to help increase sales.

After nearly two months of remodeling, and with everything in its place, the salesroom of the Holton & Hunkel Co. now presents a more roomy and neat appearance.

Both the August F. Kellner Co. and the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. had their hands full with work for the fall openings last week.

Recent visitors were: E. Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis.; J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan, Wis.; A. Helfrich, of the Burlington Floral Co., Burlington, Wis.

Don't forget the Florists' Club meeting, Thursday, October 6. E. O.

Unionville, O.—At the floral fair, held September 1 in the Congregational church, it was decided by the awarding committee that the exhibit from the Sunshine Flower Gardens outclassed all others.

WAPPINGERS FALLS, N. Y.

Dahlia Show.

The annual dahlia show, held September 23 and 24 in Park hall, under the auspices of the Falls Dahlia Society, was a great success from every point of view. Secretary N. Harold Cotham was elated with its success, especially in consideration of the dry season. The interest taken by local exhibitors is unabated. They staged a fine assortment and excellent blooms.

H. J. Allen, gardener to J. W. Vanderbilt, was judge of cut flowers and had no easy task. Henry Osterhoudt, gardener to W. P. Clyde, is one of the most active workers and the largest exhibitor.

W. W. Rawson, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mme. A. Lumiere, Marguerite Bouchon, Earl of Pembroke and Miss A. Beck were considered the finest in the several classes.

John C. Galvin had a magnificent flaming scarlet cactus seedling, exhibited the second year and a blue ribbon winner. The stock has been sold to the F. R. Pierson Co.

The class calling for dinner table decorations brought out three entries, a lady in each case securing a prize. The tables were quite artistic without any attempt at elaboration.

James Keeley, gardener to Austin L. Sands, had a fine display of mushrooms.

The prizes for asters, offered by the Yuess Gardens Co., of Newburgh, brought out strong competition, Mrs. John Parkman and Robt. E. Coons being winners of first prizes in each entry.

Alex. A. Laub was first in the entry for brides' bouquets.

There were several entries of herbaceous plants. Henry Osterhoudt had nearly 100 varieties, all correctly labeled.

It was agreed by several visitors, who had seen both dahlia shows recently held in New York and Boston, that for general arrangement in staging and variety and general quality of blooms, this show reflected great credit on all concerned. M.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Mr. and Mrs. John G. Heintz and their son, Fred G. Heintz, with the latter's wife and daughter, have been making a two weeks' automobile trip through Ohio.

Support Your Carnation Plants Properly and They Will Support You

Now is the time to put in some of our Carnation Supports, to show you how much more practical, economical and serviceable they are above other makes. Note our reason.
They are easily put up and just as easily taken down, no tangled mess of wire to store away.
They pay for themselves quickly by the additional and superior blooms gained with the proper support of your plants.
Our No. 1 needs no overhead wires or strings except one thin wire which locks on the clamp in the support, holding it upright and in place.
Our No. 2 Support acts as a stool for your plants, allows no sagging. With this support you use overhead wires or strings to keep blooms growing erect. It opens on both sides so all side shoots can be put in easily at all times. Note the low prices.

FLOWER INDUSTRY IN FRANCE.

William D. Hunter, the United States consul at Nice, France, sends to Washington the following on the flower industry in France:

"The Syndicat des Horticulteurs gives the production of flowers in the Nice district in 1909 as 7,550 tons, valued at $5,790,000, the industry employing 18,600 persons. Two special trains transport these flowers daily to the north, especially to Paris, London, Berlin and St. Petersburg, during the season. The flowers are packed in light willow baskets weighing either six and one-half or eleven pounds, and are forwarded to their destination by parcels post. The flowers cultivated for export are chiefly carnations, violets and anemones, while orange blossoms, tuberoses and jasmine are most extensively used in the perfume factories at Grasse. The production of flowers being more remunerative than farming is the principal reason for the large imports of dairy and farm products into Nice.

"In the flower gardens a man earns about 60 cents a day and a woman 40 cents, and in some cases less. A girl flower picker in the district of Grasse earns 20 to 25 cents a day."

DEHYDRATED VEGETABLES.

It is said that the dehydrating of vegetables, or condensing and preserving them by extracting the water from them, is rapidly becoming recognized as a practical idea, though the business is still in its infancy. As one evidence of the progress of the industry, the fact is cited that early in the summer the Mosbæk Greenhouse Co., of Onarga, Ill., shipped six carloads of rhubarb to the American Dehydrating Co., at Waukesha, Wis., to be manufactured into the dried product, which is known as Dehydro. Miss Annabelle Risser, of the Mosbæk Co., recently received a consignment of the rhubarb in its dehydrated state.

By a mechanical process, it is said, which does not rob the rhubarb of any of its flavor, color or valuable natural constituents, all the water is eliminated from it, reducing it almost to a powder. By the addition of water it is ready to cook. The Waukesha firm also puts up spinach and other vegetables in the same manner. Uncle Sam, we are told, is possibly the heaviest user of the dehydrated products, as large quantities are ordered for use in the navy. They are also said to be more available for Polar expeditions than most other forms of canned goods.

The Market.

There was a somewhat better tone to the market last week, and sale was found for nearly everything that came in. The florists are all on the move, and indications point to a great deal of rivalry for the big jobs, the only fear being that the competition will reduce the charges for work almost to cost, as this has happened before.

Greenhouse Heating.

NATURAL GAS FOR FUEL.

In The Review of September 22, E. C., of Illinois, asks for advice on using natural gas for greenhouse heating. Here, in Indiana, twenty-five wells do not supply a town of 2,000, though a pumping station is used to force it into the town. If the wells he speaks of have no water in them, and if there are not too many people to be supplied, probably he would not be troubled with the gas giving out in winter.

A well with eighty pounds of pressure is considered good here, but there are few found that have a pressure of over forty pounds. Several times last winter I had to get up at midnight, go to the regulator, shovel away a snow-drift and pour hot water for an hour, and then I sometimes went back to bed with the gas still out of our stoves.

Gas is furnished to me free of charge, and yet I will not use it hereafter in the greenhouse. Unless the wells are strong and dry, E. C. would better use coal if he is looking for satisfaction.

Russell Fort.

CAR SHORTAGE HAS COME.

A serious shortage in soft coal confronts the west—Chicago in particular—according to wholesale coal dealers, as a result of the coal strike that ended recently. There is only a five days' supply in Chicago at the present time, according to Frank S. Peabody, of the Peabody Coal Co. "This margin of supply is not liable to be increased beyond that point for some time," he said.

William O'Rourke, president of the General Collieries Co., thinks the car situation will be bad on account of the fact that much of the coal being shipped from Illinois has gone to the northwest and it will take some time to get the cars back. "Just at the critical time," he said, "the cars will be scattered around the country. Everybody remembers the trouble we had last winter under normal conditions. If we have an early winter the situation will be that much worse."

What the actual shortage will be is merely guesswork and none of the dealers interviewed would express an opinion as to the amount. "It will largely depend on what the railroads do in the way of furnishing cars to the mines," said T. J. Hudson, Jr., manager of the Southern Illinois Coal Co., when asked as to the probability of a coal famine. "The strike has delayed us six months and it will be hard to overcome this handicap. Most of the mines will be operated all winter, according to present plans, but if the railroads do not supply cars this will not relieve the situation."

COAL.

We are indebted to Smith, Lineaweaver & Co., Philadelphia, for the following report on the coal situation in the east:

"On steam sizes of anthracite coal the market is quite active, the demand having increased materially during September. It will not be long until heat will be required for office buildings and factories, which will increase the demand to a greater extent; the question of the lighting plants and large office buildings is also one to be taken into consideration on account of the days becoming rapidly shorter. The return of householders has largely increased the demand for domestic sizes.

"In bituminous coal prices and demand have been unquestionably better this month. The high grade bituminous coals have been going forward in fair volume throughout the summer, but a heavier tonnage is now moving. Those who are under contract are calling on their people for practically full shipments, and the demand other than that, which is to say for current orders, has increased largely. The price for the lower grades of bituminous coal is also slightly in advance of what it has been

THREE CALIFORNIA HOUSES.

We should be pleased to get information regarding our new heating system, on which we expect to commence work soon. We have three houses, each 23x85 feet and twelve feet high to the ridge, with sixteen inches of glass in the sides. The houses run from north to south and are detached, with a shed running their full width at the north end. We are located in central California, where the temperature never falls lower than 16 degrees above zero and there is plenty of sunshine during the winter months. We have a Kroeschell hot water boiler, nine feet long, thirty-six inches across and containing ten 4-inch flues. It is said to be large enough for good service. We propose to run a 4-inch main, raising this from the top of the boiler to the highest point and then dropping the flows gradually to the farther end of the house, where they would be connected to returns on each side. Would two 2-inch flows overhead, with three 1½-inch returns on each side, be sufficient to heat the houses, maintaining a temperature of 55 degrees?

We wish to connect the feed pipe to a return at the boiler, this pipe coming from a supply tank thirty feet high, with a capacity of 6,000 gallons. Would it be necessary to place a check valve on this pipe? Will a smokestack twelve inches in diameter and thirty feet high be sufficient? The grate area of the boiler is twelve square feet. We shall use wood for fuel, with possibilities of using coal later. H. K.

For the houses described, it will be satisfactory if two 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 1½-inch returns are used, though seven or eight 2-inch returns would be better. The plan of connecting one of the returns with a stand pipe is a good one, but there should be no check valve in the pipe, unless a closed system is desired, in which case a safety valve will also be required.

The size of the smoke flue will depend upon the quality of coal, but for a poor grade of soft coal a 15-inch chimney would be desirable.

SLOW CIRCULATION.

We have two houses, running north and south. Each house is 17x60 feet, ten and one-half feet to the ridge and four feet to the gutter. These houses are boarded at the sides and between the two houses. The west side of the west house contains two feet of glass. The south ends of both houses are glass. The north ends are protected by the potting shed and boiler house. The heating apparatus consists of a No. 4 Humber sectional boiler. The pit is only two and one-half feet deep, on account of water. A 4-inch pipe rises five feet above the boiler and then extends the width of both houses. A 3-inch flow for each house is then taken from this pipe, dropping to within two feet of the floor under each of the outside benches, with a drop of about eleven inches in the sixty feet, returning to the boiler in a 3-inch pipe.

When we fire harder than usual, the water boils out of the expansion tank, making it necessary to fill the boiler every day. The expansion tank is six inches above the highest part of the system. We wish to maintain a temperature of about 50 degrees. Last winter the outside temperature in this part of Utah went down to zero on two occasions. I am desirous of making such changes as will remedy this unsatisfactory condition. Any information you can give will be greatly appreciated. W. H.

When large pipe is used, and especially when the returns are below the top of the heater, the circulation is slow and the trouble reported may be expected. The radiation is slightly deficient for zero weather, but would answer at 10 degrees above zero. The circulation would be improved by running the 3-inch flow pipes on the plates and carrying the returns as high as possible, giving each a slight fall.

BOILER AND PIPING.

Would you please give me some information in regard to the piping of my greenhouse? It runs east and west and is 21x100 feet. The walls are four feet high and are made of cement. There will be no glass in the side walls. The height to the ridge is ten feet. The east gable is of glass. There is an entrance at the north side, in the center. The house is built with a slope of one foot from the east to the west, and the

There should be no difficulty in securing a temperature of 60 degrees by using one 2-inch flow and eight 1 1/4-inch returns. The boiler should have a rating of about 600 square feet of radiation and should be two feet below the returns. Place a coil of four pipes at each side of the north door.

Progress in Greenhouse Building.

In the record of what has been accomplished in the building trades in this city during the year, the improvements and extensions of greenhouses occupy an important place. It has been roughly estimated that $35,000 to $40,000 will have been expended by local florists in that way before the end of the season.

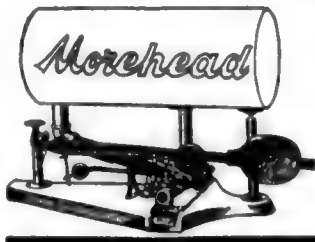

Fred L. Lainson, 1309 Canning street, is spending about $12,000 on his plant. He has added to his area under glass from 35,000 to 40,000 square feet, giving him a total of about 100,000 square feet. He has also remodeled his heating plant and added a new boiler.

Henry Meyer, 321 Benton street, has torn down his greenhouses, rebuilt them, enlarged them, and modernized the entire plant. The improvements will cost several thousand dollars.

L. H. Reams, 500 North Twenty-sixth street, has enlarged and improved his plant at a cost of several thousand dollars.

Thomas Capel, 1270 East Pierce street, has built a new boiler room and installed a new boiler, besides adding largely to his area under glass. He estimates that his expenditure for these improvements will not be less than $5,000.

The Herman Bros. Co. has been extending its greenhouses near the Union Pacific transfer for several years, and this year is doing but little in this line, having brought its facilities up to a point where they are ample for the present demands of the trade. The firm expects, however, to make further extensions next year.

J. F. Wilcox has this year spent about $10,000 in further extending the area of his already large range. The business was established by Mr. Wilcox twenty-five years ago, and has grown from a small beginning until it now has 650,000 square feet of space under glass cover, a total of 150,000 square feet having been added during the present season.

Until recently J. F. Wilcox has had sole supervision of the business. Now he is just completing an organization whereby his five sons will be associated with him and given a direct interest in the business, and the firm will be known hereafter as J. F. Wilcox & Sons. Roy Wilcox, the eldest son, is the only son having active interest heretofore, and for the last two years he has relieved his father of the entire management of the wholesale, retail, sales and office departments.

In speaking of the recent enlargements, Mr. Wilcox said: "The improvements and additions made this year, while extensive, are only the beginning of what the firm expects to do in the next few years. Last year a large tract of land was bought near Lake Manawa, and plans are under contemplation for another large plant in that part of the city. Under the new organization we expect to double our capacity within the next few years."

MADISON, N. J.

The Whippany River Club having been burned, our flower show progress was halted for awhile. As soon as the club house was burned, Dr. D. H. McAlpin, who has been the moving spirit of our big show, was on hand and largely through his efforts and those of our dear old friend, Robt. D. Foote, we secured the club house of the Morris Country Golf Club. This is on the main street from Morristown to Madison, with plenty of room for all exhibits, within 100 yards of Convent Station, with a switch almost up to the building for unloading exhibits from a distance. The chairman of the flower show committee, Wm. Duckham, deserves great credit for his strenuous work in securing new quarters, and so does Manager Herrington. From now on he will have his bit to do.

We expect one of the greatest shows ever held in the eastern states. The C. S. A. holding the show here with us is a drawing card. We will be hosts this time, and all the societies which honor us by coming will be our guests. Our schedule was unavoidably delayed, but everybody will have it in a day or two.

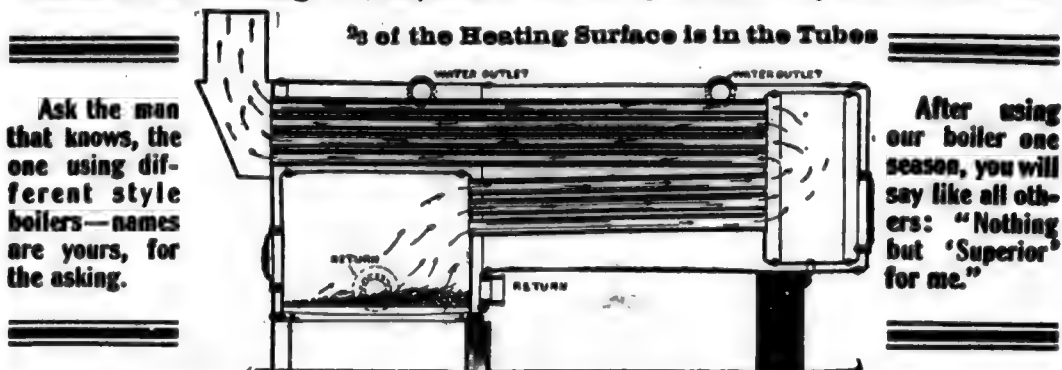

E. R.

Warren, O.—Adgate & Son have about closed a deal whereby they will purchase the old Christy home, on East Market street. The new owners propose to remodel the dwelling for use as a retail and wholesale flower store.

That Burnham and Its Workings.

Many boilers are built a good deal on the tea kettle plan, and use only such heat as comes in direct contact with the surfaces immediately over the fire—the rest of the heat shoots out the chimney in dollar bunches.

The Burnham has the tea kettle and other forms of Cast Iron Greenhouse Boilers "beaten to a stand still." In the first place, the Burnham surfaces directly over the hottest part of the fire are not flat like the kettle, but made in a series of deep waterways with fire channels on each side, making more than three times as much surface for the heat to strike.

Then after leaving the channels, the hot gases pass up the side flue openings and travel back and forth three times between still more waterways that grab practically all the available heat that is left.

Such a boiler squeezes every available bit of heat out of every pound of coal burned. Where is there another such greenhouse boiler? Send for prices.

The Market.

Business assumed its old-time form last week, wedding decorations, department store openings and funerals comprising the better part of the work. We have had an unusually warm fall so far this year, having no frost to date. The department stores have been advertising Boston ferns for sale at 10 cents and 12½ cents each, and have been flooding the market with them.

Cut flowers have been a trifle scarce, possibly due to the increase in trade, and on some days the home market was entirely cleaned out of roses. Beauties and Killarneys are coming in good color and quality. Asters are not in over-supply, but dahlias are still to be had in quantities. A few mums are already seen, but they have not yet cut much of a figure. Orchids are scarce.

Various Notes.

Frank Soule, with John Rieman for the last three years, leaves for Tacoma, Wash., this week. Reinhold Shilling, who has had charge of the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co.'s branch at the New York store, is to fill Mr. Soule's place at John Rieman's.

Alfred Brandt has completed his new residence and expects to move in this week.

C. R. Green, with A. Wiegand & Sons, spent a few days in Chicago this week.

Bertermann Bros.' auto, which has been in the paint shop for the last month, is on duty again, looking much better for the change.

Fred Hukreide sprained his ankle last week, and is experiencing considerable difficulty in getting around.

J. J. Karins, representing H. A. Dreer, was a visitor last week.

Robert H. Good, with the A. L. Randall Co., spent a day in the city last week.

Albert Pettit has been sending in some good asters. H. L. W.

91-93 CHAMBERS ST. NEW YORK

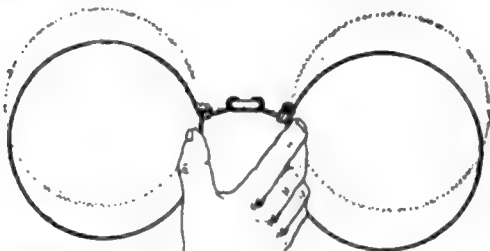

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

In the Florists' Exchange of last week, our Trouble Man began his series of 6 talks on Heating Troubles (the kind of troubles you want to keep out of). In these talks he tells his troubles in a half humorous way that only a Scotchman can. In fact, altho you have troubles of your own, you enjoy hearing about his troubles.

Get last week's Exchange and read the trouble he had with "Old Man Crusty," who wanted to buy too small a boiler.

This week's talk is about his friend "Know-it-all," who came within an ace of buying too large a boiler.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The eighth annual exhibition of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' hall September 15 to 17, and was a great success in every way. Among the many beautiful displays, the gladioli and palms by Peter Murray, of Fairhaven, deserve special mention. Another exceptionally fine display was that by Richard Parkinson, 219 Shawmut avenue, consisting of 275 dahlia blooms in great variety. Mr. Parkinson also made a splendid showing in the big exhibit of 100 distinct blooms, but on account of a mistake in having two flowers alike there was no alternative but to disqualify his exhibit. W. D. Hathaway secured the first prize.

A full list of the awards is as follows:

Dahlias, show and fancy, W. D. Hathaway, first.

Twelve varieties, J. P. Bodge, Fall River, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Fifty cactus, W. D. Hathaway, first; George H. Walker, North Dighton, second; J. P. Bodge, third.

Twenty-five varieties, cactus, J. P. Bodge, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve pompons, W. H. Richardson, first.

Twenty-five decorative, W. D. Hathaway, first; George H. Walker, second.

Twelve decorative, W. D. Hathaway, first; J. P. Bodge, second.

Peony, twelve blooms, Richard Parkinson, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Peony, six blooms, Richard Parkinson, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Seedlings, an excellent white pompon shown by W. H. Richardson, awarded first-class certificate.

One long table containing display by Richard Parkinson, George H. Walker and W. D. Hathaway, making an exhibition of 300 blooms, 100 for each contestant. W. D. Hathaway, first; George H. Walker, second; Richard Parkinson's exhibit disqualified on account of two flowers alike being shown.

Vase of twelve yellow and show dahlias, Thomas M. Stetson, William Keith gardener, first. Twelve yellow decorative, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

Pink, W. D. Hathaway, first.

Twelve decorative, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

White peony, Mrs. George Fuller, Acushnet, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twenty-four blooms, single, Mrs. George Fuller, first.

Pompons, W. D. Hathaway, first.

Seedlings, W. H. Richardson, honorable mention.

Best vase of salvia, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

Best vase of cannas, J. H. McVicker, first.

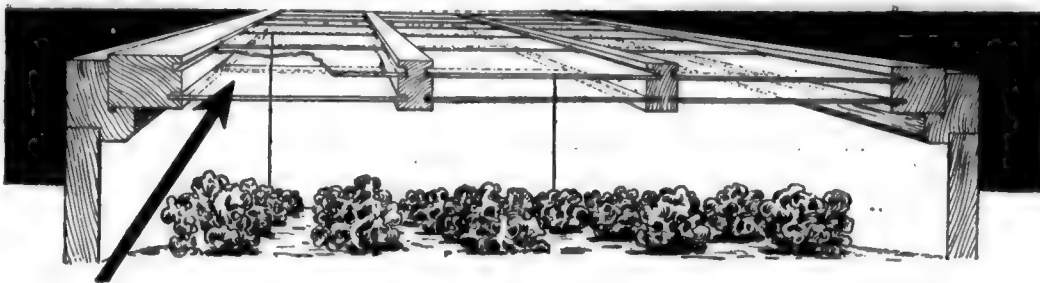

Foliage and flowering plants, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

Cycas, specimen plant, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

Lycopodium, Thomas M. Stetson, first.

In addition to the above there were many entries in the amateur class, making a total of ninety-five in all. The judges were Arthur Fewkes, of Natick, and Elliott H. Weber, of this city.

Glens Falls, N. Y.—H. L. Crandell has returned from an auto trip to Chicago, coming back via Rochester. It was his first trip in several years to the western metropolis, and the sights he saw and the wonderful progress made during that time were most interesting to him.

CROSS SECTION OF A SUNLIGHT DOUBLE GLASS SASH ON A SUNLIGHT FRAME

Here is the sash you don't have to cover

Two layers of glass instead of one. A $\frac{3}{8}$ inch layer of dry, still air between—a perfect non-conductor—a transparent blanket—takes the place of mats and boards.

The saving in time and labor

Sunlight Double Glass Sash will pay for themselves in a single season. They never need covering—and therefore save half the time you have to give to single glass sash in covering and uncovering—in watching them on frosty nights.

Earlier, Stockier Plants

Under Sunlight Double Glass Sash the plants get all the light all the time. Every grower will see at once the value of the earlier, stockier plants resulting. Your crops will mature weeks ahead of the grower's who uses single glass sash—and you will get the benefit of the high prices in the early market.

Here is What One Florist Says:

"The 100 sash which I bought of you have given greatest possible satisfaction. We got to 4 degrees above zero and I found my flowers untouched."

Sunlight Double Glass Sash Co.

Moreover, I am daily making 25 per cent more than others who have greenhouses. My double glass sash will pay for themselves the first year. O. W. D'ALCORN, Congress Heights, D. C."

No Tanks Needed

The Standard Pumping Engine may be used to pump directly into the pipe line system without the use of storage tanks of any kind, and it can also be used with any other kind of elevated or air pressure systems. A few cents' worth of gasoline each day will give you plenty of water at high pressure every day of the year.

Our catalogue will get you to thinking about it. Sent on request.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

A CHANTECLER LUNCHEON.

This is chantecler year and, where Alice blue was the popular color last season, everything now must be in red to be strictly up-to-date.

With chantecler luncheons the fad of the day, the accompanying illustration will be of special interest, showing what a resourceful retailer, and one not located in a big city at that, did when called upon with such an order. The flowers were red carnations, with ribbons to match. As it was a long table, instead of round, with seats for fourteen persons, it was necessary to do more than devise a centerpiece. The place of honor was occupied by a real live rooster, a bantam quite tame, in a wire cage, the top of which was decorated with carnations, red ribbon and a toy-store rooster. As the florist said, "You can imagine the excitement when the live rooster actually crowded." At each end of the table there was a chip market basket, barnyard style, filled with red carnations, with huge bows of ribbon on the handle. The favors were the chantecler fans, which are to be had in any of the novelty stores, and the place cards also carried a red representation of a rooster. In this instance strawberries, nice ripe red ones, were the first course, and they were served in tiny market baskets, each one with a bow of red ribbon on the handle.

This decoration was devised by Edward Bell, of the Bell Floral Co., Franklin, Pa., who finds that it pays for the florist who wishes to make a name for himself in his community to study out such schemes as this and have them ready at the tip of his tongue when his customer gives him the chance to offer suggestions.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS.

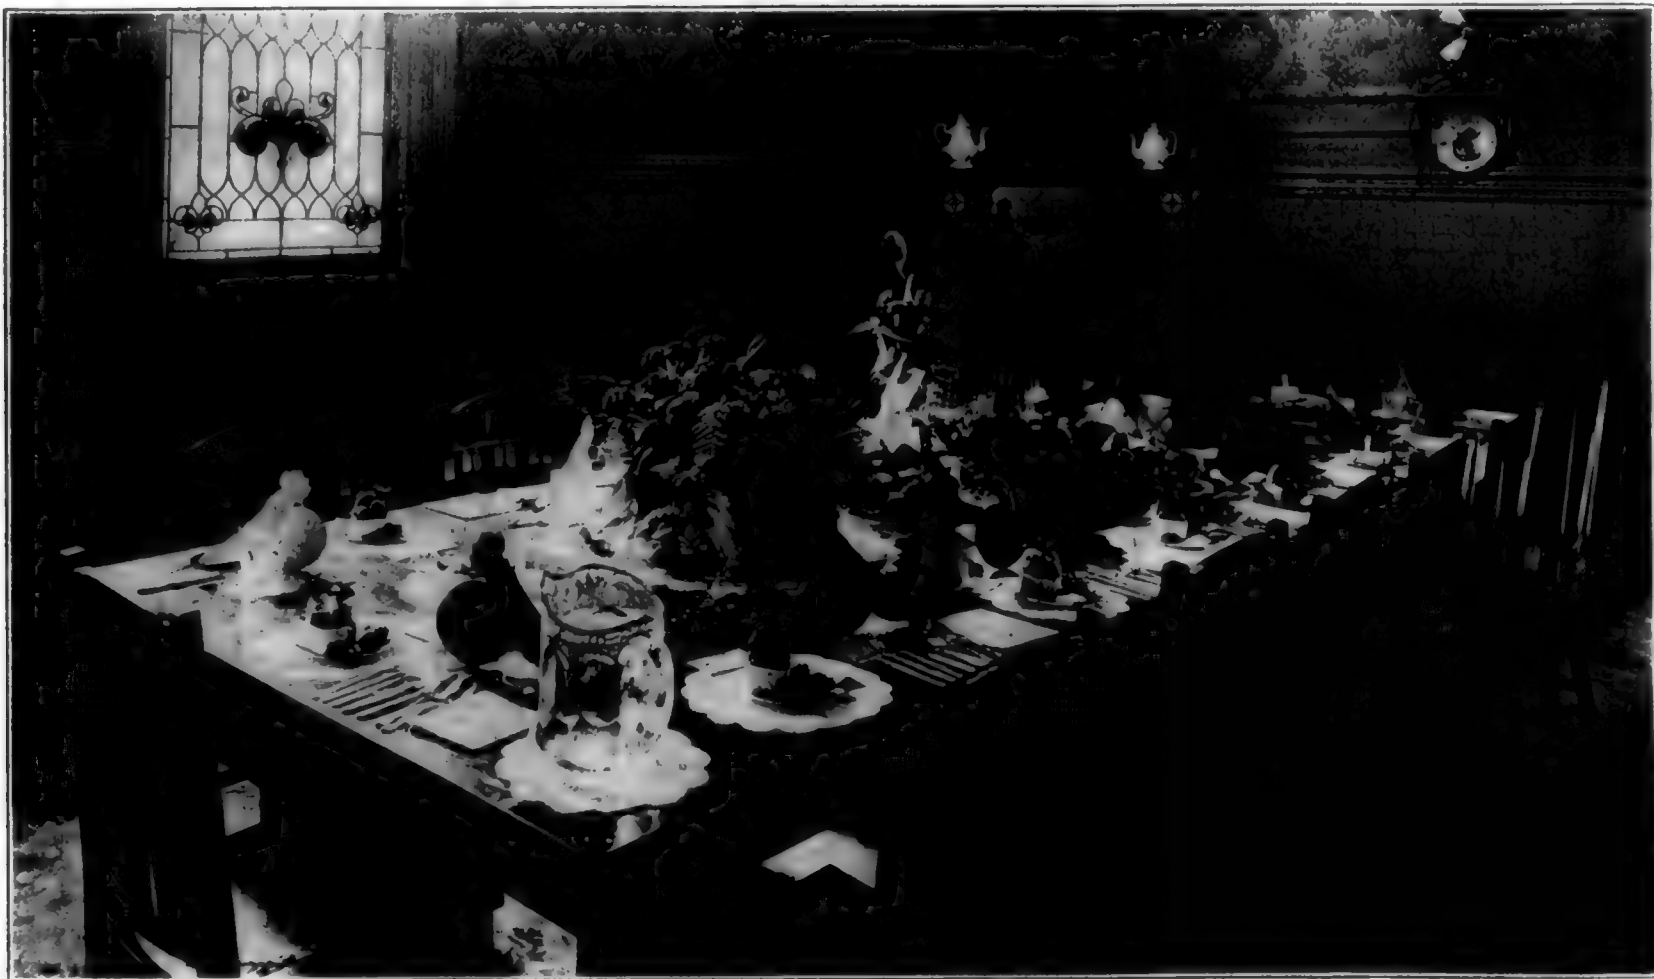

Following the lead of a Chicago retail florist who gives rather more thought to the merchandizing end of the business than does the average proprietor of a high class store, a considerable number of retailers now are inviting their patrons to open charge accounts. It used to be the retailers' complaint that too large a proportion of the business was charged, that payments were too infrequent and that the effort should be toward cash sales. The thinking sales manager has discovered the fallacy of this idea. He has found that the effort should be to gain a large number of patrons who will carry what are known as accommodation accounts, these calling for monthly settlement, and the courtesy being granted only to those who recognize its value.

Such charge accounts go a long way toward increasing sales. A large part of the flowers sent out by any first-class store are delivered to someone other than the purchaser, hence C. O. D.

sales are largely eliminated and the telephone trade is cut down to the minimum unless the sales are charged. If the flower buyer can telephone his order, his calling cards being kept in stock by the retailer, so that the customer has nothing further to do except settle the monthly bill, his purchases will be much more frequent than if he were obliged to come in person to give his order. Anybody can see that.

The department stores of the better class have accustomed large numbers of people to the use of these accommodation accounts. They have done two things which can be turned to the profit of the florist. In the first place, they do not open these accounts without first investigating the standing of the prospective customer. They do not grant credit merely because it is asked. The identity of the customer is fully gone into. Where the facts are not known, he usually is asked to state his business connections and to give references, which the department store invariably looks up before delivering any goods to be charged. Having acted favorably on the application for an accommodation account, the department store sees to it that the customer understands that monthly settlement is required. A statement is mailed regularly on the first day of each month and if the check is not received by a certain date a polite jogger is sent. As practically everyone who would have use for a charge account with a florist already has one at the leading department store, the florist has the advantage of the educational work the larger establishment has done.

The credit men of the department stores are quick to avail themselves of any avenue of information, and they will reciprocate. One question which every florist should put to any applicant for an accommodation account is this: At what department store do you have an account? With this information, ask

In this instance strawberries, nice ripe red ones, were the first course, and they were served in tiny market baskets, each one with a bow of red ribbon on the handle.

This decoration was devised by Edward Bell, of the Bell Floral Co., Franklin, Pa., who finds that it pays for the florist who wishes to make a name for himself in his community to study out such schemes as this and have them ready at the tip of his tongue when his customer gives him the chance to offer suggestions.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS.

Following the lead of a Chicago retail florist who gives rather more thought to the merchandizing end of the business than does the average proprietor of a high class store, a considerable number of retailers now are inviting their patrons to open charge accounts. It used to be the retailers' complaint that too large a proportion of the business was charged, that payments were too infrequent and that the effort should be toward cash sales. The thinking sales manager has discovered the fallacy of this idea. He has found that the effort should be to gain a large number of patrons who will carry what are known as accommodation accounts, these calling for monthly settlement, and the courtesy being granted only to those who recognize its value.

Such charge accounts go a long way toward increasing sales. A large part of the flowers sent out by any first-class store are delivered to someone other than the purchaser, hence C. O. D.

sales are largely eliminated and the telephone trade is cut down to the minimum unless the sales are charged. If the flower buyer can telephone his order, his calling cards being kept in stock by the retailer, so that the customer has nothing further to do except settle the monthly bill, his purchases will be much more frequent than if he were obliged to come in person to give his order. Anybody can see that.

The department stores of the better class have accustomed large numbers of people to the use of these accommodation accounts. They have done two things which can be turned to the profit of the florist. In the first place, they do not open these accounts without first investigating the standing of the prospective customer. They do not grant credit merely because it is asked. The identity of the customer is fully gone into. Where the facts are not known, he usually is asked to state his business connections and to give references, which the department store invariably looks up before delivering any goods to be charged. Having acted favorably on the application for an accommodation account, the department store sees to it that the customer understands that monthly settlement is required. A statement is mailed regularly on the first day of each month and if the check is not received by a certain date a polite jogger is sent. As practically everyone who would have use for a charge account with a florist already has one at the leading department store, the florist has the advantage of the educational work the larger establishment has done.

The credit men of the department stores are quick to avail themselves of any avenue of information, and they will reciprocate. One question which every florist should put to any applicant for an accommodation account is this: At what department store do you have an account? With this information, ask the department store credit man how promptly the account is paid and you have about all the information that is required with the average customer.

Carrying a large number of accommodation accounts means that the florist must learn modern business methods and must practice them assiduously; neglect would be fatal.

MRS. FREEMAN'S STORE.

The store at 336 Superior street, Toledo, O., the interior of which is shown in the illustration, was owned until recently by George Heintz, but was purchased September 6 by Mrs. J. B. Freeman, who had been connected with the establishment for thirty years. Thirty years—though one eye-witness avers that if so much time has really elapsed, Mrs. Freeman must surely have begun the work at the time children ordinarily start in kindergarten, as is evidenced by the brisk and blithe way in which she takes orders over two telephones, meanwhile fashioning sprays with one hand and wreaths with the other, waiting on customers and directing half a dozen employees, all at once!

Founded at a time when flowers were comparatively little used, even for the most pretentious social functions, the business of which Mrs. Freeman is now proprietor has kept pace with the growth of the city and with the increasing popularity of florists' wares. "We began our career," she says, "in Frank Cheney's drug store, at the corner of Summit and Adams streets. In those days the florists' business in Toledo was modest, indeed. There were brilliant entertainments, of course—perhaps more in proportion to the population than we have now. But, except for large affairs, flowers were not much used. As for funerals, those were the days of the long crepe door-piece and nobody sent flowers except relatives and near friends of the family. Still, we did well and considered the business thriving. Our next move was to Miss Lena Johnson's millinery store—millinery and flowers seemed to harmonize well—and later we were in Brooks' candy store—what a lot of faces and reminiscences those names will recall to the older residents of Toledo! From the candy store we went to Miss Fell's, from there to Teipel's and some years later came to our present location."

Mrs. Freeman, it is said, has more than ordinary skill as a decorator and designer, combining an artistic taste for color effects with a thorough knowledge of people, their position and what it demands. Her chief decorator, Earl Metz, formerly of Chicago, is considered one of the best in his line, and Harry Turvey, her second assistant, has been in Europe all summer, studying foreign methods and getting new ideas.

Mr. Heintz, her former employer, joins heartily in the general expression of the wish that she may prosper in the management of her business. He is well pleased that Mrs. Freeman should succeed him in the business he has built up, and with which his name has been so long connected, and has always hoped that when he was ready to retire she might carry on the enterprise in which he feels much natural pride. Mr. Heintz will spend the winter in California.

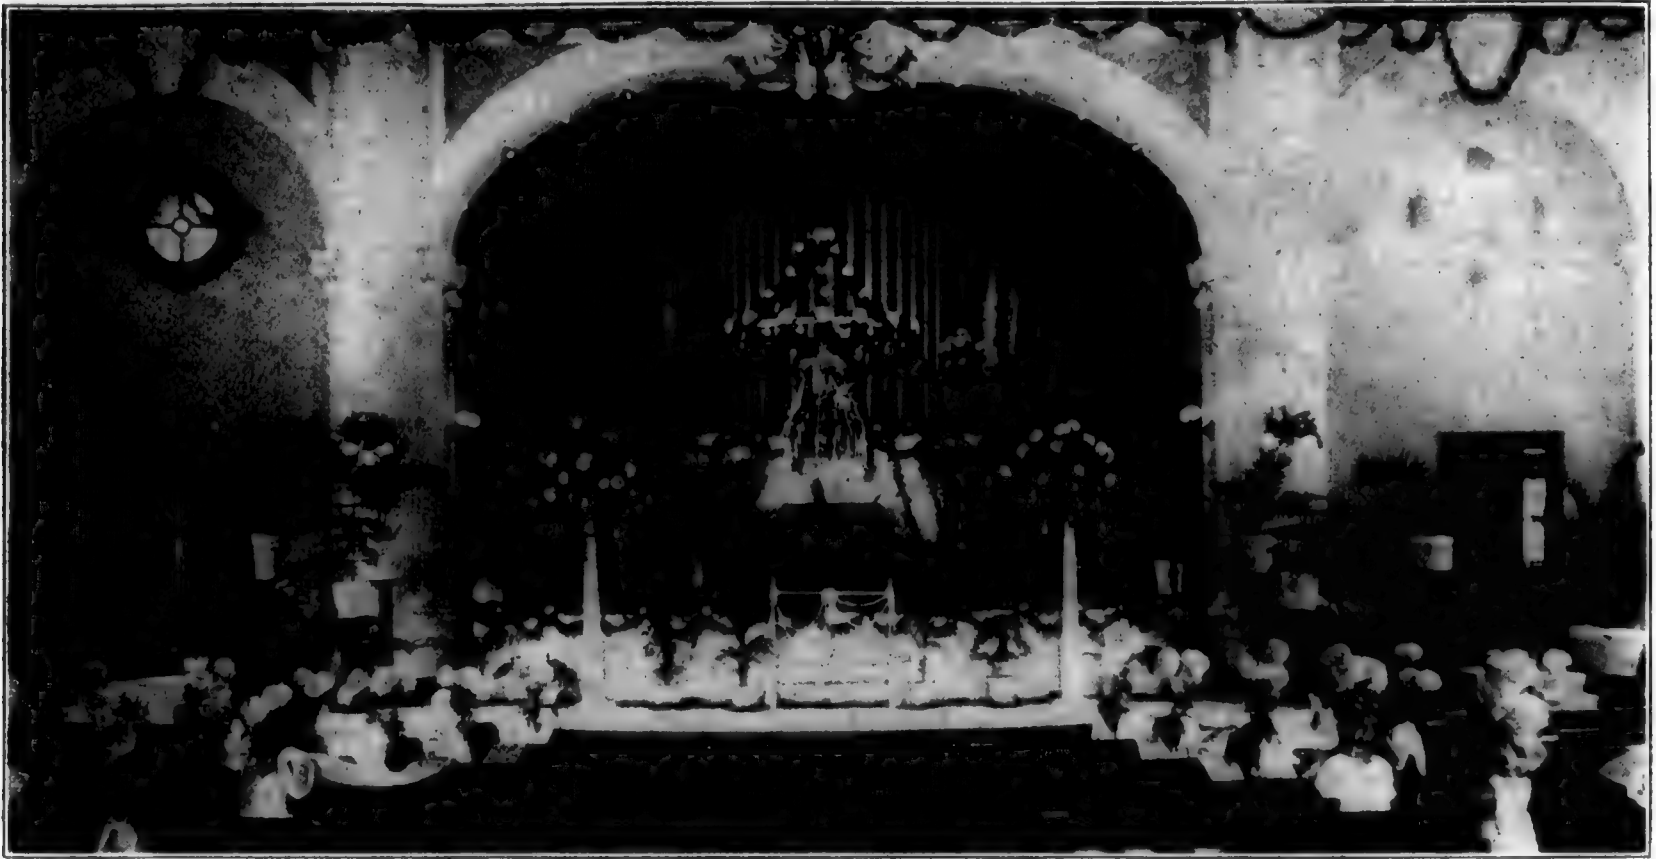

WESTERN WEDDINGS.

One of the most apparent ways in which the florists' business is developing is the call for elaborate decorations, which now have become quite numerous, even in the smaller cities. 'Way out in the southwest, which many people still think of as the home of the cowboy, the rapidity with which the country has been settled up, and the prosperity which has come to those who reside in the towns, has brought the florist many an order which would be considered an excellent one in a metropolis. Texarkana, as you might know by the name, is on the borderland in that it sits where Arkansas enfolds the northeast corner of Texas, but this is now a most flourishing agricultural region and Texarkana is a bustling city, with several busy florists. The accompanying decoration is one designed for a church wedding by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ardis, of the Stegall Floral Co. They operate a downtown store on State Line avenue, with greenhouses on Garland avenue, and the picture shows that the people of Texarkana know what is fitting for the wedding of the daughter of a leading citizen.

The fact that this is a chrysanthemum decoration makes the picture especially appropriate for publication at this time, when chrysanthemums are once more abundant in wholesale markets.

OPERATE VENTS BY POWER.

A Few Suggestions.

Here is a suggestion for some greenhouse man of an inventive turn or some of the greenhouse building companies.

It has often occurred to me that a whole range of carnation or rose houses takes a good deal of the time of the best growers in looking after the thermometers and ventilators, and with the best of care no two section men will have their vents just the same at the same time or keep the temperature and ventilation as nearly correct as might be done by other methods in the cases where all the houses in the section require the same amount of ventilation.

Now, why not have one temperature man look after the entire establishment and do nothing else? Also, why not have a system of raising all the ventilators in any one range of houses at once?

Several Methods Possible.

For instance, a line shaft with a worm at each ventilating machine to engage the cogs just the same as the hand wheel does on the present machines. Or, possibly by using compressed air to open and close the vents by having a cylinder at each machine similar to those used by the automatic ventilating machines. In the latter case the compressed air could be supplied through an underground pipe to each machine on the line at the same time and the entire range opened or closed at once by the engineer in the main building or boiler room. Electrical and thermostatic bells and indicators in the engineer's room would show the temperature and announce changes in different sections.

Some Advantages.

The temperature man could learn the fine points more thoroughly and quickly than the many growers now doing this work on the larger places. He would learn to operate according to the sun, wind and outside temperature and in a surprisingly accurate manner, leaving the growers all their time to other routine work, with no worry whatever about even temperature and ventilation.

The ventilating machines could be arranged so that any one machine could be disconnected from the system and worked by hand in case that house had different plants or needed a different temperature than other houses of the same group.

On many of the larger and up-to-date ranges, such a system, if perfected, would be quickly adopted. Let the inventors forget the airship and give us something of practical value.

VIOLETS IN SOUTHERN TEXAS.

What variety of violets thrives best outdoors in this climate—the climate of the Texas coast country? Will the Prince of Wales withstand the summers here? Would you advise the use of northern-grown plants? H. & L.

The hardiest of the violets in such a climate, and the one that is best able to withstand the hot, dry summers, is the Viola odorata. The varieties of this species produce strong runners, which quickly make tap roots and soon densely cover the bed with young, hardy plants. I have seen neglected beds, directly in the hot sun, during the summer withstand the severest Texas droughts, but naturally such beds cannot be expected to produce a great quantity of flowers per plant. The best way is to plant the violets in shaded positions on the north side of houses, or on lawns where they are more or less sheltered from the noonday sun by trees. Violets of this species bloom in Texas during the entire spring, frequently also during the fall and winter, and can also stand with impunity any frosts that are liable to occur in that latitude.

TRANSPLANTING HOLLYHOCKS.

About what date in the fall should hollyhocks be transplanted, in central Indiana? R. F.

Hollyhocks should be transplanted as soon as possible, and not later than the middle of October in your latitude. As they frequently winter-kill outdoors, especially when there is little snow on the ground, they should be carefully mulched after sharp, frosty weather sets in, using some light, dry material, like pine needles, hay or forest leaves. It is a good plan to transplant a number into coldframes, rather than risk all outdoors.

CYCLAMENS.

I am growing some cyclamens and want them to be in bloom for Christmas. They are beginning to flower now. Should they flower this early? If not, can I have them in bloom when wanted? I live in the northern part of South Carolina.

J. M. J.

Cyclamens often start to throw a few flowers thus early. It will be best to pick off the earliest blooms. Grow the plants cool and well aired. In your latitude they would be better in a coldframe a month longer, placing them in a light house with an average night temperature of 48 degrees about the middle of October. In this house they should be in good bloom for the holidays.

CYANIDE ON ROSES.

Will you kindly state how much potassium cyanide and sulphuric acid to use for 1,000 cubic feet of air space, to be used in a house of roses? What damage is likely to occur to foliage and flower petals if used too strong? I understand the dangers accompanying this gas, and its method of applying, for thrips, aphids, etc. Should the earthenware pots or jars be kept, say, three or four feet away from the plants to prevent the fumes from scorching? R. J. P.

The recipe for using cyanide of potassium is as follows, for 1,000 cubic feet of air space:

Water, six ounces.

Sulphuric acid, four ounces.

Cyanide of potassium, ninety-eight per cent pure, two ounces.

The jars should be kept as far as possible from the rose plants, to avoid burning, and the atmosphere, foliage, etc., should be as dry as possible.

This dose should be repeated every forty-eight hours to exterminate the newly hatched insects, until the house is perfectly free from them.

BABY DOROTHY FOR EASTER.

What time should I bring in my Baby Dorothy roses to have them in bloom for Easter? My house is kept at 50 degrees during the night and 60 degrees during the day. J. C. E.

Start the plants about the end of January in an average night temperature of 50 degrees. In this heat they will flower nicely for Easter, which in 1911 comes as late as April 16.

POT ROSES FOR WINTER.

Would it pay me to take up a few plants of Gruss an Teplitz and Prince Camille de Rohan now to force for this winter, and could I have them in flower by the first week in January? If so, would you kindly let me know how to proceed with them to get them in flower by that time? J. W. C.

Plants, no matter whether grown in pots or dug up and potted, cannot be ripened, rested and forced by the first weeks in January. Gruss an Teplitz is a hybrid tea, which is one of the best perpetual blooming roses we have. On the other hand, Prince Camille de Rohan is a hybrid perpetual. You could lift and pot these roses about the last part of October, but it would be inadvisable to start them before the end of the year, which would mean March before they bloomed. With stock grown in pots through the summer, you could advance this date somewhat, but it is no easy matter to flower any of these roses before February. If you want pot roses early in January, it would be better to grow some teas. C. W.

OUTDOOR ROSES FOR CUTTING.

Can roses be grown outdoors in summer for cut flowers and be salable, in central Michigan? If so, what would be the best varieties to grow? What size of plants should be used and how far apart should they be? H. H. G.

In addition to the hybrid perpetual roses, whose flowering season is mostly in June, the hybrid tea roses are well adapted for cutting and are persistent bloomers. Flowers of fine, salable quality are produced on them, if they are given a rather light but rich soil and are mulched or watered during dry weather. A few desirable varieties for cutting, among hybrid teas, are: Caroline Testout, satiny rose; Killarney, bright pink; White Killarney, white, delicately suffused with pink; Mme. Abel Chatenay, carmine rose, shaded salmon; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, pearly white; Mme. Ravary, nankeen yellow; Viscountess Folkestone, creamy pink; Souvenir du President Carnot, soft rose; Mildred Grant, blush white, shaded pink; Bessie Brown, creamy white; Richmond, crimson scarlet.

Other perpetual blooming roses which it would pay you to grow for cutting, are: Maman Cochet, pink; Maman Cochet, white; Gruss an Teplitz, rich scarlet; Clothilde Soupert, French white, pinkish in center; Hermosa, pink; Francisca Kruger, coppery yellow, and Souvenir de Catherine Guillot, coppery carmine, shaded orange. The last two are pure-blood teas and more tender than the hybrid teas. All the foregoing roses, in your climate, would be better lifted and stored in a cold-frame just before the ground freezes, planting them out as early in the spring as the soil will allow. They could be buried outdoors and some protection laid over them, if no frames are at disposal.

A few hybrid perpetuals which are free blooming and would be hardy in your latitude, are: Mrs. John Laing, Mrs. R. G. Sharman Crawford, Gen. Jacqueminot, Ulrich Brunner, Frau Karl Druschki, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Prince Camille de Rohan, Suzanna de Rodocanachi and Captain Hayward. Plants that are field-grown and budded or grafted on the brier or Manetti stock are much better than those on their own roots in your climate.

Allow hybrid teas and tea roses eighteen inches of space each way and hybrid perpetuals twenty-four to thirty inches. C. W.

SENSATIONAL NEW SWEET PEA.

Mr. Bland, secretary of the Horticultural Society at Vancouver, B. C., has raised a new sweet pea that observers there regard as little short of sensational. It has been named Jimmie Bland. The flower shown in the accompanying illustration was one of a vase of twelve spikes exhibited at the recent flower show of the Victoria Horticultural Society. The color is pure white, Etta Dyke being the seed parent, crossed with an unknown variety. The spike shown is little more than an average, several others of the vase being equally good.

The following measurements are caliper, no stretching being done to in any way increase the size, the measurements being taken as the flower stood in the vase. The lower flower was two and one-half inches across; second from the bottom, facing the camera, two and five-eighths inches; second from the top, two and one-fourth inches. The petals were thick and heavy. The stem was thirteen inches long to the base of the bottom flower and as big and rigid as an average carnation stem. Single seeds were planted from pots March 1. The plants in September were ten feet high and three feet in diameter and vigorous almost past belief. Seeds are being sent to the trial grounds of the National Sweet Pea Society of England. The variety will be disseminated under the auspices of the British society. This variety created a sensation in a show where there was a collection of sweet peas I never saw approached.

At this exhibition there was little to interest the average florist, outside of the sweet peas, but these were simply magnificent. Some 300 varieties were shown, all of them the latest and best. All stems under twelve inches clear of the flowers were barred, fourteen inches being near the average. Few, if any, were shown with less than four flowers. I saw several with five flowers and was told of one with six perfect blooms to one stem, but I did not see it. There was quite a collection of vases and bowls, many of the bunches being two to three feet in diameter, some of them of the most delicate colors, but they would have to be seen to be appreciated.

For fear this may be taken as an exaggeration, I would say that Victoria has by far the most perfect climatic conditions for sweet pea growing I ever saw. It is never extremely hot and the nights are invariably quite cool. There is no rain for three or four months during the summer, but the proximity of the Pacific ocean keeps the air moist at all times. For sweet peas and English holly this city cannot be approached.

I add a list of the most serviceable colors and varieties from the collection shown. Many of the most delicate colors, such as Mrs. Chas. Breadmore, even here have to be protected from the sun by cheesecloth to keep from scalding:

White—Etta Dyke.

Pale pink—Mrs. Harcastle Sykes, Elsie Herbert.

Pink—Audrey Crier.

Rose-pink—Helen Lewis.

Orange—Earl Spencer; this variety needs protection from the sun.

Pale lavender—Asta Ohn.

Lavender—Mrs. Chas. Foster.

Red—Improved Geo. Stark.

Maroon—Othello. F. B.

STEM-ROT OF SWEET PEAS.

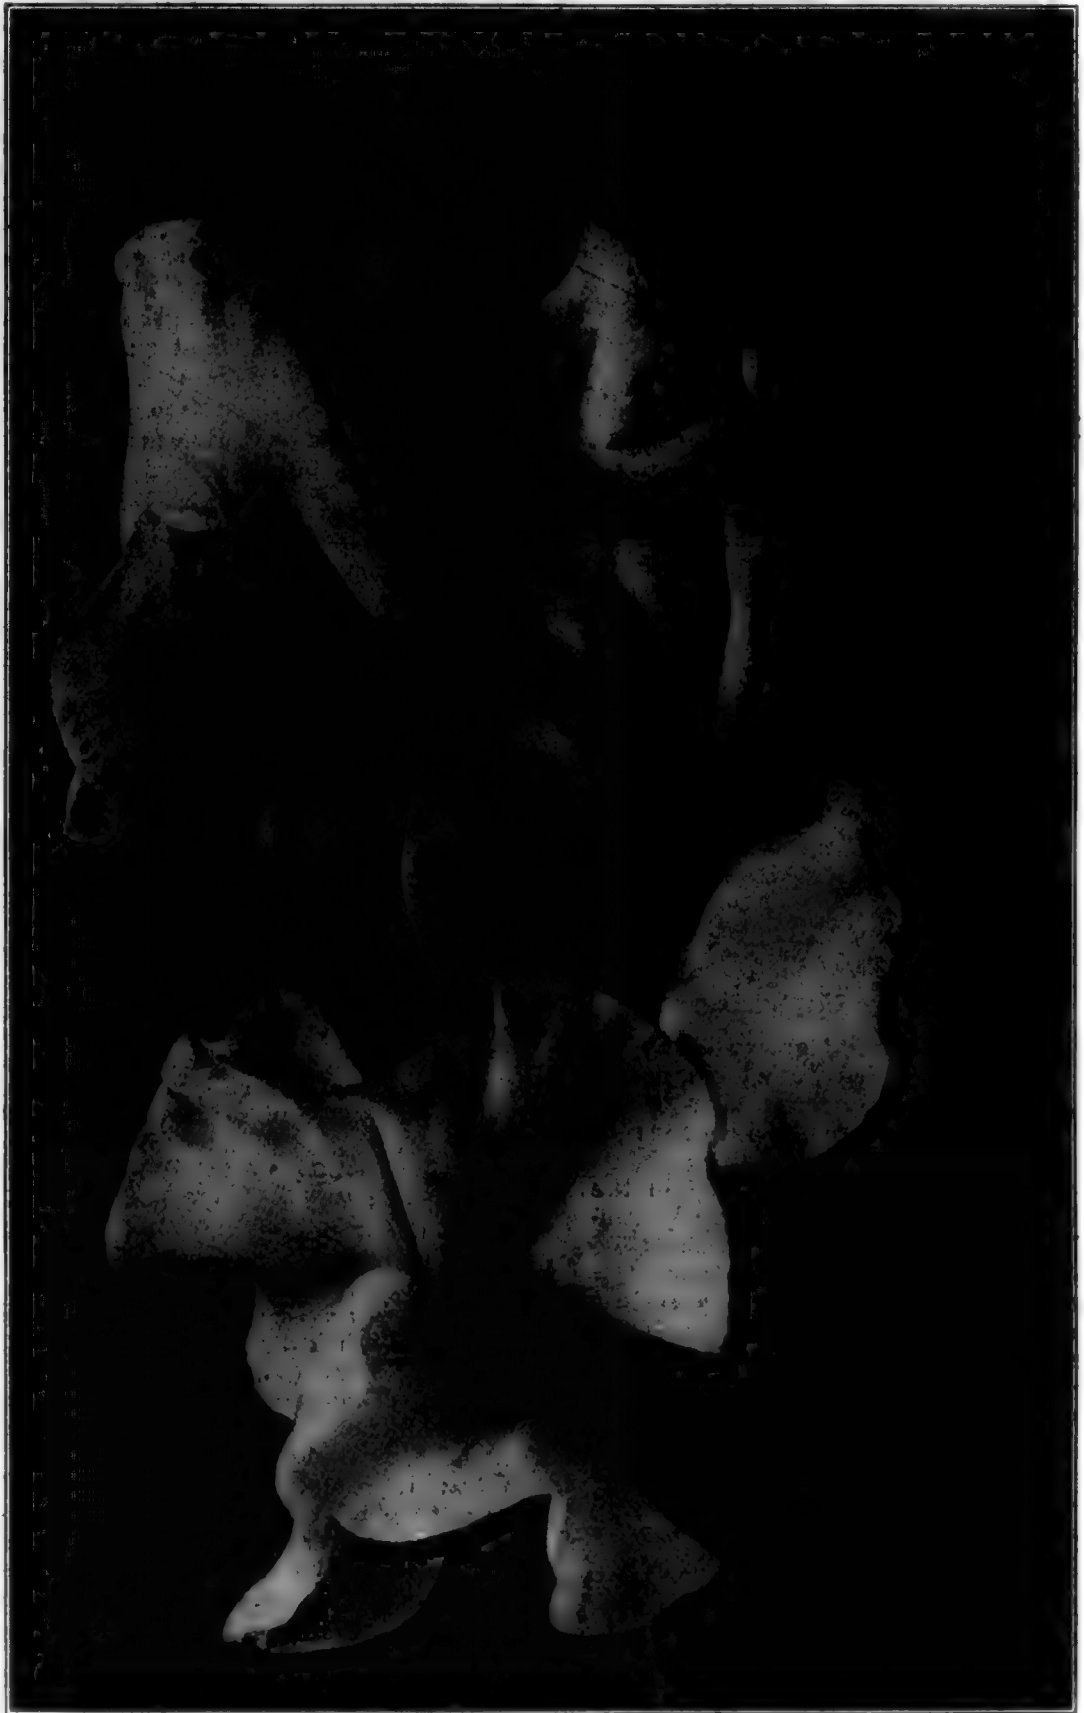

Will you tell me what is the matter with the enclosed sweet pea vine? They started well and grew finely for a while. Is it damping off or something else? C. P.

The sample shoot forwarded appears to have succumbed to stem-rot. The cause is difficult to determine without knowing more about the growing conditions. Earthing up the plants when growing is one fertile cause of stem-rot. Allowing the plants to remain too thick in the rows will frequently cause it. Let your plants be four to six inches apart and not any closer. Keep the surface soil well stirred. Keep the house well aired and the average night temperature as near 48 degrees as possible. Sourness or acidity of the soil will cause wholesale dying off of the plants. Liming would correct this in some measure, but not as well now as if applied some months ago. C. W.

SWEET PEAS NOT BRANCHING.

I want to ask why my greenhouse sweet peas send up a stalk two or three feet high, and do not stool out. The stalks are spindly. The soil is all right. I have never had them act this way before. B. B. C.

Provided your plants are not set too thickly in the row—a reasonable distance would be four to six inches between each plant—there is no good reason why they should not branch a little later on. Frequently our plants are much higher than two or three feet before they commence branching. If your house is light, the rows not too close together, and other conditions right, your peas will probably stool out all right before long. Do not let the night temperature run over 46 to 48 degrees, in order to keep the plants stocky, and give plenty of fresh air. C. W.

FIELD-GROWN HYDRANGEAS.

I expect to receive some of the field-grown Thomas Hogg hydrangeas a little later and wish to know whether I should keep them on the dry side, to allow the leaves to drop off before starting them for winter. L. A. G.

You should secure and pot the hydrangeas as soon as possible. Soak them well with water to settle the soil about the roots. Stand them outdoors as late as possible. Hydrangeas will stand considerable frost when the wood is well ripened and nutty brown in color, but when green and soft, with leaves of a dark green color, a few degrees of frost will kill the buds and considerable of the shoots. It is a good plan to run them a little dry, in order to ripen the wood, and they should be allowed to become moderately dry when stored previous to being forced. I have found that a temperature of 20 degrees above zero will completely blacken all the foliage and destroy much of the growth while in a soft state, but 25 degrees above zero will not hurt them. C. W.

NAME OF PLANT.

I am sending you under separate cover a cutting of a plant of which I should like to know the name. No one here seems to know what it is.

J. H. T.

Abel Chatenay, carmine rose, shaded salmon; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, pearly white; Mme. Ravary, nankeen yellow; Viscountess Folkestone, creamy pink; Souvenir du President Carnot, soft rose; Mildred Grant, blush white, shaded pink; Bessie Brown, creamy white; Richmond, crimson scarlet.

Other perpetual blooming roses which it would pay you to grow for cutting, are: Maman Cochet, pink; Maman Cochet, white; Gruss an Teplitz, rich scarlet; Clothilde Soupert, French white, pinkish in center; Hermosa, pink; Francisca Kruger, coppery yellow, and Souvenir de Catherine Guillot, coppery carmine, shaded orange. The last two are pure-blood teas and more tender than the hybrid teas. All the foregoing roses, in your climate, would be better lifted and stored in a cold-frame just before the ground freezes, planting them out as early in the spring as the soil will allow. They could be buried outdoors and some protection laid over them, if no frames are at disposal.

A few hybrid perpetuals which are free blooming and would be hardy in your latitude, are: Mrs. John Laing, Mrs. R. G. Sharman Crawford, Gen. Jacqueminot, Ulrich Brunner, Frau Karl Drusehki, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Prince Camille de Rohan, Suzanna de Rodocanachi and Captain Hayward. Plants that are field-grown and budded or grafted on the brier or Manetti stock are much better than those on their own roots in your climate.

Allow hybrid teas and tea roses eighteen inches of space each way and hybrid perpetuals twenty-four to thirty inches.

SENSATIONAL NEW SWEET PEA.

Mr. Bland, secretary of the Horticultural Society at Vancouver, B. C., has raised a new sweet pea that observers there regard as little short of sensational. It has been named Jimmie Bland. The flower shown in the accompanying illustration was one of a vase of twelve spikes exhibited at the recent flower show of the Victoria Horticultural Society. The color is pure white, Etta Dyke being the seed parent, crossed with an unknown variety. The spike shown is little more than an average, several others of the vase being equally good.

The following measurements are caliper, no stretching being done to in any way increase the size, the measurements being taken as the flower stood in the vase. The lower flower was two and one-half inches across; second from the bottom, facing the camera, two and five-eighths inches; second from the top, two and one-fourth inches. The petals were thick and heavy. The stem was thirteen inches long to the base of the bottom flower and as big and rigid as an average carnation stem. Single seeds were planted from pots March 1. The plants in September were ten feet high and three feet in diameter and vigorous almost past belief. Seeds are being sent to the trial grounds of the National Sweet Pea Society of England. The variety will be disseminated under the auspices of the British society. This variety created a sensation in a show where there was a collection of sweet peas I never saw approached.

At this exhibition there was little to interest the average florist, outside of the sweet peas, but these were simply magnificent. Some 300 varieties were shown, all of them the latest and best. All stems under twelve inches clear of the flowers were barred, fourteen inches being near the average. Few, if any, were shown with less than four flowers. I saw several with five flowers and was told of one with six perfect blooms to one stem, but I did not see it. There was quite a collection of vases and bowls, many of the bunches being two to three feet in diameter, some of them of the most delicate colors, but they would have to be seen to be appreciated.

For fear this may be taken as an exaggeration, I would say that Victoria has by far the most perfect climatic conditions for sweet pea growing I ever saw. It is never extremely hot and the nights are invariably quite cool. There is no rain for three or four months during the summer, but the proximity of the Pacific ocean keeps the air moist at all times. For sweet peas and English holly this city cannot be approached.

I add a list of the most serviceable colors and varieties from the collection shown. Many of the most delicate colors, such as Mrs. Chas. Breadmore, even here have to be protected from the sun by cheesecloth to keep from scalding:

White—Etta Dyke.

Pale pink—Mrs. Harcastle Sykes, Elsie Herbert.

Pink—Audrey Crier.

Rose-pink—Helen Lewis.

Orange—Earl Spencer; this variety needs protection from the sun.

Pale lavender—Asta Ohn.

Lavender—Mrs. Chas. Foster.

Red—Improved Geo. Stark.

Maroon—Othello.

STEM-ROT OF SWEET PEAS.

Will you tell me what is the matter with the enclosed sweet pea vine? They started well and grew finely for a while. Is it damping off or something else?

C. P.

The sample shoot forwarded appears to have succumbed to stem-rot. The cause is difficult to determine without knowing more about the growing conditions. Earthing up the plants when growing is one fertile cause of stem-rot. Allowing the plants to remain too thick in the rows will frequently cause it. Let your plants be four to six inches apart and not any closer. Keep the surface soil well stirred. Keep the house well aired and the average night temperature as near 48 degrees as possible. Sourness or acidity of the soil will cause wholesale dying off of the plants. Liming would correct this in some measure, but not as well now as if applied some months ago.

C. W.

SWEET PEAS NOT BRANCHING.

I want to ask why my greenhouse sweet peas send up a stalk two or three feet high, and do not stool out. The stalks are spindly. The soil is all right. I have never had them act this way before.

B. B. C.

Provided your plants are not set too thickly in the row—a reasonable distance would be four to six inches between each plant—there is no good reason why they should not branch a little later on. Frequently our plants are much higher than two or three feet before they commence branching. If your house is light, the rows not too close together, and other conditions right, your peas will probably stool out all right before long. Do not let the night temperature run over 46 to 48 degrees, in order to keep the plants stocky, and give plenty of fresh air.

FIELD-GROWN HYDRANGEAS.

I expect to receive some of the field-grown Thomas Hogg hydrangeas a little later and wish to know whether I should keep them on the dry side, to allow the leaves to drop off before starting them for winter.

L. A. G.

You should secure and pot the hydrangeas as soon as possible. Soak them well with water to settle the soil about the roots. Stand them outdoors as late as possible. Hydrangeas will stand considerable frost when the wood is well ripened and nutty brown in color, but when green and soft, with leaves of a dark green color, a few degrees of frost will kill the buds and considerable of the shoots. It is a good plan to run them a little dry, in order to ripen the wood, and they should be allowed to become moderately dry when stored previous to being forced. I have found that a temperature of 20 degrees above zero will completely blacken all the foliage and destroy much of the growth while in a soft state, but 25 degrees above zero will not hurt them.

C. W.

NAME OF PLANT.

I am sending you under separate cover a cutting of a plant of which I should like to know the name. No one here seems to know what it is.

J. H. T.

The name of the plant sent is Galium Sylvestre.

CLIMBING HYDRANGEAS.

Are Hydrangea scandens and Schizophragma hydrangeoides of any value, and are they hardy? H. H. G.

Hydrangea scandens and Schizophragma hydrangeoides are similar plants. It takes a year or two to get them established, after which they make rapid growth. It is best to let them climb up a tree on which the trunk is clear for a considerable height, and allow the plant to grow as it chooses. These are beautiful climbers and when once seen in good flower they are not easily forgotten. They have withstood a minimum temperature of 20 degrees below zero near Boston, Mass., and some fine specimens are to be seen in New England, although some writers have claimed they would not stand a lower temperature than zero. W. C.

"SALAAM."

W. Blenthgen, Jr., is well known in the New York market, where he makes his headquarters with Moore, Hentz & Nash, and anyone passing his place at Hudson Heights, N. J., would know that he is a Masonic enthusiast as well as a skillful florist. The accompanying illustration shows Mr. Blenthgen, the ends of some of his greenhouses and the Masonic design in carpet bedding which attracts much attention and illustrates how any grower with a small piece of ground can assert his individuality and make his place known to all who see it.

SCOVELL'S HYDRANGEA.

The accompanying illustrations show a plant of Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora growing on the grounds of W. C. Scovell, a well-known florist at Malta, O. One of the pictures shows the plant in bloom, with Mr. Scovell standing near. The other picture illustrates Mr. Scovell's method of pruning. The plant is ten years old, but he cuts back to but one bud each year. That this gives him good results is shown by the appearance of the plant in bloom.

DUTCH BULBS

Don't Delay Unpacking.

The bulk of Holland grown bulbs are now to hand, or will be within a few days. Probably quite a number of the earlier kinds are already in boxes or pans and making roots, but the average grower, who does not specialize in the purely forcing varieties, is usually content to get his bulbs in the soil sometime during the month of October. It is not a good plan to delay planting. The sooner the bulbs are in the soil the better they will do. They speedily lose their strength if left for weeks tied up in paper bags in a dry shed or store-room. If they cannot be planted as soon as received, they can at least be unpacked, laid out in boxes and stood in a cool, dry room until wanted.

Tulips.

La Reine (Queen Victoria) remains the single tulip par excellence for forcing purposes, more of it being grown for market, probably, than of all other forcing tulips combined. Those who managed to secure their bulbs extra early may secure some flowers for Christmas, but, as a rule, stems are pretty short on them. The color of this tulip, when forced, is particularly pleasing, the light rose shading over the white being just the color the public likes. This tulip makes a smaller bulb than the majority, and a flat 4x12x24 will hold 100 comfortably.

Yellow Prince is the best of the inexpensive yellows, and is sweetly scented; King of the Yellows costs a trifle more, but is a fine, deep, pure yellow. In orange shades Thomas Moore is excellent. It also possesses a delightful odor.

Cottage Maid retains its popularity as a moderate-priced pink. Those fine varieties, Pink Beauty and Queen of the Netherlands, are coming down in price, and by another season should be within everyone's reach. They are by all odds the finest of their color.

Proserpine, carmine rose, will not stand hard forcing; it makes a big flower and lasts well. Reds are in less demand than other colors. Cramoise Brilliant, deep carmine, and Couleur Cardinal, rich crimson, are both good and moderate in price. The well known Keizerkroon, scarlet and yellow, is one of the showiest and most charming of early tulips.

The number of useful double commercial tulips is limited. Of these Crown of Gold (Couronne d'Or) and Murillo, blush, shading to rose, are in most demand. Yellow Tournesol, yellow, shaded orange, is another kind worthy of a trial. If high colors are in demand, Imperator rubrorum, scarlet, and Rex rubrorum, crimson scarlet, are the best to grow. The double varieties cannot be forced as early as the singles.

When it comes to really long and strong-stemmed tulips, the later flowering sorts are far the best. A few of these are worth growing in flats for the last cutting. They can, with proper retarding quarters, be held back until the end of April or even later. The following varieties are all first-class sellers and reasonable in price: Bouton d'Or, yellow; Gesneriana major, brilliant scarlet; Gesneriana lutea, superb yellow; Picotee, white, penciled cerise; Golden Crown, yellow, edged red; White Swan, pure white. Among the Darwins one or two superb sorts are: Glow, crimson scarlet; Gretchen, soft blush; Clara Butt, beautiful salmon pink; Farncombe Sanders, orange scarlet; May Queen, rosy pink.

Hyacinths.

The demand for hyacinths is not what it used to be. Neither for forcing nor bedding do they compare with tulips or narcissi in popularity. The Hollanders are keenly alive to the decline in sales of hyacinth bulbs, and have been trying to repopularize them by planting beds of them quite thickly for mass effects at various exhibitions. Where flowers for cutting only are wanted, second size bulbs answer perfectly well, while the miniature size seems to be growing in favor year by year. As a general rule, named kinds are not used, but where some fine spikes are wanted the following are strictly first-class sorts to grow: Gertrude, pink; Garibaldi, carmine; King of the Blues, dark blue; Queen of the Blues, light blue; Czar Peter, porcelain blue; La Grandessè, pure white; Baroness Van Thuyll, white, primrose eye; City of Haarlem, deep yellow. The foregoing are all single varieties. The doubles are of little value for either forcing or bedding.

Blenthgen's Masonic Bedding.

W. C. Scovell and His Hydrangea.

For culture in glasses, select the finest bulbs. Use soft water and place a piece of charcoal in it to keep it fresh. Do not let the water quite touch the bulb at any time. If at any time the water shows signs of stagnation, change it at once. After the bulbs are placed in the glasses, the latter should be stood in a cool, dark and dry place until the roots have pushed to the bottom of the glasses and the tops are grown a couple of inches. Then they can gradually be inured to light.

Narcissi.

Both narcissi and tulips are adaptable to culture both in pans and flats. Many country florists have a considerable sale for pans of each, and practically all the narcissi do well treated in this way. The big bulbed sorts, like Emperor, Victoria and Empress, need larger pans than the other sorts. They will do in 8-inch size, but 10-inch will serve them much better. There are a few narcissi which no florist can well get along without. Of these Golden Spur ranks high, it being the finest of the large golden yellow trumpet sorts for forcing. Trumpet Major or single Von Sion comes in somewhat earlier. Emperor, with its heavy foliage and immense flowers, forces well and makes a good successional variety. Victoria, with its clear yellow trumpet and white perianth, is the finest of the bicolor section. This variety does splendidly in pans, and the stems, being extra stiff, do not fall over, as some kinds are liable to do. Empress is a much better sort than Horsfieldii, but not equal to Victoria.

In double varieties Von Sion is always in great demand. It is difficult to understand why it is so popular, as the flower is coarse as compared with the singles, but it ships well and withstands rough usage. A much finer double narcissus and one rarely seen in the market is the Sulphur or Silver Phoenix, with pale, creamy white, fragrant flowers.

This cannot be forced as early, however, as the old Von Sion.

The medium and short trumpet narcissi, although much more graceful than the large trumpet section, have not hitherto attained popularity commercially. Sir Watkin, Barri conspicuus, Leedsii Mrs. Langtry, Leedsii Duchess of Brabant, poeticus and poeticus ornatus are a reliable half dozen to grow. The last named can be had in flower in January. The old poeticus, if kept back, sells finely at Easter. All the narcissi succeed well in flats containing four inches of soil.

Spanish Irises.

There are no finer flowers in late winter and spring than the Spanish irises, and they find a ready sale in all the large flower markets. In addition to their value for forcing, they should be far more planted outdoors, as their hardiness is unquestioned and their low price places them within everyone's reach. These irises must not be covered with soil or ashes, as with tulips or hyacinths. They want light all the time, and to grow them successfully a maximum night temperature of 50 degrees should not be exceeded. One or two splendid sorts are: Chrysolora and Cajanus, yellow; Louise, pale blue, charming; Thunderbolt, dark bronze; British Queen, pure white; Leonidas, violet blue.

Gladioli.

In addition to the large flowered gladioli, such as America, May and Augusta, the smaller flowered nanus and Colvillei sections contain many beautiful varieties, which, having small bulbs, can be readily grown and forced in flats, like the Spanish irises. The oldest and best known sort well adaptable for early forcing is Colvillei The Bride. Blushing Bride, with crimson blotches, has much greater vigor than The Bride. Probably the finest of all the nanus or cardinalis section is Peach Blossom, of a delicate pink shade. Other desirable varieties are: Mathilde, white, shaded with lavender; General Scott, light rose, red blotches; Ackermanii, salmon, flaked carmine, very showy and a strong grower; Salmon Queen, salmon pink. Bulbs of these gladioli are now procurable and should be started at once to secure an early crop.

Miscellaneous.

A few other bulbous subjects, which wide-awake florists find some money in growing, are: Anemone coronaria The Bride, A. fulgens, Turban and French ranunculi; each of these families wants cool treatment, such as a violet house affords, and can be grown in flats or planted in the beds, particularly if there are gaps which need filling. Ixias succeed best in rather small pans in a cool greenhouse, as do babianas, sparaxis and tritonias. All these bulbs like a light, moderately rich and sandy soil.

Some partially decayed leaf-mold has been found useful for mixing, especially in the heavier loams.

A point to remember in bulb culture is that one soaking watering must be given after planting. Do not immediately after this is done bury the pans and flats in coal ashes and imagine that this one watering will carry them along until started sufficiently for forcing. No greater mistake can be made than this, and here many failures in bulb culture occur. Several additional waterings are needed before the time will come to house the bulbs. This refers especially to tulips, narcissi and hyacinths. The soil, especially in pans, dries quickly and provided drainage is good there is more danger from too little than too much water.

CYCLAMENS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will 3-inch cyclamens in bud make fair Christmas plants? C. P. N.

If the cyclamens referred to are well rooted in 3-inch pots, give them a shift into 4-inch. In this size they will make nice little Christmas stock. Grow them in a temperature at night of 48 to 50 degrees after this date. If you prefer to keep them in the small sized pots, top-dress once in ten days with a first-class fertilizer, such as Clay's, alternating with cow or sheep liquid manure, to keep them toned up. C. W.

Geraniums

PROPAGATING.

While many growers have now put in the bulk of their geranium cuttings, the present month is sufficiently early for many to start propagating, especially in the warmer states. Even in the north there would be a much lower percentage of damped-off cuttings if propagation were delayed until the last possible moment. The wood is firmer now and less sappy than a month ago, which means a better strike of cuttings. Do not make the mistake of shading the cuttings. They want the full sun from the start, plenty of water at first and then a reduced supply, just sufficient to prevent shriveling, and at the same time cause plenty of fibrous roots to strike out into the sand.

WINTER BLOOMERS.

Winter-flowering geraniums want all possible sun and plenty of fresh air. It is a good plan to place one or two stakes in each pot to keep them rigid. When heavily flowered, they are easily overbalanced and these stakes will save them from possible collapse. Keep all flower trusses picked off. Give the plants a fresh stand once a week, for they are now growing fast. Avoid too much liquid manure. It causes a dark green, soft growth, which is not floriferous. Clay's fertilizer is an excellent food, applied as a top-dressing; so is Bon Arbor used as a liquid.

Geraniums bloom the best when not overpotted, and to be quite salable should be in from 4-inch to 6-inch pots. The last size should not be exceeded, except in special cases.

PRIVATE CONSERVATORIES.

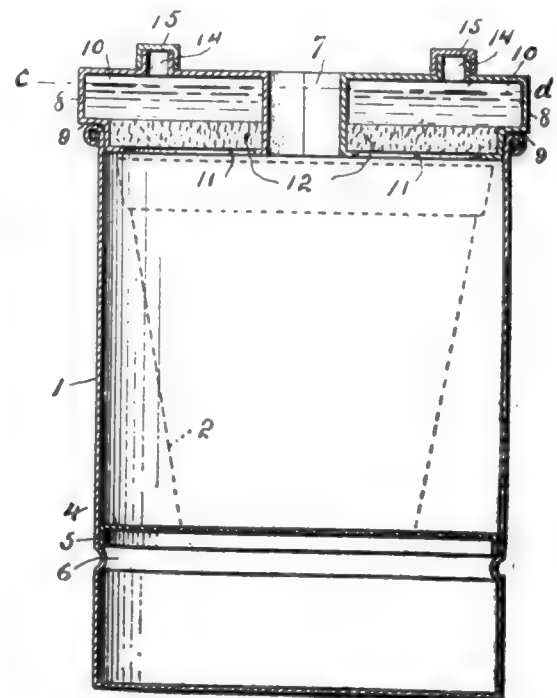

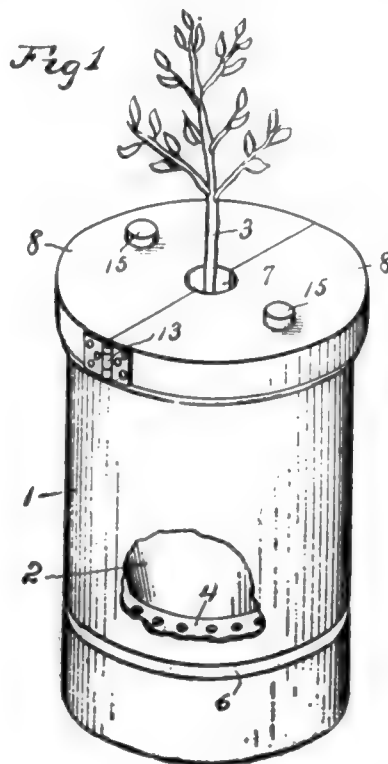

There never was a time in the history of floriculture in this country when the number of private conservatories was increasing faster than at present. This is fine business, not only for the concerns which supply the greenhouse material, but for anyone else in the trade, as each addition to the list of private greenhouses means the employment of at least one more gardener, the purchase of much stock to keep the establishment going, and the use of more flowers. It is a mistaken idea that these private greenhouses detract from the business of the retail florists. Once the habit of using flowers liberally has been acquired, the average private place does not produce enough cut stock to meet more than the daily needs of the owner, if it does even so well as that, and whenever any special occasion arises recourse must be had to the retail florist as before.

How rapidly these private places are multiplying is shown by some of the recent orders booked by the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., which will just now be of special interest to those who cater to the other needs of such buyers. W. B. O. Fields, Lenox, Mass., will build a curved glass house, 14x42. The Countess Santa Eulalia, Ashbourne, Pa., will build a

ELBERFIELD AN INVENTOR.

Alpha Elberfield, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, who heretofore has devoted his energies to the merchandizing end of the business, has recently turned inventor and has been granted a patent on what he styles as a self-watering plant pot. The need for such an article was suggested by complaints of the short life of plants sold, when investigation showed that the failure was due merely to the customer's neglect of watering. Therefore, Mr. Elberfield has devised an article to take the place of jardiniere or basket, in which the florist will place, prior to delivery, enough water to keep the plants nicely supplied for about a week. The accompanying illustration is reproduced from the patent office diagrams. The position of the ordinary flower pot inside the patented one is shown by the dotted lines. The number 7 indicates the opening through which the stem of the plant protrudes. The number 15 on each side indicates the openings for the injection of water, which occupies the spaces marked 10, whence it is fed slowly to the soil in the pot. The water seeps through the soil of the pot, any surplus finding exit through the drainage hole and falling into a catchbasin, which occupies the lower part of the container. The device is made ornamental and attractive in character through various embellishments.

It is not authoritatively known what Mr. Elberfield intends doing with his invention, but it is reported that he intends to form a corporation to manufacture these pots as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

The authorities of the Illinois State Fair offered generous premiums for cut flowers, designs and pot plants this year, bringing out the best display ever seen in central Illinois. There were four premiums in most classes and on the opening day, October 4, nearly all the money was taken down. The cut roses, carnations and chrysanthemums made a most creditable showing. The retail florists' design section was a specially attractive feature and the table decorations were better than ever before. The following are the awards on cut flowers:

Fifty Beauty—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., third.
Fifty Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, Ill., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Albany, N. Y.—Interest in the second annual flower show of the Albany Florists' Club, to be held in the state armory, November 10 to 12, is steadily increasing.

At a recent meeting of the society, Wm. C. Gloeckner reported that he had interviewed some of the officers of the Chamber of Commerce, and that steps would be taken by that organization to provide a cup which would be known as the Albany Chamber of Commerce trophy, to be awarded as would be decided later.

John A. Howe, Jr., was added to the music committee.

carmine, very showy and a strong grower; Salmon Queen, salmon pink. Bulbs of these gladioli are now procurable and should be started at once to secure an early crop.

Miscellaneous.

A few other bulbous subjects, which wide-awake florists find some money in growing, are: Anemone coronaria The Bride, A. fulgens, Turban and French ranunculi; each of these families wants cool treatment, such as a violet house affords, and can be grown in flats or planted in the beds, particularly if there are gaps which need filling. Ixias succeed best in rather small pans in a cool greenhouse, as do babianas, sparaxis and tritonias. All these bulbs like a light, moderately rich and sandy soil.

Some partially decayed leaf-mold has been found useful for mixing, especially in the heavier loams.

A point to remember in bulb culture is that one soaking watering must be given after planting. Do not immediately after this is done bury the pans and flats in coal ashes and imagine that this one watering will carry them along until started sufficiently for forcing. No greater mistake can be made than this, and here many failures in bulb culture occur. Several additional waterings are needed before the time will come to house the bulbs. This refers especially to tulips, narcissi and hyacinths. The soil, especially in pans, dries quickly and provided drainage is good there is more danger from too little than too much water.

grapery 22x58, a mum house 20x75, a palm and orchid house 22x75, and a lean-to 7x50, with connecting passageway. John H. Hammond, Mount Kisco, N. Y., will put up a house 18x50 with service building. William P. Hamilton, Sterlington, N. Y., will build an even-span house 25x125, divided into three compartments. A. C. Harrison, Orelan, Pa., will build a house seventy-five feet long, with curved eaves, and ornamental service building. William F. Taubel, Riverside, N. J., will build a house 22x95. All these are more or less ornamental and elaborate and they speak for an increase in business for a great many people.

CYCLAMENS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will 3-inch cyclamens in bud make fair Christmas plants? C. P. N.

If the cyclamens referred to are well rooted in 3-inch pots, give them a shift into 4-inch. In this size they will make nice little Christmas stock. Grow them in a temperature at night of 48 to 50 degrees after this date. If you prefer to keep them in the small sized pots, top-dress once in ten days with a first-class fertilizer, such as Clay's, alternating with cow or sheep liquid manure, to keep them toned up. C. W.

ELBERFIELD AN INVENTOR.

Alpha Elberfield, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, who heretofore has devoted his energies to the merchandizing end of the business, has recently turned inventor and has been granted a patent on what he styles as a self-watering plant pot. The need for such an article was suggested by complaints of the short life of plants sold, when investigation showed that the failure was due merely to the customer's neglect of watering. Therefore, Mr. Elberfield has devised an article to take the place of jardiniere or basket, in which the florist will place, prior to delivery, enough water to keep the plants nicely supplied for about a week. The accompanying illustration is reproduced from the patent office diagrams. The position of the ordinary flower pot inside the patented one is shown by the dotted lines. The number 7 indicates the

PROPAGATING.

While many growers have now put in the bulk of their geranium cuttings, the present month is sufficiently early for many to start propagating, especially in the warmer states. Even in the north there would be a much lower percentage of damped-off cuttings if propagation were delayed until the last possible moment. The wood is firmer now and less sappy than a month ago, which means a better strike of cuttings. Do not make the mistake of shading the cuttings. They want the full sun from the start, plenty of water at first and then a reduced supply, just sufficient to prevent shriveling, and at the same time cause plenty of fibrous roots to strike out into the sand.

WINTER BLOOMERS.

Winter-flowering geraniums want all possible sun and plenty of fresh air. It is a good plan to place one or two stakes in each pot to keep them rigid. When heavily flowered, they are easily overbalanced and these stakes will save them from possible collapse. Keep all flower trusses picked off. Give the plants a fresh stand once a week, for they are now growing fast. Avoid too much liquid manure. It causes a dark green, soft growth, which is not floriferous. Clay's fertilizer is an excellent food, applied as a top-dressing; so is Bon Arbor used as a liquid.

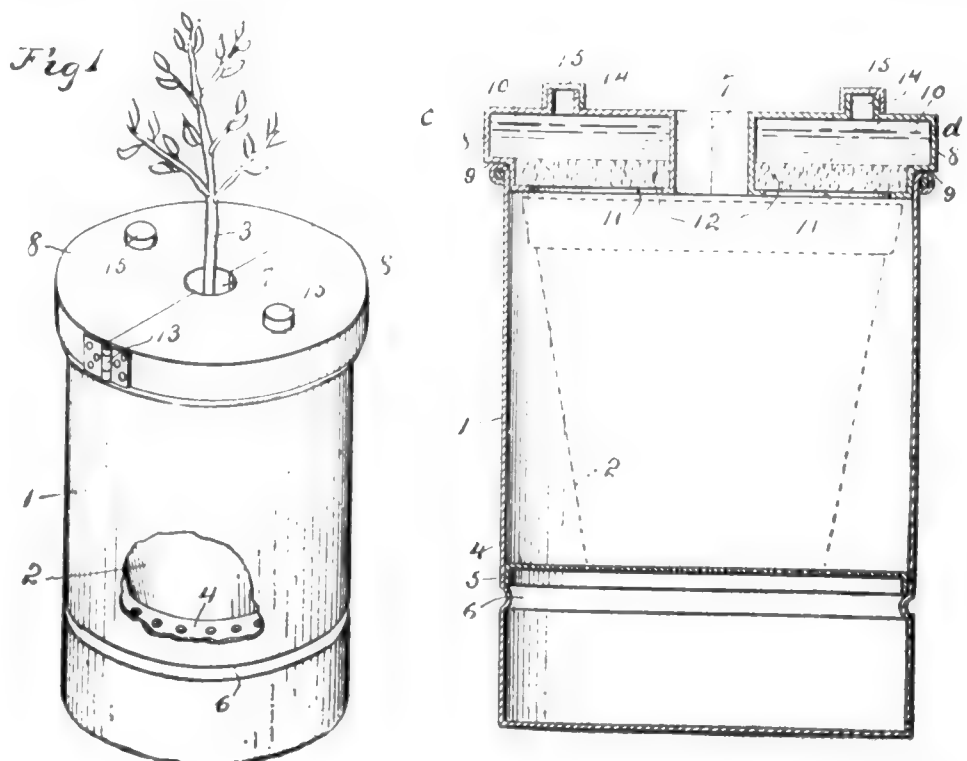

Geraniums bloom the best when not overpotted, and to be quite salable should be in from 4-inch to 6-inch pots. The last size should not be exceeded, except in special cases.

PRIVATE CONSERVATORIES.

There never was a time in the history of floriculture in this country when the number of private conservatories was increasing faster than at present. This is fine business, not only for the concerns which supply the greenhouse material, but for anyone else in the trade, as each addition to the list of private greenhouses means the employment of at least one more gardener, the purchase of much stock to keep the establishment going, and the use of more flowers. It is a mistaken idea that these private greenhouses detract from the business of the retail florists. Once the habit of using flowers liberally has been acquired, the average private place does not produce enough cut stock to meet more than the daily needs of the owner, if it does even so well as that, and whenever any special occasion arises recourse must be had to the retail florist as before.

How rapidly these private places are multiplying is shown by some of the recent orders booked by the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., which will just now be of special interest to those who cater to the other needs of such buyers. W. B. O. Fields, Lenox, Mass., will build a curved glass house, 14x42. The Countess Santa Eulalia, Ashbourne, Pa., will build a opening through which the stem of the plant protrudes. The number 15 on each side indicates the openings for the injection of water, which occupies the spaces marked 10, whence it is fed slowly to the soil in the pot. The water seeps through the soil of the pot, any surplus finding exit through the drainage hole and falling into a catchbasin, which occupies the lower part of the container. The device is made ornamental and attractive in character through various embellishments.

It is not authoritatively known what Mr. Elberfield intends doing with his invention, but it is reported that he intends to form a corporation to manufacture these pots as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed.

C. S. A. COMMITTEES.

President Elmer D. Smith announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year, which are as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Flowers shipped to Boston Flower Market, care John Walsh.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze, chairman; Wm. Duckham. Flowers shipped to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care Eugene Dailedouze.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Flowers shipped to chairman, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwartz. Flowers shipped to chairman, Jabez Elliott Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—J. B. Deamud, chairman; Geo. Asmus, W. H. Kidwell. Flowers shipped to J. B. Deamud, 51 Wabash avenue.

All flowers to arrive by 2 p. m. on day of examination. Exhibits, to receive attention from the committees, must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports, to receive a certificate, must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday throughout October and November, the dates of which will be October 8, 15, 22 and 29, November 5, 12, 19 and 26.

DETROIT.The Market.

Business has been most satisfactory and is not confined to funeral work, as is often the case. Numerous weddings and consequently many dinners and receptions have done considerable toward livening up the trade in the retail stores. With asters about all gone and carnations still few and far between, it is a problem to meet the demand for medium-priced flowers. Roses are quite plentiful and in good demand. Fine Richmond, La Detroit, Kaiserin, Mrs. Field and Morgan are arriving in good quantities and many grades. Greens are not any too plentiful. Smilax is quite scarce, as is Asparagus plumosus.

Various Notes.

The magnificent new store of Newcomb-Endicott Co. was opened September 26 and 27. The floral decorations, as in the past, were by B. Schroeter. Nearly 500 palms and ferns were used on the cases. Handsome baskets of foliage plants were liberally scattered through the store, while the fragrance of several thousand Beauties lent an air of refinement which could in no other way have been obtained. The decoration was by far the most costly and elaborate store decoration ever put up in Detroit.

The Flower Shop is the appropriate name given the unique new flower store opened at 20 John R. street October 1 by Miss Hattie Holtzhauer. Miss Holtzhauer was head saleslady in the employ of J. Breitmeyer's Sons for many years and has many friends among the flower buying public. At her opening a number of baskets of flowers and plants bearing the name of different Detroit florists showed the high esteem in which she is held by the trade.

J. L. Hudson's Detroit and Toledo stores were decorated for the fall opening by J. Breitmeyer's Sons. Corn, corn shocks and autumn foliage were used and set off with yellow outdoor flowers and fruits.

The 6-year-old son of Fred Cgchian, foreman at Schroeter's, died suddenly October 1 from an attack of lockjaw resulting from vaccination.

E. C. Fettes had a most seasonable as well as beautiful display of crotons, tastefully used in baskets, in his window last week.

Robert Rahaley and wife spent October 2 in Birmingham, Mich., as guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown.

There seems to be a big difference in the price of coal as used by the growers here; in fact, in answer to a question at the last club meeting, no two were paying the same price. The question as to whether the cheap fern sales are detrimental or beneficial to the trade was discussed at length at the meeting and after much argument it was thought that the fern business of the legitimate retailer would in no way suffer; in fact, many were of the opinion that it would tend to increase the appreciation of ferns. Frank Danzer's paper on "Side Lights on the Home and School Gardening Committee of the Twentieth Century Club" proved most interesting.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $15,000.

Bert York, of Hancock, Mich., is here to take a position in the Breitmeyer store.

BOSTON.The Market.

Business last week was fairly good. Flowers from under glass have largely increased in quantity, carnations especially so, but values have held up well. Whether they can continue to do so a little later, when the annual chrysanthemum avalanche arrives, is doubtful, but growers are much more optimistic than a year ago, while retailers are in a more cheery frame of mind and anticipating good trade. Roses are now arriving in larger quantities, but have sold well. Of course a good many are still small and short-stemmed, but quite a number are seen with excellent stems. Killarney and White Killarney are steadily improving and are in good demand. Beauties are better than they were and selling well. Carnots are few, but Kaiserins are still good. Bride and Maid are the hardest varieties to move. Maryland is of a fine color, and Mrs. Aaron Ward is seen in considerable numbers. Richmond as yet is not plentiful and the flowers are mostly small.

About every carnationist is apparently now shipping flowers, and there is a tremendous increase in the supply. So far there is no special surplus. Quite a few of the newer sorts, like Pink Delight and Dorothy Gordon, are seen, in addition to the old favorites. Enchantress has not by any means been discarded, and some of the best blooms seen are of that splendid variety. Chrysanthemums are much more numerous. Golden Glow no longer has the field to itself, but October Frost, Bergman, Montmort, Monrovia, Polly Rose and Glory of Pacific are all in evidence. Prices so far are holding up quite well. Single violets are not yet of much size, but are seen from many growers. Some doubles have also appeared.

Such lilies as appear are easily sold. A fair quantity of Bouvardia Humboldtii still arrives. Lily of the valley is not in great demand. Asters are rapidly nearing the end and are getting small and poor in quality. Cosmos is seen in quantity, also quite a few tuberose. The dahlia supply holds out, although frost has destroyed the crops of quite a few growers. Gladioli are nearly done and the demand is not good for such as are seen. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are each of good quality, and the demand for both these and adiantum shows an improvement. Hardy ferns of the new season's crop are also of excellent quality.

Plant trade is starting in nicely. So far foliage plants are the feature, including crotons, dracenas, aralias, ferns and palms in variety, araucarias, Ficus elastica and pandurata, etc. Gloire de Lorraine, well flowered, are seen at some of the stores.

Various Notes.

John Barr, of South Natick, one of our best carnation specialists, is bringing in fine lots of carnations, including Pink Delight. His new variegated seedling is keeping up its former good record. While the plants of nearly all growers run small this season, Mr. Barr's are as large and fine as ever. Cyclamens and hydrangeas are other specialties with him.

J. M. Cohen, at 2 Park street, has handled the finest Golden Glow chrysanthemums seen this season. They are grown at the Mishawum Greenhouses, Woburn.

At Galvin's Tremont street store a window of crotons in quite a number of varieties made a pleasing picture last week. Quite a variety of dracenas, pandanus, palms and other decorative plants were noted, and a good variety of orchid flowers, such as Cattleya labiata, C. Bowringiana, Vanda cærulea, Dendrobium Phalaenopsis and Oncidium Rogersii.

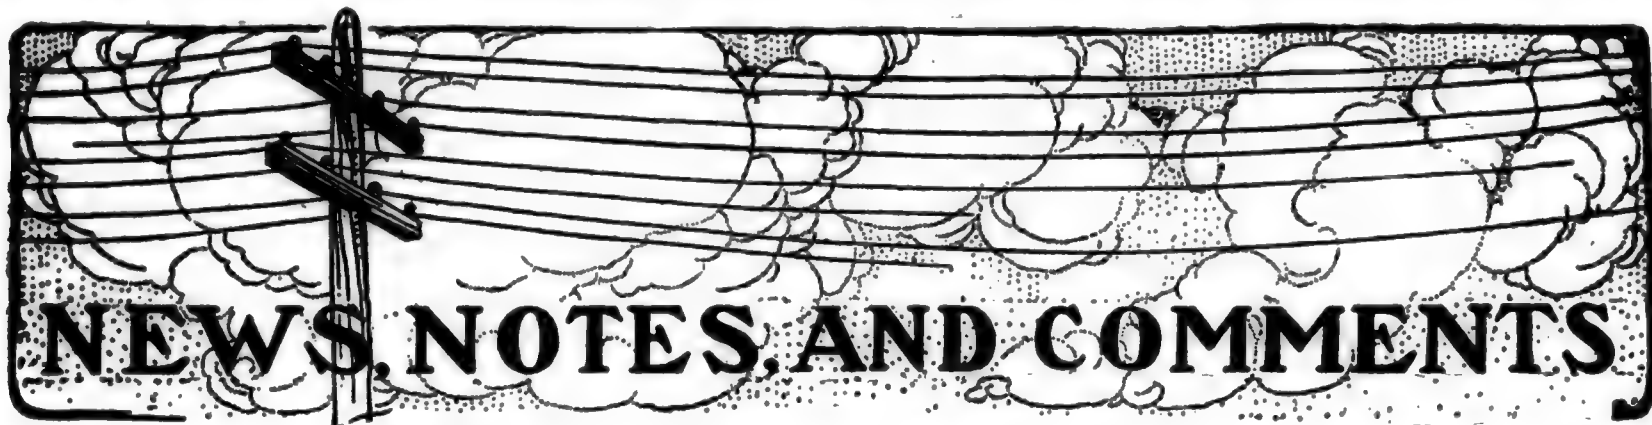

Penn The Florist, on Bromfield street, is one of the most enterprising and progressive of the numerous Boston retailers. He has just completed a splendid new window, which gives him considerably more display space. A big business is done here and it is growing all the time, orchids, roses, gardenias and everything good being always carried in stock.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is shipping fine lots of carnations to 2 Park street from his big new house. They are handled by Samuel Crombie, an old pupil of Mr. Wheeler's, formerly with F. H. Houghton.

At the Boston Flower Exchange, the Montrose Greenhouses are daily increasing their supplies and sales of roses, which, in addition to fine Killarney and Maryland, include some of the newer Mrs. Aaron Ward and the old Perle des Jardins.

Killing frosts occurred over a large section of Massachusetts on the morning of September 30, two weeks earlier than in 1909. Dahlias and many other tender

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Upton, Mass.—A. A. Bowker is building a 25-foot smokestack for his greenhouses, on Main street.

Buffalo, N. Y.—A thief recently entered the store of Charles H. Netsch and stole a small sum from the cash drawer.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—John Mattern, the Newport street florist, was recently confined to his home for a time by typhoid fever.

Boise, Idaho.—The Bayhouse Floral Co. has moved its downtown office from the Sonna block to the Owyhee hotel building.

Stoneham, Mass.—Thomas Murray is now proprietor of the business formerly conducted by D. J. MacKay & Co., on Wright street court.

Tuscola, Ill.—Geo. C. Schmidt recently visited Decatur, Ill., and while there he purchased a new smokestack for his greenhouse heating plant.

Des Moines, Ia.—The state board of control has awarded to Charles Weitz Sons the contract for the erection of a greenhouse at Mitchellville.

Cambridge, Mass.—F. C. Becker was confined to his home, at 1716 Cambridge street, for two weeks with an ailing knee, but at last report the limb was improving.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Albert Lash, whose greenhouses are at South Warwood, has returned to his home after a successful operation for appendicitis, performed at City hospital.

Chiltonville, Mass.—A recent fire destroyed the boiler house and potting shed at the greenhouses on The Forges, the country home of Sherman L. Whipple, of Brookline. The loss was estimated at $1,000.

Cadillac, Mich.—J. P. Herzog had one of the prettiest booths in the Merchants' Display building at the District Fair, and his two displays of flowers aided much in the success of that section of the exhibits.

Austin, Tex.—The newspapers are congratulating the citizens that there was not a single death in town in the week preceding September 11. One of the local florists said the record was certain to be broken soon, by someone's starving, if not otherwise.

Grantsburg, Wis.—Alfred Carlsen is preparing to start in the business here. He has been engaged in the trade at St. Paul for twenty years. For ten years he was a member of the firm conducting the Warrendale Floral Co., but for the last three years has been employed by Holm & Olson.

Garrettsville, O.—E. J. Peck has purchased the greenhouses of C. E. Tinker, who removed a few months ago to Newton Falls, O.

Manchester, Pa.—H. E. Zerby has been succeeded in business here by Hettie D. Zerby. H. E. Zerby is now at Anderson, Ind.

Washington, D. C.—James Lewis, on Fourteenth street, suffered $250 fire loss as the result of a gasoline explosion next door, September 23.

Milwaukee, Wis.—J. P. Sherer, who was for some time one of the commissioners of the board of public work, has bought out James Chacona and will sell bonbons and blossoms.

Manitou, Colo.—J. Sidney Baker has sold his greenhouse on Grand avenue to J. L. Powell, of Colorado Springs. Mr. Baker and his family will leave soon for Brownsville, Tex., where they will live.

Medford, Mass.—A surprise was given Wm. Keith, head gardener for Gen. S. C. Lawrence, and his wife, September 30, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. Silver was presented. Clan MacDougall was to the fore.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Arthur Dummett, who has about half an acre under glass, besides some ground in nursery stock, is installing force pumps in two wells, so as to provide water in case of emergency. He reports having lost over $200 worth of young evergreens during the summer, on account of drought.

Waltham, Mass.—The Waltham Home Garden Association has just held its annual exhibition of the products of children's gardens. No less than 1,000 children had gardens last season and, in spite of the dry season, the exhibits were of a high quality. Miss Winona Weber was the teacher of gardening.

McCook, Neb.—March & Johnson, proprietors of the McCook Nurseries & Greenhouses, have recently made important developments in their business. They have not only enlarged their plant here to twice its former capacity, but have also acquired the property of the Sterling Greenhouses & Nurseries, at Sterling, Colo.

Camden, N. J.—George Davis, of 2027 Arlington street, narrowly escaped from serious injury recently while driving up the White Horse pike on his way into town. His carriage was wrecked by an automobile, but he, though he suffered considerably from the shock, received only slight external injuries. His horse also came out of the wreck without serious harm.

Fairmont, W. Va.—H. W. Leaman's greenhouse was partially destroyed by fire recently.

Lyme, Conn.—John Trotter's new greenhouse is rapidly nearing completion and the glazing is about finished.

Detroit, Mich.—W. B. Brown won third prize with his light delivery outfit in the horse show at the state fair recently.

Battle Creek, Mich.—The interior of the Fisher flower store on North Jefferson avenue is undergoing extensive improvements.

Bucyrus, O.—At the greenhouses of Schillinger Bros., on West Perry street, about 1,300 lights of glass were broken September 23 by a hail storm.

Charlestown, Mass.—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Samuel Ralby, a florist residing at 274 Main street, and Miss Sadie Axe.

Rockport, Mass.—For the school flower and fruit show it was decided to have the judging done by a well-known florist, and C. Forrest Stevens was selected.

Youngstown, O.—The boiler house and part of a greenhouse belonging to Rudolph Haenny, of Park Hill, were recently destroyed by fire. The flames originated in the boiler room.

Melrose, Mass.—Many Boston seed houses and New England dahlia and gladiolus growers contributed special prizes for the fall exhibition held here in mid-September. There was a large display by amateurs.

Marion, Ind.—It is reported that because of family troubles the Fred Herleman greenhouses are closed, Mrs. Herleman and the children having gone to Chicago and Mr. Herleman to parts unknown. An apparently successful business had been done for several years.

Fargo, N. D.—T. D. Smedley, who has charge of the business of Smedley & Co., says the firm is about to open a branch store at Miles City, Mont., placing F. S. Madden in charge. He says the use of flowers and plants is increasing at a wonderful rate all through the northwest.

Superior, Wis.—T. Tjensvold has bought a piece of property, including half a city square at Twenty-first and Susquehanna avenue, and will build a range of greenhouses. He now owns greenhouses at Billings park, but is on leased city property and the park commission has refused to extend the lease. The plan is to at once erect two houses 25x200 and later add two more of the same size.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4 '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

Results bring advertising.
 The Review brings results.

Boxwoods will be worth real money this season; Belgium cannot produce the stock so fast as America can use up the small plants at last year's prices.

THERE are automobile parades by the dozen; almost every city has one. They bring considerable business to florists, but it is a mistake to try to decorate an auto except where a fair sum of money is to be laid out; you can't go far on a few dollars.

GROWERS who lean toward the use of grafted roses usually prefer the English Manetti stocks. Months ago it was announced in The Review that these would be scarce this winter and later reports tend to show the supply will be considerably less than the normal demand.

KEEP your eye on the series of double page spreads in the center of The Review. You hardly could miss these impressive ads, but the present series, the first of which appeared last week, are specially worth watching. There is an open date for the position October 27. First come first served.

MANY in this trade will subscribe to the assertion that it is easier to sell goods than to collect the money for them. The difficulty in collection lies in the failure to withhold credit from those who do not appreciate its value. Why not make collections easier by refusing credit to those who do not meet obligations promptly and thus gain time to seek out the buyers who know the worth of a good name? The man who exacts payment when due never loses by it.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING.

“The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof,” and not chewing the string. If you want to know just how quickly Review classified ads will move your surplus stock, do as this man did, and try them:

We are all sold out of primulas and had to refund the money on orders that came late; one insertion of the little ad did the work.—J. J. Hellenthal, Columbus, O., September 28, 1910.

Advertising in The Review will clear any salable stock.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Richard Witterstaetter.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter, wife of Richard Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O., died at her home on Pine Hill on Friday, September 30, at the age of 45. Her demise was quite unexpected, even to those intimate with her. It was only in the last two weeks that she was seriously ill. She was a great lover of flowers, and took a keen interest in the affairs of the trade. There gathered at her home, October 3, a large number of Mr. Witterstaetter's friends among the florists and her friends and neighbors, to pay their last respects to one who had held their respect all through life. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A return of summer weather hit the market a body blow last week, just at a time when it apparently was gathering strength for the autumn campaign. The heat increased the production in almost all departments and as visibly cut down the demand. City trade has not been strong at any time this season—it never is in September—and shipping trade fell off to a considerable degree. It is thought, however, that all that is necessary to restore the market to a fairly good basis is the return of seasonable weather. Cooler conditions are predicted following the rain which set in Monday night, October 3.

Warm sun for several days at the end of last week affected the roses more than any other flowers. In all varieties the cut was hastened, without any advantage to the quality. Those who clung with tenacity to the prices which had been in force in preceding days found their stock moving slowly. There was considerable increase in the supply of Beauties and the price was further weakened by the increased supply of mums, which are the principal competitors of Beauties in their season. Not all Beauties are first-class, of course, but on the whole the quality of the stock is excellent.

For some days short roses have commanded relatively better sale than the longer stock. A large proportion of the growers are now cutting stock that will grade as select and special, with comparatively few shorts, such as are in demand for work. Killarney, Maryland, Jardine, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Field, White Killarney and even Kaiserin are in excellent supply, fine long-stemmed stock such as affords no room for complaint. Killarney and Maryland have the call. Houses cutting heavily of Richmond have found themselves overstocked. White Killarney, also being cut in quantity by some of the largest growers, is not easily moved at its true value. It seems to be lost sight of that a principal part of the call for white roses is for funeral work. Size of flower may count, but length of stem is little advantage. The sale for white roses in the 6, 8 and 10-cent grades is less than for the same qualities of other colors. A large part of the White Killarney now being cut are on stems of good length.

Carnations are coming in more freely every day and stems steadily lengthen. Much of the stock needs only stem to be first-class.

There is much difference in the reports as to chrysanthemums. The supply is large; a part of the receipts is of splendid quality, but another part is poor. Some houses say mums are selling slowly, where others report the opposite; the majority say prices are below those of previous years, but some say they are getting as much as ever they did. White and yellow are the only colors thus far available, but pink is expected next week.

The New York double violets have been reinforced by the arrival of the home-grown singles, but neither variety is in much request. There is a marked increase in the supply of orchids. Valley is abundant. Lilies are said to be scarce, but are nevertheless to be had by those who will pay the price; the advance to $2 per dozen made by some

LONG-STEMMED BEAUTIES

Finest Stock The Trade Has Seen This Season.

While we are able to supply all lengths of Beauties of equally good quality, we are specially strong this week on long-stemmed stock. These Beauties are without question the finest that have been seen in this market this season. Fine large heads, splendid color and substance, strong stem and heavy foliage; quality that attracts the buyers who hunt out the best stock to be had. Order here and we shall have no doubt you will come again.

KILLARNEY PINK AND WHITE

We also are especially strong on White Killarney—a big crop is on. This is fine stock, in every way as good as our famous Killarney (pink), and the color is clear. These are the finest white roses of the season to date. In addition to Killarney and White Killarney, we can supply fine

Kaiserin, Maryland and Richmond.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Many buyers know the quality of our Monrovias of former years—well, we've got 'em again, as fine as ever. Also good Golden Glow, October Frost and other early varieties. We are headquarters for fine mums.

CARNATIONS

The quality of the carnations is improving steadily and every day brings an addition to the supply. You can order here with the certainty that you are calling on the largest lot of high grade carnations in this market.

Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Plenty of them NOW. Let your orders come.

Violets

The violet season has opened. As usual, we have the cream of the Hudson river doubles and the finest of home-grown singles.

houses means a sharp reduction in the demand.

Better danlias never were seen, but they are so hard to handle without injury that they sell poorly. A few gladioli still come in.

The green goods market continues steady, with adequate supplies in all lines.

September Business.

The money value of sales in this market in September unquestionably made a gain over the same month last year, but it is open to question if the gain was as great as the increase in the production of cut flowers; the general report is that more stock was handled than last year but that the prices were not so good. A number of houses that reported increases in sales added the comment that the increase was nowhere near so great as the increase August showed over the corresponding month of last year.

September, 1910, brought to the market many more chrysanthemums than in any previous September, also a considerable increase in supplies of roses, and of carnations.

Kennicott's New Box.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is immensely pleased with its newest ice-box. It is 8½x16½ and eight feet high, built on what is known as a double insulation principle; that is, it is virtually two boxes, one within the other, with an air space between. With 300 pounds of ice at this season, 54 degrees is maintained in the daytime, when the door is being opened every few minutes, and at night the temperature goes down to 50 degrees. Double shelving all around gives the box large capacity. As it is intended for carnations in winter, it has a connection with the outdoors, which will do away with the use of ice in freezing weather. A novel feature is a boxwood cooler at the rear of the box, outside. This is a zinc-lined tank forty inches square and six feet long, which is kept full of water from the drip pipe. This will be used for freshening up boxwood after it comes from cold storage and is expected to be the means of maintaining a boxwood supply all the year around.

The box was built by Paul J. Daemicke Co., 261 South Water street.

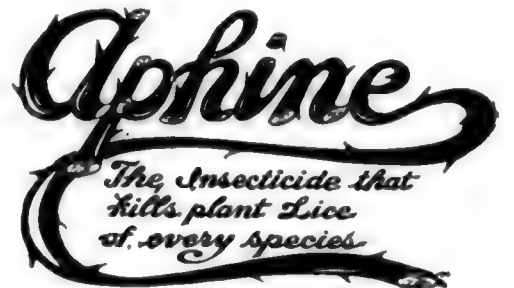

September Weather.

The weather during the month of September, 1910, presented few unusual features. The temperature was only two-fifths of a degree higher than the normal and both the warmest and the coldest days of the month were well within the range shown in former years. Most of the rainfall was in the first half of the month, but the total was somewhat in excess of the average. No frosts occurred in this immediate vicinity, it being the first September, except that of 1905, since in 1884 that has been marked by total absence of frost.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting at the Union restaurant tonight, October 6. The executive committee of the Horticultural Society has been invited to be present and there will be a general discussion of flower show matters. Twelve applicants for membership are to be voted on. These include W. P. Kyle, 5435 Lake avenue, and Joseph Foerster, 2242 North Halsted street, who comprise the firm of Kyle & Foerster. Six Joliet florists also are proposed, A. C. Rott, William Kellner, Emil Middendorf, A. Christianson, H. Nicholson and H. Dumke. Other applications are Fred Smith, 2509 Touhy avenue; Joseph Dimoeck, 3356 Potomac avenue; J. Byers, 48 Wabash avenue, and J. W. Fink, 2642 Herndon street.

The Chicago Carnation Co. has opened its new wholesale store in the Atlas block. A. T. Pyfer is in charge, the business headquarters of the company being now in Chicago. Mr. Pyfer goes back and forth from Joliet daily. All Miss Martha Gunterberg has been visiting her violet growers at Rhinebeck, and also spending a few days at New York and Washington. Other Chicago commission dealers who have looked over the violet situation this summer were Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co.; Mike Fink, of Kennicott Bros. Co.; John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., and C. W. McKellar.

Phil Schnupp says that Maryland is a much better seller than Killarney; the latter requires pushing, though good, while the former does not.

H. N. Bruns has run so short on valley this year that he expects to make a considerable increase in his importation of pips this fall.

The city of Chicago has over $400,000 for a tuberculosis hospital. The most available site appears to be an 80-acre tract that is a part of the L. A. Budlong Co. onion-set patch, that adjoins Peterson Nursery and is in the vicinity of half a dozen greenhouse establishments. The proximity of any hospital depresses real estate values and the neighbors are objecting to this one with special vigor. Peter Reinberg is a member of the aldermanic committee that has to decide.

It is reported that Joseph Klimmer, who has been ill for some time, is steadily weakening, and little hope is now entertained for his recovery.

Clifford Pruner, of E. H. Hunt's supply department, was at Grand Rapids last week with an exhibition at the vegetable growers' convention. He says he never has attended a meeting where there was such keen interest in the business sessions. C. W. Johnson, of this house, has returned from a trip to the Pacific coast.

Carl N. Thomas has returned from West Springfield, Pa., where he spent the summer on his farm, and is again on the selling floor of the A. L. Randall Co. W. W. Randall also returned October 3 from a three weeks' vacation.

A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan & Sperry, says that he does not recall a season when there has been a better sale for chrysanthemums.

The work of remodeling the Flower Growers' Market has progressed sufficiently to permit the rearrangement of the Percy Jones space, giving additional facilities.

Robert Northam, of George Reinberg's, says he sold at least 15,000 Richmond October 3 and had plenty left at the close of business.

The George Wittbold Co. has a large decoration October 3 for the fall opening of C. A. Stevens & Bro.

E. C. Amling says it is a wholly mistaken idea that carnations are high in price. He thinks it not an overstatement to say that there are twice as many carnations coming into the market as at this date last year, and that prices are not now so good as they were a year ago.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. sent a large exhibit of roses to the state fair flower show this week. A number of wholesale houses shipped considerable quantities of stock to Springfield October 3 for the same purpose. Albert T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, is making a large display, Mrs. Hey being in charge.

Bassett & Washburn say September of 1909 was much better than any previous September in their history, but that this year the month's sales beat last year by over $1,000, with no increase in glass.

Miss Hertha V. Tonner, who is treasurer of the Flower Growers' Co. and who has a prosperous commission business in the market, reports the arrival of single violets in the last week of September.

Miss Keegan is again at Zech &

At the store of Wietor Bros. it is said that Jardine has turned in more money per plant than any other rose thus far this season.

W. E. Lynch and wife celebrated their seventeenth wedding anniversary September 27.

C. M. Dickinson has been busy the last few days superintending the digging and shipping of peony roots at Park Ridge.

August Poehlmann, member of the executive committee of the Horticultural Society, called a meeting of retailers October 3 to discuss their participation in the fall show. It is intended to make a special feature of the retail exhibits. Among those present were Louis Wittbold, of the George Wittbold Co.; Herman Schiller, of Schiller The Florist, Victor Bergman, of the E. Wienhoeber Co., and Ed Enders, of C. A. Samuelson's.

The Bohannon Floral Co., 11 East Monroe street, has installed a new window display case for orchids, valley and violets. Additional shelving for the display of fancy baskets, novelties and other supplies has been added.

The D. D. Johnson Co., which manufactures Evergreen Brand fertilizer, after doubling its factory space a few weeks ago, has now found additional office space necessary, and has rented an outside room in the same building, at 66 Wabash avenue, almost directly across the hall from its present office, but nearly twice as large.

Among the week's visitors have been John Evans, of Richmond, Ind.; Milo Crozer, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; J. W. Davis, Des Moines, Ia.; R. R. Davis, Morrison, Ill.; A. L. Perring, Onarga, Ill.

Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, has created an extraordinary demand for flowers in the last few days. Everything good was taken up quickly, and quite a few flowers that were not so good were also sold. The prices ruled about the same as during the last fortnight. There are plenty of roses of all kinds on the market now, and teas promise to accumulate. The stock is good and holds up well. Carnations are in larger supply and sell readily; this is especially true of the lighter shades.

The good weather has helped outdoor flowers. Dahlias are plentiful and find a good request. Cosmos was between crops, but now the late flowers are offered and a steady supply is assured until frost. Within another week the supply of asters will probably be over for the season. In other stock, Lilium longiflorum sells well and there is just about enough on hand to meet the demand. The supply of lily of the valley is short. Chrysanthemums and violets are coming in. The supply of green goods is ample and of good quality.

The many orders for Dutch bulbs at the seed houses are rapidly depleting the supply of that commodity and, judging from appearances, it will be cleaned out before long.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell received his first eastern double violets last week. He expects early mums in a day or so, from H. Schmidt & Co., of Oxford, O.

The bowling committee of the Cincinnati Florists' Society has been working hard and carefully, and has complete plans to offer to the members at the next regular meeting of the society, October 10.

William Murphy finds a brisk demand for Lilium longiflorum.

E. G. Gillett is getting in some fine October Frost and Monrovia from H. Schmidt & Co., of Oxford, O. During the last few days Mr. Gillett's many Beauties have been snapped up quickly by the buyers for the Jewish New Year.

L. H. Kyrk is now receiving late cosmos and single violets. His first pansies from the new cut are also arriving.

The J. M. McCullough's Sons Co. expects a large shipment of mushroom spawn within a few days. Last Saturday J. C. Connont, representing James Carter & Co., of London, England, called at this house while on his twenty-eighth annual trip to this country to visit the seedsmen. Mr. Connont is one of the pioneers among the English commercial travelers in the seed line. He has been with the Carters for over fifty-one years.

Miss Mae Carroll, representing D. Rusconi, has returned from a successful trip through northern Ohio.

The engagement of Frank Westerich and Miss Kessler has been announced.

Visitors: Julius Dillhof, representing Schloss Bros., New York; Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Gause, Richmond, Ind.; H. Schmidt, Oxford, O., and William Lodder, Hamilton, O. C. H. H.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

At the annual fair held here September 27 to 30, E. A. Corson was the leading winner in the classes for pot plants, cut flowers and designs. J. K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, Mass., showed dahlias largely, as did the East Manchester (N. H.) Dahlia Gardens. Sweet peas from Mrs. A. Roberts, Alton Bay, N. H., were of fine quality. It would pay other prominent trade growers of dahlias and other flowers to make exhibits at this important fair another year. The floral court for the plant and flower exhibits is quite unique. Frank Shorey is superintendent of this department. W. N. Craig, of North Easton, Mass., acted as judge.

Alexandria, Va. — C. A. Shaffer, of C. A. Shaffer & Co., says that business is so good that it has necessitated working sixteen hours each day for the last six weeks.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Life has succeeded apathy in the cut flower market; there is activity everywhere. The October weddings have come, also the opening entertainments of the social season, chiefly small affairs, but, most important of all, the Jewish festival of the new year coincides this time with the fourth day of October, this holiday being a movable feast. All these causes combined have produced improvement in business. Beauties advanced sharply, $4 being asked for the specials; Beauties are a holiday flower par excellence.

The general rose list has been active; the heavy crops, seemingly off with many growers, further stimulate the demand. Carnations have improved greatly in quality. Those growers whose plants have weathered the trials of August and September are reaping a harvest. The supply of carnations is smaller than usual at this season. Single violets, positively unsalable during the closing days of September, have jumped into a position of prominence, receiving notice from all classes of buyers. Doubles have not arrived.

Really fine valley is in demand; in fact, there is a shortage, but this does not apply to the ordinary grade. The quality of the best valley shows an improvement over last month. Cattleyas are abundant. Labiata is with us in strong array. The price has fallen, with further shading on large orders. Dendrobium formosum and oncidiums are to be had. Gardenias are improving, likewise the price.

Dahlias have been affected by the long drought, impairing the quality and shortening the stems. There are, however, some really fine dahlias in the market that sell well. The average returns are much affected by the poor stock sent in. Were this thrown away, everyone would be benefited, some of the wholesalers say. White dahlias are more in demand than colors.

Chrysanthemums are gradually coming to the fore. October Frost, Opah and Polly Rose are the whites; Golden Glow, now nearly over, and Monrovia are the yellows, while Montmort, the early pink, is now displaced by the great Glory of Pacific.

Greens are moderately affected by the improvement in the market. Adiantum is beginning to receive attention. As-ters are over; there are a few corn-flowers.

The Florists' Club.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club, held in Horticultural hall Tuesday evening, October 4, was well attended. The principal business of the evening was the election of officers for the coming year. All the present officers, who were nominated at the September meeting, were re-elected without opposition. They were: President, Joseph Heacock; vice-president, Alfred Burton; treasurer, George Craig; secretary, David Rust.

Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., favored the members with an illustrated lecture on "Holland and Its Bulbs," that was much enjoyed. Refreshments encouraged sociability.

Robert Scott & Sons exhibited a vase of their new double pink Killarney rose that created a sensation.

An Opportunity.

There are lots and lots of young men who say they never have had a chance, and feel privileged to grumble at fate accordingly. Some of them are such good fellows that they don't say so, but they think it all the same, not realizing that there are opportunities all about us, provided we choose to seize them. Somebody once said—alas! I forget just who—that we can make ourselves whatever we please, provided we are willing to pay the price, adding that few of us are willing. This is really true, within the bounds of possibility. Decide what you want most, strive wisely and well to that end, allowing nothing whatever to interfere with it, and you will be surprised how much can be accomplished.

But, you say, what has the heading to do with all this? Simply this: One of our brightest plantsmen remarked one day this week that azaleas could be grown in certain sections of New Jersey, where peat and water abound, just as well as in Belgium. He further added that he was sure such a venture could be made profitable, despite the cheaper labor of Europe. The stock would be grown outdoors, where it could get plenty of water. Sufficient glass would be required to house the plants in winter. In support of this statement, the wonderful improvement shown in carried-over azaleas, when properly handled, was instanced. Another of our leading plantsmen, one of the master minds in the profession, heartily supported this idea, adding that it would take knowledge as well as capital and, with a humorous twinkle in his eye, a hide quite impervious to the mosquito.

Progress at Riverton.

Henry A. Dreer awarded a contract to the King Construction Co., September 8, as readers of this column may remember, for two acres of glass at the new farm near Riverton, N. J. This contract calls for completion of the whole undertaking, greenhouses, sheds, boilers and all piping, by December 15.

Such rapid progress has already been made that J. D. Eisele, vice-president of the Dreer corporation, spoke hopefully of the probability that the contract would be completed on time and a new record established. The service house, of the latest King type of construction, has been completed and work is being pushed on the adjoining ranges. The heat will be furnished by five seventy-five horse-power horizontal tubular boilers set on the surface of the ground and working under forced circulation by means of a centrifugal pump. E. H. Michel is in charge of this department of Dreer's. The new establishment will be a model of efficiency and economy.

Various Notes.

The Stokes Seed Store will hold a fall show at 219 Market street, October 10 and the five following days. Mr. Stokes expects to have fine vegetables, fruits and dahlias from his growers of Mount Holly and Moorestown.

The Henry F. Michell Co. announces that it will vacate 1018 Market street October 31, removing the entire business to the new store at 518 Market street.

W. E. McKissick will take charge of the Washington branch of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

Work has commenced in tearing down the buildings at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Race streets, preparatory to erecting the new home of the Leo Nielsen Co.

William J. Baker is receiving choice carnations that rank well. A crimson dahlia named Gettysburg creates favorable comment.

The closing hour of several of the wholesale houses has been changed from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. Phil.

Godfrey Aschmann sends a souvenir post card from St. Gallen, Switzerland, stating he will sail for home from Rotterdam, October 8.

On the evening of September 23 fire in a pile of straw, supposed to have been started by boys smoking cigarettes, was communicated to the greenhouses of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, at Twenty-second and Diamond streets. Flames and the hose combined to ruin considerable stock before the blaze was extinguished.

Paxson V. James has been granted a permit to erect a greenhouse to cost $1,000 at 8029 Ridge avenue, and John Frasch one for a greenhouse to cost $800 at Salmon street and Erie avenue.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was not as good as the trade expected. Aside from a considerable amount of funeral work, there is nothing steady yet. The weather has not been favorable, as the temperature was steadily going up instead of down, and for a few days it was as hot as in August. This made stock suffer, and some consignments came in badly heated up. It is expected that retail business will pick up this month as soon as the social season starts.

All of the wholesalers have had good consignments of roses and carnations of improved quality; roses were more plentiful than the demand, while white carnations about equaled the call. Asters, tuberose and gladioli are about over, and only a few come in. Some violets come in, but not enough to satisfy any demand. Cooler weather will bring them out better. Fine valley, cosmos, lilies and dahlias are to be had, and all kinds of greens are selling well.

Various Notes.

The valuation of the Shaw prizes, as given in the item about the Fall Flower Show on page 15 of The Review for September 29, should be $500, instead of $50, as printed.

The Engelmann Botanical Club will resume its regular monthly meetings this month at the botanical laboratory of the Central high school.

The Retail Florists' Association of St. Louis held its meeting Monday, October 3, in the Knights of Columbus hall and discussed some important matters. The secretary read a paper by a local retailer on "The Last Resort to Stop the Practice of Crepe Pulling." The attendance was good.

The St. Louis Seed Co. and the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. have put in a busy week with fall bulbs. They say business has improved much in this line this season.

Robert Tesson, well known in local trade circles, has returned from a few weeks' trip in the west. He says the hail storm of Monday, September 26, did quite a lot of damage at his farm in Clayton.

The consignments of roses at C. A. Kuehn's were quite heavy last week, and of excellent quality. Carnations and white and yellow mums are also of good quality. The demand for supplies has been good all the week.

Along South Broadway, Florists Heile, Diemer and Kohr had a busy week, as the South Broadway merchants' festivities were in full blast. A number of excellent decorations were seen in the big stores in that section.

Several of the Belleville florists were here last week and said that business had picked up nicely, and they are in good shape for a busy season.

August Mirring and Martin Eggert, the East St. Louis florists, are busy shaping things for the fall and winter season. Each has a splendid stock of plants.

C. Young & Sons Co. was busy with decorations for the Veiled Prophet's ball in the Coliseum. This was one of the biggest plant decorating jobs of the year, and it was said that 1,000 American Beauties would also be used this year.

fine dahlias from his Webster park place for this market. Mr. Jennemann's collection of dahlias is one of the largest in the west.

Mr. Beyers, formerly of Buffalo, and Louis Giger, formerly of New London, Conn., have charge of the cut-flower department at Grimm & Gorly's Washington avenue store.

H. C. Irish has returned from a two weeks' stay at St. Paul, Minn., where he attended the conservation congress as one of the committee appointed by President Pierson, of the S. A. F., at Rochester last August.

C. E. De Wever, of Clayton, disposed of a fine lot of 4-inch and 5-inch Bostons and Whitmani to Alex Siegel last week. Mr. Siegel says trade in pot plants has been good of late.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is receiving consignments of carnations from its Kirkwood growers, which are of good quality. The cut promises to be large this season.

Wm. Bouche, the landscape gardener, who is traveling in the east, sends word from Boston that he will return home next week.

Gus Gross, of Kirkwood, has just completed three new houses, each 32x100, for carnations, violets and sweet peas. His brothers, Hugo and Rudolph, who have old established places in Kirkwood, are in great shape for this season with the same flowers.

Ostertag Bros. had some heavy decorating work last week.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday, October 13, in Odd Fellows' hall. President John M. Cannon is making special efforts for a large attendance.

Visitors last week were: M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill.; W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Parker T. Barnes, formerly with Shaw's Gardens here, but now in the editorial department of Suburban Life, at Harrisburg, Pa.; E. J. Fancourt, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; Julius Dillhoff, representing Schloss Bros., New York city. J. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The wheels of improvement in the market move slowly, but on Saturday, October 1, the atmosphere in the wholesale section had changed; one could, if at all sensitive, feel the vibrations of new life. Everything that had merit sold rapidly, and, while prices did not advance so as to merit special mention, the general tone was firm and the selected stock of every kind found immediate demand. Violets are coming fast. There were some seventy-five boxes October 1. From now on the supply will increase daily. Of the quality, it is best not to speak. A few extra bunches touched 50 cents per hundred, but that was high water mark and the tide turned quickly.

It is remarkable how many orchids are arriving and how many wholesalers are handling them. Fortunately, the demand is increasing steadily. Much of the rose stock is small and short-stemmed. Some of it is mildewed. Only the best brings satisfactory prices. Tremendous arrivals of the short-stemmed stock go at the buyer's offer.

Carnations are improving rapidly in size of flower and length of stem, but seldom can over 2 cents be obtained for them. Chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive from the specialists, and for the finest specimens $4 per dozen and upward was the figure. These find their way to the centers of the retail display windows and sell rapidly to the returning Four Hundred, who are trooping cityward in droves as the leaves begin to fall.

Gardenias improve in size and stem daily. The sources of supply seem unabated. Lilies have fallen again from their high estate, as low as $6 per hundred at the end of the week being accepted willingly. Dahlias are abundant. Many of the new varieties are superb. They have been largely utilized in basket work and window decoration.

Gimbel's Decoration.

The largest plant and flower display of the year was seen last week at the opening of the New York department store of Gimbel Bros., of Philadelphia. Loyal to their own city, J. J. Habermehl's Sons were given the work. This house has been busy many weeks in preparation. The front of the big building was elaborately draped with heavy roping, evergreens and wild smilax, over backgrounds of heavy velvet. Boxes of foliage plants, evergreens and ivy were installed across the face of the building, and within palms, smilax and enormous vases of Beauties, mums and dahlias created a splendid effect. Many electric van loads of stock were brought out from Philadelphia. The estimates of the contract ran from $2,000 to $10,000.

This is the second invasion of New York by the Quaker City, and still another Philadelphian assumes responsibility here, the cut flower department of the Gimbel store having been secured by J. Wolff, Jr., one of its leading retailers, who has stores and greenhouses there on Nineteenth street and Sedgely avenue, and comes to New York with this branch after an experience of twenty-six years in the business.

show in so great an edifice large quantities of stock were required, said to include 10,000 yards of roping, many cars of autumn leaves and wild smilax, and 5,000 lilies.

October 10 the Florists' Club will hold its meeting at its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. The subject of Mr. McFarland's lecture has been changed to "A Crusade Against Ugliness." There will be exhibits, refreshments, and ladies, and a large attendance is expected.

John Young visited Boston last week. He reports his range at Bedford Hills in fine shape.

M. A. Bowe is to be married Thursday, October 6.

The plant and bulb auctions are now drawing good crowds.

Frank Sheehan has been added to the staff of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer. The new firm is well pleased with its first week's experience.

S. Jacobs & Sons, Brooklyn, say that the business in boilers of late has surpassed their expectations.

Mr. Van Reiper, with the Growers' Out Flower Co. since Mr. Coan assumed the management, has returned from a two weeks' yachting holiday.

Ralph Gretsch has assumed the management of the cut flower department of Kessler Bros. and will be a valuable addition to the Kessler forces.

A. C. Zvolanek, of Bound Brook, is shipping large quantities of lilies to Philip Kessler, in the Coogan building.

The return of the victorious Americans under the leadership of Hal Chase was the occasion of many presentations of flowers to the new manager. The largest welcome in this line came from the Gunther brothers, who are baseball enthusiasts.

Russin & Handling received last week seventy-five cases of baskets and wreaths from Europe, a part of their importations, purchased by Mr. Handling in July and August.

The Forster Mansfield Co. has just completed the fittings for the new store of Messrs. Roy and Bassi, of New Rochelle. These young men were in the service of Mr. Wagner, of Mount Vernon.

Joseph A. Fenrich entertained the stork for the third time September 27, and a young lady has been added to Grandpa Le Mout's descendants.

Herman Scommadau, formerly with Sharkey, is now with A. L. Young & Co.

J. K. Allen recently enjoyed a pleasant week among his Rhinebeck growers.

J. A. Vandervoort, of Sassenheim, Holland, was a guest of O. V. Zangen at the bowling alleys September 30.

A. J. Guttman, whose wife and family are in Switzerland, sailed for Europe September 30, because of the serious illness of his eldest son.

October 1 the monthly meeting of the New York Cut Flower Exchange was held at Long Island City, President John Donaldson in the chair. There were several applications for the ice-box space formerly used by Mr. Smith, of Woodside, as well as for the remaining sections of the floor. The indications were thought to be favorable for a lively season.

HYACINTHUS AND SCILLAS.

Will you inform me whether Hyacinthus amethystinus and H. azureus are of any value commercially? Can they be used for cut flowers, and if so, what treatment do they require? Also tell me about Scilla hyacinthoides, the tall, light blue variety? H. H. G.

Hyacinthus amethystinus and H. azureus are of little commercial value. They make interesting rockery plants and are good for naturalizing. For cut flower purposes they are of little service. Scilla hyacinthoides is a useful plant for naturalizing in woodlands, or along the edge of shrubberies in partial shade. It succeeds best where the soil is naturally moist. While the spikes are quite robust when the bulbs are well established, it is hardly a flower I should care to recommend for cutting. For massing effects in woodlands, it is, however, fine. C. W.

VINCA MINOR.

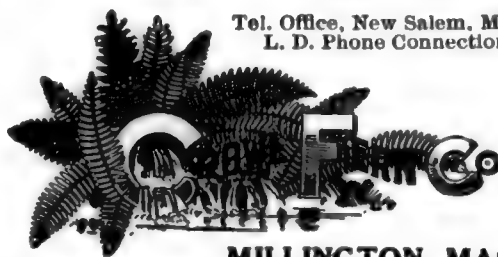

Is there any sale for Vinca minor? R. F.

There is quite a large sale for Vinca minor. It is much used in cemeteries for covering grave lots, for which it is the finest evergreen plant we have of unquestioned hardiness. It is also a splendid plant for covering banks, even when quite steep. It is good, also, for massing in woodlands or groves and will thrive under unfavorable conditions, where grass and about every other herb will fail. It can be planted with success during any moist weather in spring, summer or fall. It may be propagated either by cuttings or by root division, the latter being the easier method. C. W.

VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET.

Officers Elected.

At the closing session of the vegetable growers at Grand Rapids, last week, the nominating committee reported the following slate, which was unanimously elected:

President—Prof. R. L. Watts, State College, Pa.

Vice-president—H. F. Hall, Boston.

Secretary—S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.

Treasurer—M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland.

Boston was selected as the place for the 1911 convention.

The nominating committee was composed of one delegate from each state, chosen as follows: Illinois, L. M. Mason; Indiana, W. S. Roebuck; Kentucky, W. R. Gilpin; Maryland, W. F. Massey; Massachusetts, W. E. Moore; Michigan, L. R. Davis; Missouri, J. N. Draper; New York, G. E. Titus; Ohio, J. S. Brigham; Ontario, E. E. Adams; Pennsylvania, F. J. Zuck; Connecticut, W. R. Smith; Iowa, H. E. Krebs; Virginia, T. C. Johnson; Wisconsin, Charles Burmeister; Louisiana, L. A. Tienout; Kansas, William E. Sourdry, and Alabama, H. Riedmann.

Name Is Changed.

As recommended in the address of President Ward, published in The Review last week, it was voted to change the name to the Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

A resolution was adopted pledging the coöperation of the association with all other organizations seeking to secure an equitable readjustment of freight and express rates. This seemed as far as the association could go at present.

Committees were appointed as follows: Membership, H. E. Thompson, C. West, M. L. Ruetenik, G. Dys and S. W. Severance; auditing, R. Hittinger, W. R. Lazenby and J. H. Rice; resolutions, R. L. Watts, P. L. Johnson and J. M. Draper.

Hospitalities.

What Grand Rapids gardeners and greenhouse growers can do was shown to visiting delegates. Twenty autos and two motor trucks conveyed a large party on a trip of inspection to surrounding plants, including those of T. E. Graham, west of the city; the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co., Henry Smith, Peter Blanksma and Eugene Davis.

At the annual banquet, served in Press hall, there were the following addresses: George E. Rowe, on "The Beginning of Things"; Charles K. Garfield, on "Progress"; R. D. Graham, "Organization"; Prof. T. C. Johnson, "The South"; S. W. Severance, "Our Wives"; Mrs. F. N. Rowe, "Our Husbands"; Prof. R. L. Watts, "Our Boys"; Mrs. A. H. Kohler, "Our Girls."

Trade Exhibits.

The trades' display was not a large one, but was creditable and interesting. Greenhouse materials were shown by J. C. Moninger Co. and Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago; ventilating apparatus by Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.; hotbed sash by Sunlight Double Glass Sash Co., Louisville; straw mats by J. P. Watts, Kerrmoor, Pa.; heating specialties by Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Barday, Ayers & Bartsch Co. and Grand Rapids Supply Co., Grand Rapids; insecticides by E. H. Hunt, Chicago, Perth Amboy Chemical Co., Perth Amboy, N. Y., and B. Hammond, Fishkill, N. Y.; pots by Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich.; mushroom spawn by G. H. Hunkel Co., Milwaukee; seeds by S. M. Isbell & Co., Ionia, Mich.

Boston Well Represented.

The Boston Market Gardeners' Association was represented by nine members—H. F. Hall, M. E. Moore, Richard Hittinger, J. P. Esty, H. F. Thompson, Sylvester Mead, Alex. Wilson, E. F. Skahan and Lewis Hasenfus—giving Massachusetts a larger representation than any other state save Michigan. Not even Ohio, Illinois or Indiana had nine citizens at the Grand Rapids meeting.

The Boston Market Gardeners' Association, which will carry the convention into new territory and be the host next year, is the oldest organization of its kind in the country, dating from 1886. Its list of 200 members is considerably greater than that of the national association itself. The officers of the association are: President, J. B. Shurtleff, Jr.; vice-presidents, Herbert W. Rawson and William J. Lovell; secretary-treasurer, James P. Esty. The executive committee is composed of the officers and H. F. Hall, M. E. Moore,

BEETLES AND CATERPILLARS.

In The Review of August 4, page 39, L. S. asks for a remedy for the striped cucumber beetles. Here is a recipe that I have used for over twenty years, without its failing to work successfully: A teaspoonful of turpentine in two quarts of sifted ashes. Stir thoroughly, and dust on a small handful, about a heaping tablespoonful to a hill. In about one minute you will see the insects take wing for new pastures. It is not often that more than two applications are necessary.

Also in The Review of September 1, page 9, G. T. S. C. asks how to get rid of the green caterpillars that work on cabbage. I used to make suds of home-made soft soap, making it strong enough so that it felt quite slippery on the hands, and used it as a spray. In one or two minutes after it struck the caterpillars they would coil up backward and die.

HYACINTHUS AND SCILLAS.

Will you inform me whether Hyacinthus amethystinus and H. azureus are of any value commercially? Can they be used for cut flowers, and if so, what treatment do they require? Also tell me about Scilla hyacinthoides, the tall, light blue variety? H. H. G.

Hyacinthus amethystinus and H. azureus are of little commercial value. They make interesting rockery plants and are good for naturalizing. For cut flower purposes they are of little service. Scilla hyacinthoides is a useful plant for naturalizing in woodlands, or along the edge of shrubberies in partial shade. It succeeds best where the soil is naturally moist. While the spikes are quite robust when the bulbs are well established, it is hardly a flower I should care to recommend for cutting. For massing effects in woodlands, it is, however, fine. C. W.

VINCA MINOR.

Is there any sale for Vinca minor? R. F.

There is quite a large sale for Vinca minor. It is much used in cemeteries for covering grave lots, for which it is the finest evergreen plant we have of unquestioned hardiness. It is also a splendid plant for covering banks, even when quite steep. It is good, also, for massing in woodlands or groves and will thrive under unfavorable conditions, where grass and about every other herb will fail. It can be planted with success during any moist weather in spring, summer or fall. It may be propagated either by cuttings or by root division, the latter being the easier method. C. W.

THE pea and bean growers find themselves up in the air; they don't like to talk about deliveries.

M. M. CULLINANE is preparing to build a warehouse and seed store adjoining the M. C. R. R. at Brazil, Ind.

THE boat from France reaching New York September 26 had only one consignment of bulbs, thirty cases for Schall & Co.

ONE of the large London seed and bulb merchants, Howcroft & Watkins, has seen the advantage of taking over a bulb farm in Holland.

THE giganteums are in, and going out again. Prices are advancing as a result of the flood in Japan, which did much damage to the crops, but the bulbs thus far to hand are of excellent quality.

JESSE E. NORTHRUP, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, says that his firm's pea crops in Montana have shared the general fate, are quite unsatisfactory and, in fact, are the poorest crop they have experienced since they first grew peas in the west.

As the result of complaints in recent years regarding spiraeas flowering badly, many of the Dutch exporters have informed their customers that they intend in future to give the roots a longer time to ripen, and that the date of shipment will be later than usual.

BEAN CROP NOT SO BAD.

Arthur B. Clark, president of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., which also operates extensively in the pea and bean districts of Wisconsin and Michigan, while deploring the season's results with onions, and especially with peas, takes a favorable view of the bean situation. On the last day of September he sized up the crops as follows:

"Harvest of our small seeds that we grow here in Connecticut is now completed, and onion has proved the most disappointing, the majority of crops being outright failures, no attempt being made to harvest a head of seed, and we,

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flowering is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and truthfulness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year, name on application. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the winter months. Oz. 10 cts., ¼ lb. 40 cts., ½ lb. 60 cts., lb. $1.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.50, lb. $2.50.

Christmas Meteor. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

spring was the occasion of the outright loss of considerable acreage. Such of the crop, however, as has withstood these untoward conditions has filled out quite well and is having fine weather for maturing.

"Permit us to glide over the subject of peas with just a few words as possible, because it is one of the most unpleasant subjects to dwell upon that it has ever fallen to our lot to be so deeply interested in. We had a large acreage of peas this year, and we certainly longed for a good crop; but with us, at least, the crop outturn is proving little short of disastrous.

"We are still looking for a distinctly more favorable result from our crop of beans; in fact, we hope to average up nicely on our contract deliveries for this item. The worst element in the situation here is that a wet harvest may have reduced our crop outturn in some sections. More than this, it is too early to say with regard to beans."

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending September 24 were as follows.

PEAS AND BEANS.

Peas are turning out even worse than expected, deliveries in many instances falling below field estimates. With beans, on the other hand, no deliveries have as yet been made, and fear is expressed that some of the crops will not mature, weather conditions having not recently been favorable. As recently as October 4, at Green Bay, Wis., E. L. Olmsted made the following statement of the situation:

"Deliveries from farmers have not advanced far enough as yet to enable us to estimate the exact returns on the different varieties of peas. A portion of our acreage on nearly all varieties has been delivered, but the deliveries vary so widely from our field estimates that we can only guess the final outcome until we have received the remaining crops. In a general way we can say that the returns are much poorer than we had anticipated from our earlier receipts. The later varieties, and especially the large-podded sorts, were damaged the most, some of these varieties being practically failures. Within three or four weeks we hope to know definitely the exact yield on all varieties of peas.

"Beans in this state germinated slowly and unevenly, on account of the dryness of the soil at planting time, and many of the fields were planted later than ordinarily. This has made the crop late in maturing and it is a question if all of the fields mature, especially of the later varieties, as there have been frequent and heavy showers during the last three weeks. Fortunately, no killing frosts have occurred in any of the Wisconsin bean-growing sections to date. The present prospect is for about fifty per cent of a normal yield of beans in this state. None of our growers have delivered beans as yet, so we cannot judge how near our field estimates will be to the actual returns."

Perhaps you do not know that six weeks ago many bulb fields in Japan were flooded with water and that several million Giganteum bulbs were practically destroyed; and that hundreds of Japanese were killed or drowned and thousands of homes were wrecked. Yet such is the case, and under existing conditions there will be a larger shortage of good bulbs than is generally anticipated.

Of course, the market prices of good Giganteum are much higher than before the flood. We refer to good bulbs—we don't mean the kind dug out of the mud or affected by plant louse.

Our Yokohama office advise us they have secured at advanced prices a fair quantity of good Giganteum bulbs, which we offer at catalogue prices while they last. These are good bulbs, well packed and the kind that will net a profit worth while.

You Ought to Know

THAT the steady growth of any company is the surest indication of the value of that company's stock and service. It takes the Right Stock, the Right Price and the Right Service to make the Right Growth.

With these facts in mind, a short history of the steady and healthy growth of the Geo. Wittbold Co. should be of the utmost interest to every buyer of plants and nursery stock. During the year 1857, George Wittbold, then only 25 years of age, came to Chicago from Hanover, Germany, where he was born, and entered into partnership with a Mr. Williams, the firm name being Williams & Wittbold. Mr. Wittbold had obtained a thorough knowledge of plant growing at the Royal Botanic Garden in Germany and was well qualified for the responsibilities which he assumed here.

Williams & Wittbold had two places, Mr. Williams conducting one on what is now Fullerton avenue, while Mr. Wittbold's first glass was about where North avenue intersects Clark street, which was then some distance outside the city. At the close of the Civil war the partnership of Williams & Wittbold was dissolved and in 1869 Mr. Wittbold acquired the land on which he lived and conducted his business for forty-one years, till death finally intervened. At the time of his purchase this was marsh ground, far outside the settled city districts. His contemporaries told him it was not worth the $2,000 he agreed to pay for four acres, but by the time Mr. Wittbold had his marsh filled in he had many opportunities to turn his investment profitably.

All the time that Chicago was growing the Wittbold business grew with it. Where in the beginning only a little local trade was handled, in the course of time a big range of glass backed up two retail stores and a large wholesale business was done, both in the city and throughout the west. Mr. Wittbold brought up a family of five sons, each of whom possessed the father's aptitude for the business and all of whom at length became associated with it, assisting in its extension and eventually taking over the entire responsibility. Twelve years ago the Geo. Wittbold Co. was incorporated, the founder occupying the presidency (whose place is now filled by former Vice-President Fred Wittbold, in account of the recent death of Mr. Geo. Wittbold), but each of the other sons holding an interest, with Louis Wittbold as secretary and treasurer. Since that date the progress has been more rapid than at any time in the history of the business. A large nursery and greenhouse plant has been established at Edgebrook, Ill., where there is 70,000 square feet of glass, and 50 acres devoted to growing all kinds of nursery stock. There is in addition to 70,000 square feet of glass in the main establishment at Buckingham place.

Such is the history of this corporation. Now, just a few words about the policy that has made this history of growth possible. You know, and we know, that there can be a great variation in the quality of plants and yet have them strictly up to specifications. Knowing this, we felt that each customer should be given extra good value, in addition to having every shipment exactly fulfill the specification. That being the case, our constant aim and policy in the fifty-two years of our business has been "good value given on every purchase."

Here is another fact that you should not lose sight of: Chicago, being centrally located, has the best railroad facilities in the United States. You will find that you will make a saving in express and freight rates and have the advantage of quick service if you place your order with

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.

Robert Groves, who began in the fern business here a few years ago on a rather modest scale, estimates that his requirements this season will be over 25,000,000. He now has a large number of pickers out on the hills for a dozen miles surrounding the town. The pickers are paid at the rate of 40 cents per thousand, or a penny a bunch, for the ferns delivered. Last year Mr. Groves shipped about 15,000,000 ferns from this section. In addition to the pickers he employs young men designated as scouts, whose business it is to travel over the country and locate promising places. Time was when all that was necessary to do was to go into the woods and pick ferns, but now it is a quite general custom for the property owner to require payment for the privilege of picking ferns on his land. After a tract has been picked over, the ferns will not be of their normal size

SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges—they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K. D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

ZANESVILLE, O.

An Outing and An Organization.

The florists of the city and their employees enjoyed an outing at Moxahala park Thursday afternoon, September 22. One of the features was a ball game between the men and the women, the latter winning by 15 to 14. Ralph Factor won the free-for-all race for men and the backward race for men. Miss Goetz, of Lancaster, won the ladies' free-for-all; Elmer Goodlive and Miss Goetz, the locked-arm race; George Caton, the old men's race, and Miss Goetz the ladies' backward race. A big basket dinner was served. It was decided to have a picnic next year.

A Florists' Club was also organized and the following officers were elected: President, J. T. Goodlive; secretary, Edward Caton; treasurer, Henry Schwab. Monthly meetings will be held.

Washington, Kan.—Mrs. M. L. Penwell, proprietor of the Penwell Greenhouses, has finished rebuilding one of her greenhouses and has been busy restocking it. Trade, she says, has been good throughout the year. The weather has been favorable and flowers have been plentiful.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Wencel L. Cukerski, formerly superintendent of parks, who is now in business for himself as landscape engineer, horticulturist, nurseryman and florist, made an exceptionally good record at the recent West Michigan State Fair, where his exhibits captured twelve first premiums, not to mention three seconds and two thirds.

The importance of collecting a delinquent account grows every day it remains unpaid

Time wasted on ineffectual methods means—
Not only time lost—but opportunities lost

Favorable opportunities for collection lessen with age. The delinquent's view of his moral obligation lessens in time. Besides, your time wasted in your ineffectual efforts could be put to a better purpose—getting new business.

Spend your gray matter on your business—place delinquents where they belong.

We maintain one big Department for the special handling of delinquents for Florists and Nurserymen

It covers every possible contingency in the field of collections—extends the commercial world over—costs nothing if it fails—never fails if collection can be made.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

BROOKS BROS. have bought the stock and good will of the Stannard Nursery, Westbrook, Conn.

ONE of the shrewdest judges of the cut flower values of peonies is buying largely of Delicatissima.

Hippolite Fermaud, who has been at Shenandoah, Ia., for a year, studying the details of the American nursery business under D. S. Lake, is preparing to return to his home at Angers, France.

ALLEGING misrepresentation in the number of budded trees in two nurseries he purchased, R. M. Teague has filed a suit in the Superior Court at Los Angeles, Cal., to recover $12,000 from W. G. Hall. Mr. Teague says he bought the Keim and the Yost nurseries, near Glendora, Cal., from Mr. Hall, for $37,000, and had paid $34,000 before he discovered the alleged fraud.

A MASSACHUSETTS NURSERY.

The corporation known as the New England Nurseries, of Bedford, Mass., owns the property formerly operated by the Shady Hill Nursery Co., a concern whose business was once conducted at Shady Hill, more recently the home of the late Prof. Charles Eliot Norton and the future home of Andover Theological Seminary. The property in Bedford embraces nearly 200 acres of land, and the company controls more than 600 acres in Geneva, N. Y. During recent years the company has made rapid strides toward perfecting the plant in Bedford, but this work is not yet done, for the near future will see a new and larger office and shipping building, with a spur track capable of holding twelve cars at one time—facilities which are fully needed during the busier months of the year. The nursery is located on the southern division of the Boston & Maine railroad. The main output is flowering shrubs, hardy perennials, vines and evergreens, and during the busy seasons from fifty to seventy-five men are employed. An independent water supply and electric light plant located on the grounds add to the facilities, as well as a building for the construction of shipping cases, where upward of 5,000 cases were made last season. A landscape department has been maintained for some time and is increasing steadily in its relative importance to the rest of the business.

the street and is heavily shaded with large elm and maple trees. The soil, which is a loam, seems entirely dead, probably due to the large trees drawing their nourishment from it. Can anything in the way of low shrubbery be encouraged to grow there with proper soil preparation? If so, please suggest the kind of shrubbery and the soil preparation which would be most likely to produce the best results. L. R. K.

Conditions such as you describe are not good for any variety of shrub. Elm roots are particularly bad for impoverishing the ground. Even if you dig out and prepare a bed, the chances are that the elm roots will soon fill it. Still, if your customer wants something planted, I would advise digging out the bed or border to the depth of twenty-four inches. Remove all stones or gravelly subsoil, replace with good loam and mix in a good coat of rotted manure. Assuming that you do not want any tall shrubs, the best one you can plant will be Berberis Thunbergii, which succeeds well under quite adverse conditions and is beautiful winter and summer, while no insects trouble it. C. W.

HARDY PERENNIALS

All the plants named below will be supplied in heavy field clumps. We call especial attention to the hardy chrysanthemums and every florist should have a collection of the choice pompon and large-flowering varieties here offered. The strong field roots will be found particularly desirable for winter propagation.

The Great New Forcing Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora Alba or—

“HILLS OF SNOW”

Illustration of a two-year-old field-grown, cut back plant, forced, of Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora Alba. The true forcing variety.

back plants, potted in heavy soil without a fertilizer. Where stimulants were used, the tendency was towards a weak neck that would not hold the mammoth bloom upright. It is imperative, to get the best results, that the plants should be subjected to hard freezing before bringing into the heat.

This shrub forces easily both for Easter and Decoration day. This new Hydrangea is without question the grandest shrub or plant of any kind for forcing that is in existence today. This statement will admit of no controversy.

To show how easily it can be brought into flower, a neighbor florist, just starting in the business, without any previous knowledge on forcing plants, having never forced a single plant of any kind, potted 500 field plants the 20th of October, plunging them in a cold frame. Nine weeks before Easter part of them were brought in and kept at a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees; during the day the temperature would run from 50 to 60 degrees. They were in full flower for Easter.

The balance of the plants were brought in the 20th of March and kept about the same temperature. The first bloom perfected the 12th of May, and the lot was in full bloom for Decoration day and—What a sight! Enough to warm the cockles in the heart of any florist. Everyone who saw them could but wonder.

The plants on which the canes were allowed to remain, when brought in, threw out branches a foot to 15 inches in length with a bloom on every tip. Those that were cut back to within four inches of the pot, the eyes broke near the base of the plant, throwing up from five to eight canes three feet high, with blooms of the purest snow white that were a foot in diameter. The lasting qualities of its flowers are one of its great money making points, as the blooms last in perfect condition from two to three weeks.

The best flowers were produced from cut

IMPORTANT

As is well known, there are two distinct varieties of this new Hydrangea, one of which cannot be coddled or coaxed into producing a single flower under glass. The stock we offer is the true forcing variety. We have a fine stock of 50,000 one, two and three-year-old field-grown plants, ready to pot up for forcing. These will move quickly. Order to-day.

One-year, field-grown plants, 12 to 18 inches, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000.

One-year, field-grown, 18 to 24 inches, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1,000.

Two-year, field-grown, 18 to 24 inches, 2 to 3 canes, $2.00 per doz.; $14.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1,000.

Two-year, field-grown, select, 3 to 5 canes, $3.00 per doz.; $20.00 per 100; $175.00 per 1,000.

Three-year, field-grown, 24 to 30 inches, 5 to 8 canes, $4.00 per doz.; $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1,000.

Three-year, field-grown, select, 10 to 12 canes, $6.00 per doz.; $40.00 per 100.

The Market.

Business is showing a decided tendency to improve. Stocks of flowers are being used up much more closely and are in much better demand than for many weeks. There is a gradual upward tendency that is becoming more noticeable daily in the realm of prices, and all good stock is moving nicely.

Asters are practically over for the year and the mums are with us in good shape. The inside early sorts are now at their best and the field-grown article will be at its height in a few days. The prices are about on a par with those of last season and the flowers are equally good.

Violets are a shade more plentiful and are of a little better substance than they have been. Roses are scarce, except the short-stemmed stock, of which there is an abundance. Carnations are getting a little more plentiful, but it will be several weeks before they arrive in heavy numbers. Valley is not overplentiful and it moves well. Japanese lilies are at the end of their crop. Late-flowered amaryllis are in, as well as tuberose. Other kinds of outside stock move about as usual.

Various Notes.

Samuel Lundy, representing W. A. Manda, is in town again, renewing old acquaintances and looking up new business for his house.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, is visiting the local dealers. He reports business ahead of that at the corresponding time last year.

The Stockdale Nurseries, of Burlingame, of which Henry Maier has been the manager, have been purchased by the MacRorie-McLaren Co.

J. E. Bonsall, of Salem, O., is in town on a short visit.

Serveau Bros., the well known Fillmore street florists, will open a downtown store at 128 Post street in a few days.

The R. Hackel Floral Co., of Powell street, will move next door to its present location about October 1. The firm is fitting up the premises in splendid shape and will have one of the largest stores on the street.

The California State Floral Society and the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will hold their autumn exhibition at the Fairmount hotel, October 21 to 23.

The Florists' Board of Trade will have its new by-laws ready for distribution in a few days.

F. Jaeger and John Kappelman have combined with the firm of Antonini & Co., and a corporation has been formed which will operate two stores in town.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Conditions last week were exceptionally favorable. Business took a sudden turn, and was far better than had been anticipated the week before. With September on the wane, a great many weddings were crowded into the last week, which, of course, always creates a demand. Funeral work was a close second, and the general demand came in for its share.

As no frost has as yet put in an appearance, outside stock is still coming in. Sweet peas and dahlias are good and command a good sale. The balance of outside stock is poor and also little in demand.

Roses are in the best of condition and carnations are getting better constantly. The demand is good for mums and violets and the stock is getting plentiful.

Various Notes.

The first bowling match of the season was pulled off September 29, at St. Paul. The Minneapolis boys carried off the honors.

The State Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting September 20, and it was well attended. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Theo. Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, August Swanson, St. Paul; treasurer, E. Nagel, Minneapolis; secretary, J. Jorgenson, Minneapolis.

Rice Bros. will furnish the southern smilax to be used at the Minneapolis flower show next month. The order calls for a carload. They have also just received a large importation of magnolia leaves. This firm has just installed a new cooler, covering 108 square feet of floor space. This is a much needed addition, and puts the firm in a better position to care for its ever increasing trade.

Visitors: A. M. Kinsman, Austin, Minn.; Mr. Hart, of the Clinton Falls Nursery Co., Owatonna, Minn.; L. E. Austin, Glencoe, Minn.; John Elstrom, Spicer, Minn.; E. J. Fancourt, with Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

The Market.

Trade at the present writing is good, but stock is extremely scarce and everything in the cut flower line is sold at sight, and it is a difficult matter to obtain enough stock for orders. Asters are done for, and we are now waiting for chrysanthemums to put in their appearance, which will be in about a week. They will be decidedly welcome.

Roses are only fair in quality, as a great many are mildewed. We are receiving some nice carnations, but they are not in sufficient supply to meet the demand. Dahlias are in moderate supply, and ferns are the best sellers at present. Cosmos has made its appearance and was a welcome addition on Saturday.

Various Notes.

The dahlia show of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. this year was a great success. These annual events have come to be regarded as the floricultural feature of the autumn in this community, and many visitors are attracted. The Gardeners' & Florists' Club attended the show Tuesday, September 27. In all, over 7,000 visitors saw the display, which was marvelous, considering the extremely dry season.

There has been much building in hand this fall, in spite of the high cost of materials and the scarcity of labor. R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. has the biggest job on hand, which is being rushed to completion for geraniums. It consists of two houses, 35x250 each, to be heated by a large Furman boiler.

At the regular meeting of the Gardeners' & Florists' Club, October 10, Mr. Vincent will give an illustrated lecture on his trip to the various flower shows in Belgium and Holland. Over 300 slides are to be shown. It will also be ladies' night.

Philip B. Welsh, of Glen Morris, Md., has been cutting some extra fine Golden Glow mums and shipping them to the Baltimore Florists' Exchange.

Henry Eichholz, of Waynesboro, Pa., displayed some plants of his new red carnation, Christmas Cheer, at the Florists' Exchange at Baltimore recently.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?

WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known ever-lasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Azaleas, well shaped plants. Deutsche Perle, Niobe, Simon Mardner, Mme. Van der Cruyssen, De Schryveriana, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

Rubber Plants, 6-in., 35c and 40c.
Pteris Wilsoni, 6 in. pans, nice and bushy, 25c.
Asparagus Plumosus, 2½-in., 3c; 3-in., 5c; 4-in., 10c.

All plants 25 at 100 rate. Cash with order, please. All plants must travel at risk of purchaser only.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business was brisk last week. Funeral work was specially good. Asters and carnations were in evidence, though the asters were getting poor and small. The latter retailed at 35 cents per dozen. Carnations are of fair quality; they retailed at 50 cents per dozen. Good roses sold at $1.50 per dozen, retail. A few gladioli were to be seen and there were oceans of dahlias to cut from. Some nice ferns are now coming in.

Various Notes.

E. H. Chamberlain was on the sick list last week.

Harry Kranzler and Julius Rositzky are back again at their posts, after an enjoyable week in New York.

W. S. Brown has a large gang of men at work grading around the new public library.

S. S. Peckham was appointed one of the trustees at a meeting of the creditors of J. H. Cleary. Another report will be made in a few weeks.

R. H. Woodhouse has his carnations in fine shape.

E. Y. Peirce has installed a No. 6 Kroeschell hot water boiler. This will heat his entire range. He will dispose of the several small boilers he has taken out.

Wm. H. Davenport, Wm. P. Peirce and R. E. Nofftz all report trade as good. W. L.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—A. C. Toof is president of the Rhinebeck Violet Growers' Association, which now numbers 140 members. Like so many other successful growers in the district, he came into the business from another occupation, being still engaged in the lumber trade. He designs and erects greenhouses, and a great many of the violet houses have been put up with his material.

Greenhouse Management.

By PROF. L. R. TAFT, of Michigan Agricultural College. A manual for florists and flower lovers on the forcing of flowers, vegetables and fruits in greenhouses, and the propagation and care of house plants. It treats of all the plants commonly cultivated by florists and amateurs, and explains in a thorough manner the methods that have been found most successful in growing them. Particular attention is paid to the growing of cut flowers, the growing of fruits under glass, etc. Of special value will be the directions for treating plants when attacked by insects and fungi. The preparation of the soil, the use of various manures, composts and fertilizers, watering, ventilating and heating receive careful and minute attention. Cloth. 400 pages. $1.50 flowers were killed. What we urgently need now is a soaking rain; everything is distressingly dry.

BOSTON NOTES.

W. E. Turner, of Woburn, is first in the market with a fine grade of pansies, as well as single violets in quantity.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, at the Boston Flower Exchange, are handling quantities of fine dahlias. They are again growing an immense quantity of Dutch, French and other bulbs, and will soon be marketing Paper Whites in quantity.

Among S. J. Goddard's output at present are fine Pink Delight, Dorothy Gordon, Winsor and other carnations, also an excellent lot of early mums.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, is once more in the field with quantities of Campbell violets, which he grows of excellent quality. He has lately devoted his houses to cucumbers and tomatoes.

There is great disappointment over the cutting out of the chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society this fall. Boston can, however, afford this omission better than most of the other cities, which only hold one show a year, while Boston has many. Exhibitions next year will more than compensate for any omissions in 1910.

At Thomas Roland's big plant factory at Nahant the houses are filled to overflowing with beautifully grown plants. Lorraines and cyclamens are seen in large numbers and of finer quality than ever before, and there is a large variety of other choice stock.

J. T. Butterworth has an unusually fine lot of Cattleya labiata this season, sheaths with five to seven flowers being common. He also has some good oncidiums, Dendrobium Phalaenopsis and other orchids. He has received as usual a big lot of Dutch and French bulbous stock. W. N. Craig.

FRANKLIN, PA.

Philip Bell, of the Bell Floral Co., returned at the end of September from a trip to Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where he went on account of the hay fever, from which he has suffered for thirty years. He did not have a touch of it while in the north, but returned too soon, for he was attacked by it on the way home. He called at the Breitmeyer store in Detroit and also at the Jones-Russell Co. and the J. M. Gasser Co. stores in Cleveland.

The Bell Floral Co. recently had the decoration for the opening of the new clothing store of Printz Bros. The store and fixtures are the blue-green mission finish. Palms and ferns with southern smilax were used, with a number of vases of cut flowers. Roses were given to each lady visitor during the opening.

EAST MANCHESTER, N. H.

The East Manchester Dahlia Gardens, managed by two ladies, Mrs. J. F. Dickey and Miss P. A. Woodman, are growing, this season, 350 varieties, including many new European sorts. They made a large exhibit at the Rochester fair and captured a number of prizes. Souvenir de Gustave Doazon they have grown ten inches in diameter this season. The demand for both roots and cut flowers they have found good.

Rochester, N. H.—Melvin Folsom has been making improvements at his greenhouses, on North Main street.

Greenhouse Heating.

THERE are those who affirm that, after all is said and done, the second-hand boiler flue still is the ideal for greenhouse heating.

You know there will be a fuel famine in the winter. Well, don't be one of those who are caught. Now is the time to protect yourself.

WATER BOILS OVER.

We are heating two houses, containing 5,000 square feet of glass, with 2,600 feet of 2-inch pipe for radiation. There are two 3-inch flows and two 3-inch returns to the boiler. It is an upright boiler, with plenty of capacity. As an expansion tank we use a large storage tank, which is fifteen feet above the bottom of the boiler. A 1-inch pipe, running from the bottom of the boiler to the tank, is used for filling the boiler and as an expansion pipe. In starting a quick fire and raising the water to 100 degrees, the boiler is nearly emptied and nearly all the water is forced into the tank above. Is there any danger of explosion and is there any way of overcoming this trouble?

W. S.

For 5,000 square feet of glass it will be well to use 1,700 feet of radiating surface for 60 degrees, or 1,250 feet for 50 degrees. The question does not state what temperature is desired, or whether the flow pipes are carried through the house so as to afford radiation. When the water in the boiler behaves as described, there is certainly something wrong with the arrangement of the piping. It is probable that much of the trouble would be avoided if the piping could be arranged so that the flows would run downhill, after rising from the boiler as nearly vertically as possible to what would be the highest point in the system, and from this point a 1¼-inch pipe should be run to the expansion tank. This would do away with the necessity for air valves and there would be no trouble from the water boiling over as described.

BOILER SCALE.

Is there anything we can put in our boiler to destroy the coating of lime on the interior, caused by the hot water? It is a tubular steam boiler. M. & J.

There is a considerable number of concerns through the United States manufacturing what the trade knows as boiler compounds. One of these compounds that is used satisfactorily by a number of florists is called Solventene and is manufactured by the Northern Chemical Co., Cleveland, O. If you write to them, tell them where you obtained the address, as they should be regular advertisers in The Review.

GREENHOUSE AND DWELLING.

I am building a small propagating house, 12x60 feet, nine feet to the ridge and five feet to the eaves. The side walls contain three feet of glass and two feet of concrete. One end is glass. The roof is even-span, with 8-foot sash-bars. The house runs north and south, with the boiler pit at the south end and two feet lower than the floor of the greenhouse.

I have planned to run a 2½-inch flow up to within twenty inches of the gable and then divide into two 2-inch flows, passing along under the ridge to the north end, where one flow will branch down to either side, into three 2-inch returns under the bench on the east side and three returns on the west side wall, as the west half of the house has a solid bed, one foot high. The other 2-inch ridge flow will drop to the ground level and pass under the floor of the dwelling, to heat three rooms there. The rooms are all on the first floor and are 8x8, 8x12 and 14x20. They will be heated with two radiators. The expansion tank is to be placed at the highest point, at the south end, where the 2½-

HOW? Because it is an accurate, fully tested thermometer, showing the correct temperature at all times, and combines a device which will ring a bell at your bedside when the greenhouse gets either too hot or too cold. Just the protection you have wanted all these years.

We guarantee that results will be obtained at all times. This device has been subjected to the severest tests in our laboratory for over two years, and at the same time has given entire satisfaction, under all conditions, to many users in the trade.

All you have to do is to set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures you want and the thermometer will do the rest. It will ring a good, loud bell when either point is reached, and saves all worry over trouble from sudden temperature changes.

inch flow divides at the ridge. These flows will have about four inches of fall toward the north end. Will this piping maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees in zero weather? Occasionally in southern Kansas we have a "snap" 12 to 15 degrees below zero. Would it be better to continue the 2½-inch flow to the north end, instead of the two 2-inch flows?

What size of hot water boiler will be needed for this plan, and what size of radiators? Would 1½-inch pipe be too small for the returns? Any suggestions or information will be highly appreciated.
 C. H. C.

As it will require 375 square feet of radiating surface to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees in the greenhouse and at least 150 feet for the dwelling, it will not be advisable to try to supply the two with a 2½-inch main, nor will a 2-inch main feed the coils in the greenhouse. Either run a 3-inch main from the boiler to the north end of the greenhouse, and, after taking off a 2½-inch supply pipe for the greenhouse, continue it as a 2½-inch supply pipe to the dwelling, or run independent 2½-inch supply pipes for the greenhouse and dwelling. In addition to the foregoing and a 2½-inch return from the dwelling, there should be seven 2-inch returns in the greenhouse, the odd one being on the west side. Each coil should have a 2-inch connection with the main flow and return. If preferred, 1½-inch pipe could be used, putting in nine instead of seven.

The heater should have a rating for at least 600 square feet of radiation, and it will be better if it is 750 square feet. About 150 square feet of radiation will be required for the dwelling, with ninety feet in the larger and sixty in the smaller radiator. It would be better to place 30-foot radiators in each of the small rooms and two of about forty-five feet each in the large room, locating them near an exposed wall or under a window if possible.

THREE CONNECTED HOUSES.

Will you please tell me how to pipe my three connected houses for hot water? The houses run east and west. The north house, which is the largest, is three-quarter-span. It is 18x65 feet and twelve feet to the ridge. I want it piped for 60 degrees when the temperature outside is at zero. The middle house is 12x65 feet and ten feet to the ridge. In it I want a temperature of 55 degrees. The south house is 12x65 feet and ten feet to the ridge. It has eighteen inches of glass in the south wall. I wish to run it at 52 degrees.

The east ends of all the houses are glass. The north wall of the largest house is six and one-half feet high and contains no glass. There are three benches in each house, and the center bench in the largest house is six feet wide. I wish to use 3-inch pipe part of the way, for flows and returns, and then use 2-inch flows and 1½-inch returns. I have a twelve horse-power traction engine boiler. The boiler pit is at the northwest corner of the north house, and is six feet deep. I am located in southern Tennessee.

C. M. W.

For the house 18x65 feet, to be heated to 60 degrees, use two 3-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns. In the middle house, 12x65 feet, a temperature of 55 degrees can be obtained by using two 3-inch flows and four 2-inch returns. In the south house, which is also 12x65 feet, and in which it is desired to have a temperature of 52 degrees, the same number of pipes should be used as for 55 degrees, as there is an exposed wall with eighteen inches of glass. If 2-inch flows and 1½-inch returns are to be used for the last two houses, it will be necessary to use three flows and six returns.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business was slow in this vicinity last week and stock moved with considerable apathy. Monday there was a slight flurry, caused by the demand for flowers for the funeral of Gen. Charles R. Brayton, the "blind boss" of the republican party. Carnations are scarce, and much complaint is being heard on all sides of the disease that is cutting off the plants in alarming numbers. Asters are practically gone and chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Prices range normal.

R. I. Horticultural Show.

The September exhibition under the auspices of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in Columbia hall, September 29 and 30, and by long odds excelled any show held by the society in many years. It was for dahlias, asters and fruit. Several new policies adopted resulted in much benefit to the society. A practical, liberal and ener-

Foster Pressure Regulator

With this simple device attached to your steam main just inside the greenhouse the pressure on the heating coils will be absolutely constant, anywhere from 1 to 15 pounds (whatever the grower sets the Regulator at), no matter how the pressure on the boilers runs up and down.

If the weather changes, or the sun heat varies, instead of turning on more pipes, just turn a nut on the Regulator, and get more steam, or less steam, at once. Made in sizes from 3/4-inch to 10-inch just for this work.

getic exhibition committee contributed not a little to the standard of exhibits and general arrangement of the hall. No price of admission was charged, and this resulted in a greatly augmented attendance, and several applications for membership resulted. Then the limiting of competitors for premiums to Rhode Island exhibitors caused larger and better showings from the local growers, while several large out-of-state growers were in evidence, being given certificates of merit where worthy.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Speaking from the wholesaler's viewpoint, last week's business was a decided improvement over that of the week previous. The week started in a little slow, as if the same monotonous run of trade might continue, but while the week was yet young, orders picked up surprisingly and stock began to disappear rapidly. Roses, which were rather overplentiful in previous weeks, did not come fast enough last week; this was especially true with the long-stemmed ones. There was also a big demand for lilies, none of which went begging. As yet, the supply of carnations is limited and it is an utter impossibility to keep up with orders for them.

The retail trade last week was somewhat spasmodic; one day there would be a good rush of business in one section of town, and the next day it would switch to another section, so the retailers were not able to give quite such glowing reports on business as the wholesalers. Shipping trade to neighboring towns was most excellent, and almost invariably the cause for the sudden demand was brought on by funeral work.

We are at present having most agreeable weather, with plenty of sunshine, which is bringing stock along in a fine, healthy condition. Some nice carnations are being cut from the fields. Asters are about done for, there being only a few stragglers brought into the street market by the gardeners; the same holds true with gladioli.

Everything considered, trade during the month of September was quite satisfactory and the supply of stock was abundant. More business, however, could have been taken care of. The weather throughout the month was ideal.

Various Notes.

The Dayton Florists' Club, which had been adjourned for the summer months, held its regular monthly business meeting at the J. F. Young establishment on East Fifth street, October 3. Quite a large representation was present and much interest was manifest among the members.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Schaefer, of the Advance Floral Co., are the proud parents of a baby daughter born last week. Needless to say, Mr. Schaefer wears that smile that never comes off, for the new arrival is their first child.

Visitors last week were: Fred Lemke, representing W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Mr. Ludwig, of Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.; Louis Elsass, of McKellar Greenhouses, Chillicothe, O.; Henry Ehrhardt, Sidney, O.; J. Q. Mulford, Lebanon, O. R. A. B.

KOKOMO, IND.

T. L. Knipe has recently completed another carnation house, 25x150 feet, giving him over 12,000 feet of modern glass. Mr. Knipe installed a new heating plant last season. He recently was married and has just moved into a fine little bungalow. His greenhouses are well stocked with carnations, roses, mums, violets, lilies and palms, and he is doing a prosperous retail trade.

Fred Kelley has enjoyed an excellent business, largely cemetery trade, and has had to add two large greenhouses to his range, with a new heating apparatus. His establishment is known as the Crown Point Greenhouses.

Some people think that in a short time Kokomo will take the laurels away from New Castle as the rose growing center of Indiana. L. A. Coles now has over 15,000 feet of glass devoted exclusively to Beauties, shipping his cut to the J. B. Deamud Co., Chicago. Mr. Coles won a prize on his Beauties at the last Chicago show against keen competition.

Roses are in fine form at the establishment of Walter W. Coles. They have been cutting Monrovia chrysanthemums for some time. Mr. Coles devotes a large part of his glass to mums, shipping a considerable part to the wholesale market. His carnations made an excellent start this year and he has been cutting stock with fair stems for some time. He is devoting considerable space to his crimson seedling, named Mrs. Walter W. Coles, which it is said he will shortly disseminate.

W. A. & J. S. Bitler have just completed a 35-foot brick stack and feel that their heating troubles are about over.

The Logic Of Our Pipe Frame House

THE weight of roof bars, glass and the amount of wind and snow pressure are the same no matter what kind of a greenhouse you build. There are certain definite laws of roof strain and roof support that are just as unchangeable. The question is how to support a roof in the most rigid manner without loading your house up with either columns or an elaborate series of cross and crisscross trussing. This Pipe Frame Construction of ours solves the problem.

Look at that Giant Arch and the width you get to it in a 30 foot house by that small auxiliary purlin and V shaped linking up to the arch cross tie.

It's a safe house, a light house and a house that will last.

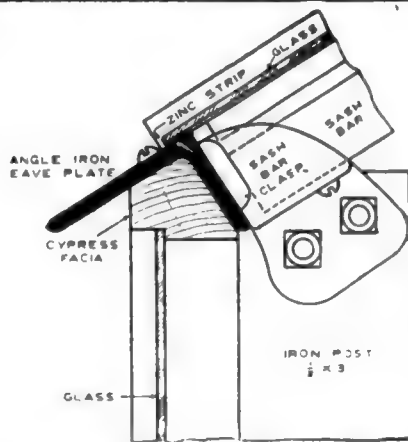

Send for particulars about the side posts, eave and so on.

Cast Iron Gutter

HERE'S a gutter with enough iron and enough of the right kind of iron to make it strong enough to stand the strain. From all over the country come to us complaints of other gutters breaking in putting up and after being up. That's why we made this gutter the way it is made—and we haven't had any kicks—that tells the story.

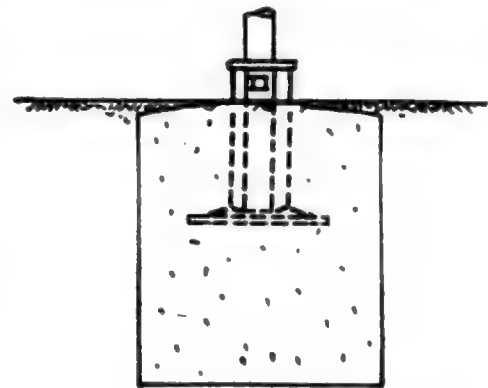

Cast in 8 feet 4 inch lengths. Drip gutters have drain pipes—Roof water is not carried down inside post to quickly rust it out and weaken the entire house. Send for particulars and especially the price.

Indestructible Eave

(Patented)

THE eave you are looking for. It is steel, heavily galvanized. Equipped with a Cast Iron Bar Clasp having a drip opening so that the end of the bar is kept dry, preventing end rot. Gives tremendous strength to the entire frame of your house. It's the lightest eave yet. Sold in any quantity, all spaced and drilled for the clasps, which are furnished with the plate. Write for prices.

Cast Iron Foot Pieces

DON'T make that mistake of putting your pipe posts right into the concrete; they will rust out "just as sure as preaching." And when they do, what a job on your hands! Use our Cast Iron Foot Pieces and imbed them in the concrete, then you can replace a post at any time or change its height. The price is right. Send for it.

Asbestos For Boiler Covering

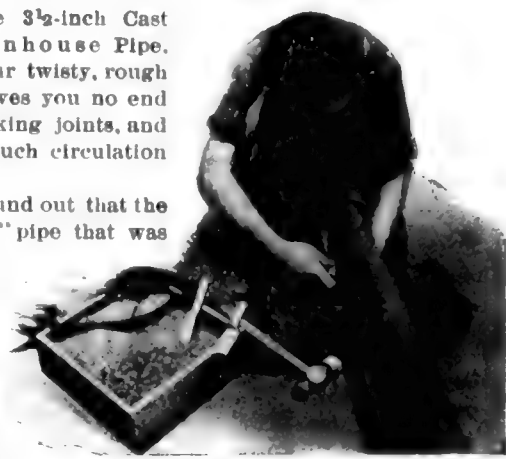

DON'T put off covering your boiler—it's simply common sense to do it, for the more heat you keep in your boiler, the more you get in your coils. The amount of heat that escapes from an uncovered boiler would open your eyes. Ask any heating engineer.

We sell this Asbestos cement in 130 lb. bags. One bag covers 30 square feet, one inch thick. Write for prices.

Cast Iron Pipe

REAL, genuine 3½-inch Cast Iron Greenhouse Pipe. None of your twisty, rough cast stuff, that gives you no end of trouble in making joints, and no telling how much circulation friction.

We long ago found out that the only way to get "pipe that was pipe" was to cast it ourselves. Now we can guarantee our pipe and know our customers are getting their money's worth. Send for prices.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

RETAIL ADVERTISING.

A Substitute for Crepe Chasing.

"Advertising is a peculiar proposition—the more you do of it the less you think you know about it—but in business today one simply must advertise or drop behind; either that or chase crepe."

The epigram was coined by H. P. Knoble, but epigrams never are to be taken literally. Mr. Knoble did not mean the remark to be applied to any particular case, or individual—it wasn't personal; it was just his attention-gripping way of saying that if one doesn't advertise he has got to work all the harder, by some other method, to keep up with the procession.

Knoble Bros. started their retail flower store in Cleveland four years ago, adopted advertising as the readiest means of reaching the public, and who have been consistent advertisers ever since.

A Task for Strong Minds.

This is the time of year that retail florists are preparing to put into effect their plans for booming business this fall, and with an increasing number these preparations include at least a little advertising in the leading local paper. Florists have been slow to take up advertising, but it never is too late to commence—it's like turning over a new leaf: you don't need to wait till New Year's, except that it gives you an excuse for not yet awhile doing yourself a benefit that calls for the exercise of a little of your own mental power. For advertising, no matter how easy it is to say "yes" to the solicitor, or how much easier to say, "No, I won't consider it," really requires some little actual thought if it is going to be worth the money it will cost.

Because so many retailers are interested in advertising, Mr. Knoble's plan will be of value as affording a basis for a beginning by those similarly situated in other cities.

An All-Season Plan.

"In the autumn we start out with sales on Boston ferns and other plants for the home. Then come some Halloween suggestions, followed by a general talk on good mums, with a cut of some. This leads up to the Thanksgiving ads that aim to show the incompleteness of the flowerless dinner table. After Thanksgiving we start the Christmas advertising, running cuts and text on immortelle and boxwood wreaths; later we cover other lines of the holiday stock. In January we got up a series of flower talks—fifteen in all—each devoted to some one suggestion for the use of flowers and pointing out the ease and satisfaction of ordering flowers from Knoble's. In February we broke into the series of flower talks with some successful ads on corsage bouquets, showing them up as without equal as valentines, and, say, how they did sell! March we devote to advertising Easter goods, usually running plain type, no cuts. After Easter we talk boxwood trees for lawns, etc. Then a digression for Memorial day, and after that wedding bouquets for the June brides.

"Up to this year that ended the season, but during July and August of this year we ran the spray ad, to see if the flower business had become an all-the-year-round occupation. We conclude it has."

So much for the plan. You see, Mr. Knoble has it all figured out in advance; he doesn't go at it spasmodically, advertising only when some solicitor asks him to, and neglecting it otherwise; not he; he knows what time he has to cover and how far his money will go. This is what he says about the "to be a good fellow" kind of advertising:

The One Best Paper Is Enough.

"We started in business four years ago, and have always advertised a little, that's like going after big game with a shotgun."

Mr. Knoble didn't form his conclusion hastily; it represents four years of costly experience that ought to be of real money value to others. After trying everything that came along, "just to oblige the solicitors," he says, "we went to the other extreme and did nothing at all except in the city directory and the telephone directory. We paid the extra price of preferred space, but soon found that we could do better if we changed our copy more frequently. Next we tried the largest daily paper, only going into it every Friday, with a space that ran all the way from four inches single column to six, or even eight, inches double column. From this we got good results; it was the real beginning of our advertising."

What Experience Taught.

"As our business grew, of course, our appropriation for advertising grew, so we went in twice a week, on Tuesday and Friday evenings. Next we took up the best Sunday paper and have since been in it every Sunday. Since last June we have been running in another daily evening paper, but somewhat against our better judgment, and since October 1 we have gone in on the second largest Sunday paper, but only on trial. Our firm belief is that the one best evening paper and the one best Sunday paper reach all the buyers we need, without going into anything else."

"You don't double the number of buyers reached when you double your expense by taking on another paper—far from it."

right from the beginning. At first we went into everything that came along, but we soon found that it was only a good way to spend money—it didn't bring returns. Now our firm belief is that the best evening daily and the best Sunday paper can't be beat; it gives sufficient circulation without going into anything else, and when you confine your advertising to the one best paper you have enough money to make a show and keep going steadily. It's a lot more impressive to lump your expenditure into one good ad than it is to split it up into a lot of little ones;

"The biggest paper—the one that carries the most advertising—is the one that has the greatest advertising value. It's so in Cleveland, and it's so everywhere else."

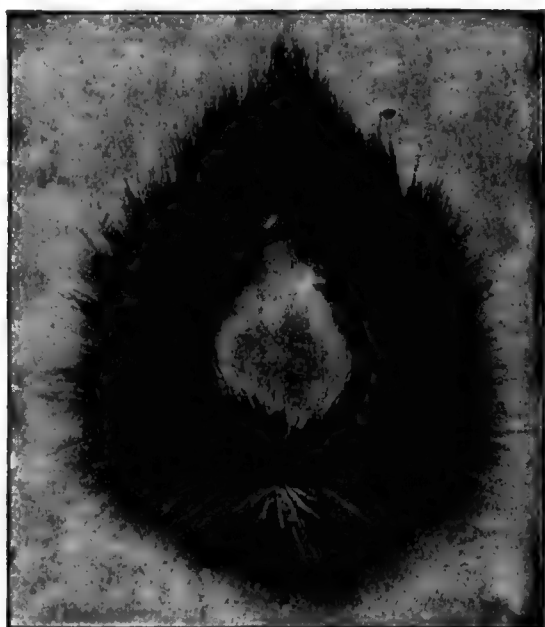

The Cost of Advertising.

A lot of retail florists look on newspaper advertising as expensive, but it isn't so in Cleveland, and probably it isn't so in other cities of that size; in fact, it's cheap when you compare the cost with the service. For instance:

"The Cleveland Press, the evening paper, prints 160,000 copies, and its rate is $1.47 per inch. That's putting a 4-inch ad in the hands of more than 270 people for a penny. The Sunday issue of the Plain Dealer does almost as well; it gives 114,000 circulation for $1.53 per inch. Of course, the others cost more in proportion, the smaller papers always do."

Few florists tackle the subject of advertising in such a business-like way that they set aside any definite sum for advertising—they go at it catch-as-catch-can. For a while they spend quite a little, taking in everything that comes along, perhaps on the theory that all advertising is better than none, when they wake up to the fact that it has run into quite a sum. Then they go to the other extreme, and you couldn't separate them from a dollar with anything less than a free write-up—almost any man will fall for that, never stopping to consider that the papers that are freest with the salve are the ones that it is least worth while to be in. But this is the way Knoble Bros. fix the amount of their expenditure:

How It Pays.

Just how well it pays is an interesting point. In spite of some belief to the contrary, it is easy to trace returns from advertising. You can see the work of the ads in the sales tickets, or in the cash book. Of the spray ad here reproduced, Mr. Knoble, who writes all the copy himself, says:

"This has brought big returns. The summer months always are considered dull by the faithful, so we concluded we would spend some money this summer to see if we couldn't liven things up a little. The spray ad was what we did it with. During July our business increased about fifteen per cent over last year, but in August it just ran wild, increasing over sixty-two per cent as compared with 1909, and September did equally well.

"You see, it took about a month for the ad to get its roots down into the soil, but when it took hold its fruits were fine. We are undecided about dropping the spray ad for our other stuff, but probably will run it in connection with the rest of the season's series.

"On the whole, we are well satisfied with our investment in advertising, and give it at least a part of the credit for our being—nowadays you can't just sit down and wait for business to come to you; you've got to go out after it; not only go after it, but go after it hard, and keep going.

THE LESSON IN A WINDOW.

The shop window as a means of carrying a message is being studied more and more by our floral artists. They aim to express a sentiment, bringing it out more or less strongly as their tastes dictate. Through its aid they are able to cultivate the love for flowers, to attach a meaning quite unknown to many, or, where this is not understood, they can at least awaken a love for the beautiful.

The window that I have in mind was planned to suggest the appropriateness of a floral offering upon the arrival of a baby girl or boy. In the center of the window was placed a vase containing a number of pockets for single flowers. These pockets were filled with bright yellow dahlias of the single type, Yellow Century, I think it was, their canary-like color contrasting prettily with the dark vase and darker background. Around the vase and at the back of the window were various suggestions of baby days. I will not outrage the inventive ingenuity of my readers by describing these dainty touches, leaving it to his or her taste to add whatever is necessary to awaken the idea in the happy father's mind as he trudges home from business that a floral offering would not only be acceptable, but appropriate.

Nor do I mean to say that dahlias should be used—far from it; doubtless you will think of something quite as good or better, only teach the lesson; teach it in your own way. I am indebted to Charles Henry Fox for this idea but poorly described. Phil.

ANOTHER WESTERN WEDDING.

In The Review of October 6 there appeared an illustration of a wedding decoration by the Stegall Floral Co., Texarkana, Ark. To avoid any conception that the picture showed the exceptional rather than the ordinary class of decorations used in Texarkana, here is another one, in another church, covering more space and more elaborate in all particulars. This also is a chrysanthemum decoration, and the fact is that one followed the other on the Stegall order book with so short an interval that A. W. Ardis, the proprietor, thinks these might be taken as the standard style of decoration at the corner where Arkansas and Texas join hands.

This decoration, composed principally of palms, ferns, smilax and green festooning, with chrysanthemums, roses and carnations for cut flowers, is an excellent example of a tasteful decoration and worthy of study by other retailers, but the inscription over the wedding bell would better be omitted. Every now and then this is called for, and florists, of course, have to provide that which their patrons wish, but it may be taken that those who receive invitations to the wedding are likely to know what is going on, without having the names of the contracting parties lettered in chenille, as lettering still is done on a certain class of funeral designs.

A WATERPROOF RIBBON.

In the flower business, as in Wall street, water appears to be a necessary evil, and every florist knows the trouble occasioned through the wetting of the ribbons, which have come to be an indispensable part of up-to-date flower arrangements. Often the condition of the textiles reflects little credit on the florist, after exposure to the moisture necessary to preserve the freshness of the flowers. Wertheimer Bros., of New York, now come forward with the statement that they have perfected a waterproof ribbon without injuring the luster of fabric in any way. It will be recalled that this firm was the introducer of the now quite generally used Sprinkleproof chiffon, and they say that their waterproof ribbon will prove a worthy companion, marking an epoch in the florists' ribbon business.

Bryantville, Mass.—The Halifax Gardens Co., which formerly devoted its glass to vegetables, is this season giving half its space to carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas.

STORING GLADIOLUS BULBS.

Will you kindly inform me how I best can store gladiolus bulbs through the winter? What is the best temperature to keep them in? Is it a good way to pack them in dry sand in the cellar after they are well cured? W. E.

After lifting, cut the stems back to within four to six inches of the bulb. Let them dry well before housing. Shelves in any cellar or shed, where an average winter temperature a little above freezing can be maintained, will keep gladioli well. Any place which will keep potatoes or dahlia tubers will be suitable for gladioli. If frosts can be excluded without recourse to fire heat, all the better. The bulbs will keep well packed in dry sand, and if your store place goes a few degrees below freezing, the bulbs will then take no harm. A dry atmosphere is of course necessary. C. W.

GOV. HERRICK VIOLETS.

In The Review of September 22 we find E. V. Rice's little talk on the Gov. Herrick violet. Now, we have good success with Herricks. We have them in frames containing hot water pipes and keep the temperature at 45 to 50 degrees in winter. But ours are always late, because some writers advocate freezing before putting on the glass. Do you find this necessary for any violet? Besides Herrick, we grow Princess of Wales and California.

Could we plant our Herricks from the field now in a bench in an Enchantress carnation house which we run at 48 to 52 degrees, and obtain good results financially? The climate in this part of Washington state is moist and the temperature scarcely falls to zero during winter. C. K.

In reply to C. K.'s inquiry about the lateness of his Gov. Herrick violets, I would say that they should not be frosted, as that stops the growth. In case he has any uncovered now, it will be well to put on the glass as soon as possible. They must have plenty of water. I water my violets every night after the sun is down, as that makes the stems longer and keeps red spider down.

As for growing them with carnations, they will do well if on ground beds, but if on benches, I cannot say, at least unless they are kept wet. Field-grown plants will not bloom as well or as early as pot-grown ones, as the field-grown plants make lots of roots and you cut them off when digging them, and your plant is then too large for the roots it has left.

Princess of Wales and California should have a little frost to check the growth, but if they are planted where they are to remain they will go on blooming with but few days of delay, which means quick returns.

As an example of good returns from Gov. Herrick violets, it might be well to state what we are now doing. About the middle of August we set 2,000 2½-inch Gov. Herrick in the house. We are now—in the first week of October—picking about 500 violets per day, and in a week we expect to pick 1,000 per day from the same lot of plants. I have tried all other kinds of single violets, but none can equal the Gov. Herrick.

rate is $1.47 per inch. That's putting a 4-inch ad in the hands of more than 270 people for a penny. The Sunday issue of the Plain Dealer does almost as well; it gives 114,000 circulation for $1.53 per inch. Of course, the others cost more in proportion, the smaller papers always do."

Few florists tackle the subject of advertising in such a business-like way that they set aside any definite sum for advertising—they go at it catch-as-catch-can. For a while they spend quite a little, taking in everything that comes along, perhaps on the theory that all advertising is better than none, when they wake up to the fact that it has run into quite a sum. Then they go to the other extreme, and you couldn't separate them from a dollar with anything less than a free write-up—almost any man will fall for that, never stopping to consider that the papers that are freest with the salve are the ones that it is least worth while to be in. But this is the way Knoble Bros. fix the amount of their expenditure:

How It Pays.

Just how well it pays is an interesting point. In spite of some belief to the contrary, it is easy to trace returns from advertising. You can see the work of the ads in the sales tickets, or in the cash book. Of the spray ad here reproduced, Mr. Knoble, who writes all the copy himself, says:

"This has brought big returns. The summer months always are considered dull by the faithful, so we concluded we would spend some money this summer to see if we couldn't liven things up a little. The spray ad was what we did it with. During July our business increased about fifteen per cent over last year, but in August it just ran wild, increasing over sixty-two per cent as compared with 1909, and September did equally well.

"You see, it took about a month for the ad to get its roots down into the soil, but when it took hold its fruits were fine. We are undecided about dropping the spray ad for our other stuff, but probably will run it in connection with the rest of the season's series.

"On the whole, we are well satisfied with our investment in advertising, and give it at least a part of the credit for our being—nowadays you can't just sit down and wait for business to come to you; you've got to go out after it; not only go after it, but go after it hard, and keep going.

THE LESSON IN A WINDOW.

The shop window as a means of carrying a message is being studied more and more by our floral artists. They aim to express a sentiment, bringing it out more or less strongly as their tastes dictate. Through its aid they are able to cultivate the love for flowers, to attach a meaning quite unknown to many,

or, where this is not understood, they can at least awaken a love for the beautiful.

The window that I have in mind was planned to suggest the appropriateness of a floral offering upon the arrival of a baby girl or boy. In the center of the window was placed a vase containing a number of pockets for single flowers. These pockets were filled with bright yellow dahlias of the single type, Yellow Century, I think it was, their canary-like color contrasting prettily with the dark vase and darker background. Around the vase and at the back of the window were various suggestions of baby days. I will not outrage the inventive ingenuity of my readers by describing these dainty touches, leaving it to his or her taste to add whatever is necessary to awaken the idea in the happy father's mind as he trudges home from business that a floral offering would not only be acceptable, but appropriate.

Nor do I mean to say that dahlias should be used—far from it; doubtless you will think of something quite as good or better, only teach the lesson; teach it in your own way. I am indebted to Charles Henry Fox for this idea but poorly described. Phil.

ANOTHER WESTERN WEDDING.

In The Review of October 6 there appeared an illustration of a wedding decoration by the Stegall Floral Co., Texarkana, Ark. To avoid any conception that the picture showed the exceptional rather than the ordinary class of decorations used in Texarkana, here is another one, in another church, covering more space and more elaborate in all particulars. This also is a chrysanthemum decoration, and the fact is that one followed the other on the Stegall order book with so short an interval that A. W. Ardis, the proprietor, thinks

ROSES

TWO NEW ROSES.

Of Famous Irish Blood.

There are two new roses at Sharon Hill, Pa., in the greenhouses of Robert Scott & Son, that will interest florists all over the country. Both these roses are of famous Irish blood and both will be sent out next spring. The following descriptions are the result of a stroll through the rose houses with Alexander B. Scott a few days ago. Mr. Scott is a true lover of roses and an excellent judge of their merits.

Melody.

Melody is a yellow rose of the famous Dickson strain, from Newtownards, Ireland, that has been on trial for three years. It is a hybrid tea of rapid growth, extraordinarily free flowering and apparently possessing all the requirements of a good forcing variety. The flowers are yellow, shaded to a deeper color, that may be described as apricot, in the center. The buds are long and pointed, of moderate size in mild weather and increasing as it grows colder. In fact, Melody is described as a cold weather rose, requiring Bridesmaid temperature, one that can be depended upon to bloom under good treatment and bloom freely from October to April. The stems are of good length and willowy, perfectly able to support the bud, but not of poker-like stiffness. This quality will appeal to floral artists who know the value of a willowy stem that lends itself readily to any arrangement.

Melody is not considered a good warm weather rose, but its wonderful freedom in cold weather more than makes up for this limitation. Edward Swartz, who has had charge of Melody since its arrival at Sharon Hill, says it is the freest bloomer he has ever grown. Figures are given of the wonderful cut from each plant in December and again in February that speak more strongly than words of this most important virtue. Like many other yellow roses, Melody does better on its own roots than when grafted on Manetti and Mr. Scott will not graft any more of this variety for his own use, preferring to depend entirely on own-root stock. Apart from any business interest in the matter, Mr. Scott is enthusiastic over Melody, believing, as Mr. Dickson's agent, he will be instrumental in bringing out the best yellow rose that has ever been grown in America.

Double Killarney.

Double Killarney is a pink sport from the pink Killarney and originated at Sharon Hill three years ago. The name, Double Killarney, exactly describes this rose. The standard set by Mr. Scott is that it must have at least five more petals than Killarney. The parent rose has, let us say, fifteen petals; Double Killarney has from twenty to thirty, giving the flower size and substance that are most desirable. There is one other difference between Double Killarney and Killarney; the new variety is a shade lighter in color than its parent. This shade is considered an advantage by those who have seen it; it is certainly not a disadvantage.

The Killarney range at Sharon Hill contains about 22,000 plants; of these ten per cent, or 2,200, are Double Killarney. No difference in habit or growth could be noticed between the parent and the newer variety. Edward Swartz, who has grown Double Killarney since first noticed at Sharon Hill, believes that if there is any difference it is of stronger growth. It will be sent out in March, 1911. So carefully is the reputation of the new variety guarded that each plant is marked for propagation as it blooms; should the flowers of any plant fail to reach the 20-petal standard set by Mr. Scott, it will not be marked and no cuttings will be sent out from it. Phil.

PROTECTING OUTDOOR ROSES.

Will you tell me the best method of protecting hybrid tea rose plants through the winter? The plants are small, having been planted late in the spring. Occasionally the thermometer falls as low as 10 degrees below zero here. These plants were not planted where wanted. Can they be lifted and put in a permanent bed next spring? If so, please let me know how best to go about replanting them. C. E. H.

If you have a coldframe, the best plan will be to lift the roses just before the ground freezes up. Plant them quite closely in the frame, being sure to wet the roots well, and pack the soil about the roots. Leave the plants fully exposed until quite severe weather sets in, when the sashes can be placed over them. A scattering of dry hay, straw or leaves over them to exclude direct sunlight can also be given. Air the plants freely during mild weather and plant out in the spring as soon as the ground is in a working condition.

If you have no coldframe, bury the plants in a trench on ground with a gentle slope, laying them on their sides and placing a coating of strawy manure on the surface to help exclude frost.

W. N. C.

ROSE MANETTI.

What is the color of the Manetti rose? Is it single or double? When is the best time to sow this rose? R. G.

This is a form of R. Chinensis, the well-known China or Bengal rose. The flowers are pink in color, usually single, but occasionally semi-double. C. W.

Sweet Peas

FALL SEEDING OF SWEET PEAS.

We are growers of sweet peas and have been quite successful in early spring planting, but have had little success in fall planting for the next season's outdoor crop. Will you kindly advise us when to plant in the fall and how? Also how to protect through the winter? Would you have them come up several inches and then cover with mulch or dry straw to protect the green vines, or simply plant the seeds in a way to have them lie dormant for early spring? If the latter, will they not rot? S. F. G.

While some growers have good success with sweet peas sown in the fall, the method has not met with the approval of many growers. Seed should be sown only a short time before the ground freezes. Cover the seeds about three inches. The ground should, of course, be well prepared in advance. The growths should not come up before freezing-up weather. When the ground has been hard frozen, mulch with straw or meadow hay. If you do so while the ground is still soft, mice are liable to destroy the seeds. Remove the mulch as soon as possible after frost has left it, and stir up the ground well. It is necessary to plant on ground where no water can stand. Run the rows north and south.

I think you would find, however, that by starting the seeds in small pots in a coldframe early in March and planting these out about the middle of April a foot apart, you will get fully as early flowers, and at a great deal less worry and expense. C. W.

BEST BUTTERFLY SWEET PEAS.

Will you tell me the correct name of the strain of sweet peas known as the Butterfly type? Also give the name of the best variety of white, pink and white, lavender and light pink. When is the best time to sow seed, in order to be in full crop for Easter, 1911, and later? G. W. H.

A few of the more desirable varieties of the Butterfly or Spencer type of sweet peas are: White Spencer, pure white; Countess Spencer, delicate pink;

Florence Spencer, rosy pink; Asta Ohn, delicate lavender; Apple Blossom, bright rose; King Edward, crimson scarlet, and Mrs. Routzahn, delicate pink on apricot ground. There is also a Blanche Ferry Spencer, pink and white, if your trade calls for this color.

Sow your seed the first week in January. It takes the Spencers longer to flower than the old type. C. W.

FOR SUMMER BLOOMING.

What strain of summer blooming carnations can you recommend for flowering outside, for cutting until inside stock is ready in the fall? When should seed be sown? Can any other way be suggested to supply carnations throughout the summer? B. H. I.

I know of no strain of dianthus grown from seed that can compare in quality with the varieties of carnations we grow for winter flowering. Some of the hardy border carnations produce blooms of good quality, but they only bloom for a short time in the early summer and can not be counted on to fill the gap between the inside seasons.

The most practical way is to propagate some cuttings early and to shift them on into 3-inch or 4-inch pots before planting time. These, if watered well, will give a good cut of blooms during August and September. Nearly all the varieties grown inside will do for this purpose, except the Lawson varieties. They are too short-stemmed to be of any use so early in the season. A. F. J. B.

LEAF-SPOT ON LAWSON.

I bought 100 Lawson carnation plants and they seem to be diseased. Will you please tell me what the trouble is? E. G. B.

Your experience is not a new one with this variety. It has always been a poor shipper. Being rather sensitive about lifting, even at best, it is apt to give even more trouble when shipped, in which case the plants would be out of the soil a couple of days. You will also find that the later you lift Mrs. Lawson the more trouble you will have in getting the plants reestablished. The successful growers of this variety house it uniformly early, while the plants are medium sized and fairly hard. Perhaps the best way of all to handle this variety is to grow it in the house all summer.

Should you wish to try to save these plants, I would advise you to follow the same directions as given for fairy ring on page 13 of The Review for September 29. Your plants are covered with the common spot, which belongs to the same class of diseases as the fairy ring. A. F. J. B.

WEAK STEMS, SMALL BLOOMS.

Under separate cover I send you some buds and blooms of Perfection carnations. These were planted in the bench about the last part of August. We pinched off only a few shoots or buds and these blooms come from practically the first shoots. The plants look healthy, but are rather spindling. The blooms are about the same way, thin and weak. Do you think this comes from the fact that they are the first ones, or is there some disease on them? If so, what shall we do?

Last spring our carnations were attacked by fairy ring. The blooms look now about as they did then, though not nearly so bad, but the plants have no brown tips on the leaves. Soon after planting them in the house, remembering that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, we took to spraying the plants once or twice a week with Bordeaux mixture, but have now stopped, as we wanted to use the cut blooms. We have kept doors and ventilators wide open and have sprayed but little. R. E. G.

There does not seem to be any disease on the specimens forwarded, but I did find plenty of thrips. Those brown edges on the petals are caused by these pests. Get after them with tobacco in whatever form it may be most available, just as quickly and as strongly as you can.

We find that White Perfection usually produces rather slender stems in the first crop in the fall. A little wood ashes will help to stiffen them. The next crop will come stronger and with larger blooms. Did you notice, when you dug them from the field, those eyes which started all along the stems? If you were careful not to rub these off, they will come along and make the highest grade blooms during the winter. A. F. J. B.

MOLES IN GREENHOUSE SOIL.

I have some solid beds that are planted with carnations and chrysanthemums. There are moles working under them and loosening up the plants. What can I do to drive them out or kill them? I have tried to catch them, but always miss them. A. V. B.

The best weapon we have ever found to use against moles is patience and a spade. We have found that the moles are usually active early in the morning and again about noon. By flattening down the ridge where they have gone, you can see their movements as they pass through again, lifting the soil as they move along. A quick dig and a sharp whack will do the rest. We have tried traps, but never had any success with them—just why, I can not say. The traps seem to be built correctly, as far as I can see. A. F. J. B.

HYDRANGEA ARBORESCENS.

Is Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora alba good for forcing? What should be the treatment of plants now growing in the field with two to five stalks, so as to have them in bloom in May? J. A. F.

Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora makes a good pot plant. It will not stand as much forcing as the better known H. hortensis. Dig up your plants carefully now, preserving all roots possible. After potting, stand them outdoors until they have had considerable frost. So long as the pots are protected, the wood is benefited rather than harmed by the frost. To have them in flower for Memorial day, start the plants from the middle to the end of January, in a night temperature of 50 degrees. They are better if not subjected to strong heat at any stage of their growth. If wanted early in May, house the plants about January 1. C. W.

DISEASE IN THE GIGANTEUMS.

One of the advantages of giganteum lily bulbs for forcing has been their freedom from disease, but that the immunity is not to be perpetual is shown by the accompanying illustration, which is from a photograph made in Japan July 30 of the present year. This shows a field of giganteums attacked by the plant louse. Those who are engaged in the import bulb business seek to exclude such bulbs from their stock, but because they cannot be planted over successfully, the bulbs eventually find their way to the market and later into American greenhouses, where they of course fail to give the results expected. Growers who have thought that all that it was necessary to do was to specify that they were to receive giganteums may find that it will be necessary to take precautions to see that they get the right article. Not only will giganteums be short this year, but there will be all sorts of qualities.

supply should be decreased to assist in hardening up the wood; not to the extent of dust dryness, by any means, as this would mean shriveled rather than well hardened wood. The plants should have all possible sun, and to somewhat counteract reduced moisture at the root the plants can have a spraying with the hose once or twice a day. After the middle of the month those with the best ripened wood can be laid on their sides. Soaking rains will have a tendency to keep them soft and growing. It is yet somewhat early to dig up and pot field-grown ramblers.

Canterbury Bells.

The present is a suitable time to dig up and pot a number of strong plants of Canterbury bells, giving a preference to the single or calycanthema (hose-in-hose) varieties. Stand the pots outdoors and leave them there until sharp frost necessitates their removal under glass. They should have some frost before forcing, which should not begin before Christmas. If lifted with a good bunch of roots, the plants will show little signs of a check after potting.

Freesias.

It is time to place the earliest batch of freesias in a house kept at 50 to 52 degrees at night, provided they are wanted for Christmas flowering or the early part of January. Be sure they are well supplied with water, and when the pans are well filled with roots, use weak liquid manure once in four or five days. Avoid strong doses, which will cause the ends of the foliage to become brown, just as fumigation will do. Any bulbs not yet placed in pans or flats should be got in now. They will only dissipate their strength if allowed to remain out of the soil any longer.

POTTING GIGANTEUMS.

When the bulbs of black-stemmed giganteums are received in October, should they be potted and left outside for a couple of months, or brought inside at once and placed under carnation benches for a while? B. M. G. C.

Giganteums and any other lilies, with the exception of candidum, should after potting be placed under sash protection

SEASONABLESUGGESTIONS*Lilium Harrisii.

To have Lilium Harrisii in flower for the holidays, the plants must be pushed right along now. A night temperature of 68 to 70 degrees, with a free use of the hose overhead and a weekly fumigation to keep aphids in check, is what they need. Apply liquid manure twice a week. While we are still enjoying warm and summer-like weather, we must not forget that in November and December the light and solar heat are greatly lessened, and the flower buds to be on time should be so that they can be counted a month hence.

Formosa Lilies.

Formosa lilies do not all start at once, as the Harrisii invariably do. Some may be a foot or more high while others have not pushed through the soil. The earlier ones can be given a house with more heat, say 60 degrees at night. Their flowers will be useful in January, when flowers are generally not over-abundant. These Formosas grow all the way from a foot to six feet high and are quite a variable type. They are, or have been, free from disease. Their flowers are fine and possess excellent texture, rendering them ideal for market purposes. The number grown will be immensely increased this year, especially in view of the report of serious damage to crops of multiflorums and giganteums in Japan.

Primulas.

In order to have plants of Primula obconica and Sinensis in nice flower for Christmas, they should now have a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night. Anything higher will make them drawn and spindly. If not wanted until later in the winter, the night temperature should not exceed 42 to 45 degrees. Quite a few flower spikes will now be pushing on many of the plants, and as there is some sale for pot stock at Thanksgiving, the earliest can be used for that occasion. Do not crowd the plants. It is a good plan to elevate some on inverted pots, especially the larger ones. Be careful about feeding. Any strong dose will do a lot of harm, which no after care can remedy. Weak cow manure water with some soot in it once a week will keep the foliage that healthy dark green one loves to see. Unless wanted early, the primulas can be kept in a well built frame for some weeks longer. It is better to afford them a little shade during the hottest part of the day, the Chinese section needing it more than the obconicas and Kewensis.

Hydrangeas.

Any hydrangea plants still in the field should be potted at once. The advantage of earlier potting is that the plants have a chance to pretty well fill the pots with roots before winter sets in, and they are thus the better fitted for forcing. Established plants in pots and tubs may now have their water supply gradually reduced, in order to harden up the wood and make it of that nutty brown color which is so desirable. Means must be taken to protect the plants from severe frost. If still green and soft, a temperature of 20 to 22 degrees will blacken the foliage and probably kill many of the flower buds.

Rambler Roses.

Crimson Ramblers, and possibly some of the pink varieties, which usually continue to grow later than the older variety, should now be completing their growths, if pot grown, and the water in a coldframe, or in a pit, shed or cellar, where the sun will not dry up the pots, and should be brought into light as soon as the shoots appear above the ground. The pots would do under a carnation bench; the drip, however, from the benches is not good for the lilies and any place free from drip is much to be preferred. Lay some moss over the pots if you place them under the benches. This is to prevent the drying of the surface soil. The water supply afforded lilies should be carefully given until the pots are full of roots.

EDWARD A. PORTER.

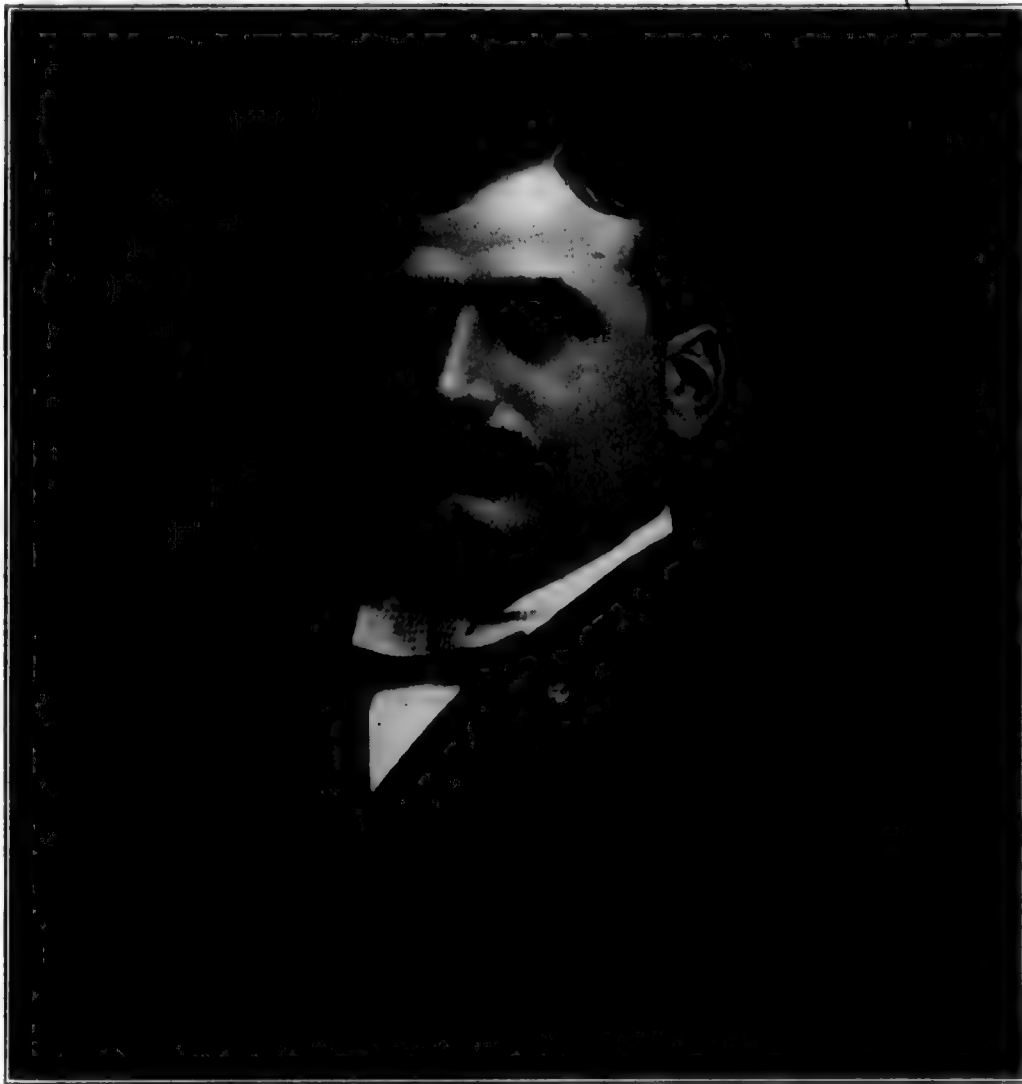

E. A. Porter, the recently elected treasurer of the Cincinnati Florists' Society, has been connected with the trade for thirty-two years. He is a son-in-law of the founder of the firm of A. Sunderbruck's Sons, of which he is now a member. By his genial disposition and his square methods in business dealings, both with his patrons and with his associates in the trade, he has made many friends. The present office is the first elective office he has held in the local society. In the summer of 1909 he was treasurer of the Cincinnati convention committee, and his election shows the club's appreciation of his work in that capacity.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

From the florists' point of view, the Illinois State Fair this year was a much greater success than in any previous season. Held at Springfield October 3 to 8, the authorities adopted the excellent plan of providing for cut flower exhibits to be staged each day. The larger part of the florists' section, including a full list of roses and carnations as well as the pot plants, were staged October 4, and the full list of awards was published in The Review for October 6. The quality of the stock staged each day was exceptionally fine for so early in the season. The one criticism of the show, the premiums being liberal, was the fact that no attention was paid to attractive staging. Nearly all the exhibits were placed on a cement floor, with a pipe railing to keep the visitors from walking among the flowers. Money spent for artistic arrangement would be a splendid investment, and is to be desired, even if at the expense of appropriation for some other purpose.

The awards Wednesday, October 5, were as follows:

Twenty-five American Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., third.
 Twenty-five Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, Ill., third.
 Twenty-five Perle—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Twenty-five Jardine—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty-five Bride—A. T. Hey Floral Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five Bridesmaid—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Hey Floral Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.
 Twenty-five White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

LATHYRUS LATIFOLIUS.

Should Lathyrus latifolius be planted in autumn or spring? How deep do you sow the seed? R. G.

Lathyrus latifolius should be sown thinly in the open as early in the spring as the land can be worked. Cover the seeds two to two and one-half inches deep. C. W.

Millbrook, N. Y.—W. C. Russell's new greenhouse is almost completed.

DISEASE IN THE GIGANTEUMS.

One of the advantages of giganteum lily bulbs for forcing has been their freedom from disease, but that the immunity is not to be perpetual is shown by the accompanying illustration, which is from a photograph made in Japan July 30 of the present year. This shows a field of giganteums attacked by the plant louse. Those who are engaged in the import bulb business seek to exclude such bulbs from their stock, but

supply should be decreased to assist in hardening up the wood; not to the extent of dust dryness, by any means, as this would mean shriveled rather than well hardened wood. The plants should have all possible sun, and to somewhat counteract reduced moisture at the root the plants can have a spraying with the hose once or twice a day. After the middle of the month those with the best ripened wood can be laid on their sides. Soaking rains will have a tendency to keep them soft and growing. It is yet somewhat early to dig up and pot field grown ramblers.

Canterbury Bells.

The present is a suitable time to dig up and pot a number of strong plants of Canterbury bells, giving a preference to the single or calycanthema (hose-in-hose) varieties. Stand the pots outdoors and leave them there until sharp frost necessitates their removal under glass. They should have some frost before forcing, which should not begin before Christmas. If lifted with a good bunch of roots, the plants will show little signs of a check after potting.

Freesias.

It is time to place the earliest batch of freesias in a house kept at 50 to 52 degrees at night, provided they are wanted for Christmas flowering or the early part of January. Be sure they are well supplied with water, and when the pans are well filled with roots, use weak liquid manure once in four or five days. Avoid strong doses, which will cause the ends of the foliage to become brown, just as fumigation will do. Any bulbs not yet placed in pans or flats should be got in now. They will only dissipate their strength if allowed to remain out of the soil any longer.

POTTING GIGANTEUMS.

When the bulbs of black-stemmed giganteums are received in October, should they be potted and left outside for a couple of months, or brought inside at once and placed under carnation benches for a while? B. M. G. C.

Giganteums and any other lilies, with the exception of candidum, should after potting be placed under sash protection

SEASONABLESUGGESTIONS*Lilium Harrisii.

To have Lilium Harrisii in flower for the holidays, the plants must be pushed right along now. A night temperature of 68 to 70 degrees, with a free use of the hose overhead and a weekly fumigation to keep aphids in check, is what they need. Apply liquid manure twice a week. While we are still enjoying warm and summer-like weather, we must not forget that in November and December the light and solar heat are greatly lessened, and the flower buds to be on time should be so that they can be counted a month hence.

Formosa Lilies.

Formosa lilies do not all start at once, as the Harrisii invariably do. Some may be a foot or more high while others have not pushed through the soil. The earlier ones can be given a house with more heat, say 60 degrees at night. Their flowers will be useful in January, when flowers are generally not overabundant. These Formosas grow all the way from a foot to six feet high and are quite a variable type. They are, or have been, free from disease. Their flowers are fine and possess excellent texture, rendering them ideal for market purposes. The number grown will be immensely increased this year, especially in view of the report of serious damage to crops of multiflorums and giganteums in Japan.

Primulas.

In order to have plants of Primula obconica and Sinensis in nice flower for Christmas, they should now have a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night. Anything higher will make them drawn and spindly. If not wanted until later in the winter, the night temperature should not exceed 42 to 45 degrees. Quite a few flower spikes will now be pushing on many of the plants, and as there is some sale for pot stock at Thanksgiving, the earliest can be used for that occasion. Do not crowd the plants. It is a good plan to elevate some on inverted pots, especially the larger ones. Be careful about feeding. Any strong dose will do a lot of harm, which no after care can remedy. Weak cow manure water with some soot in it once a week will keep the foliage that healthy dark green one loves to see. Unless wanted early, the primulas can be kept in a well built frame for some weeks longer. It is better to afford them a little shade during the hottest part of the day, the Chinese section needing it more than the obconicas and Kewensis.

Hydrangeas.

Any hydrangea plants still in the field should be potted at once. A NEW PLANT STAND.

One of the articles which has made its appearance in many retail stores this season is the combined jardiniere plant tub and stand shown in the accompanying illustration. This is made from quartered white oak, with the popular weathered finish, filled and polished. The tub is bound with brass hoops and has brass handles, which adds much to the appearance of the stand. It is one of the specialties for florists manufactured by the American Woodenware Mfg. Co., of Toledo, and is handled by most of the supply houses through the country.

PERENNIALS FOR CUT FLOWERS.

I intend to plant four large sized beds with hardy perennials and should be thankful if you would let me know of a few good varieties for cut flowers, giving the color, height and time of flowering. The beds are each eight feet wide and twenty feet long. R. P.

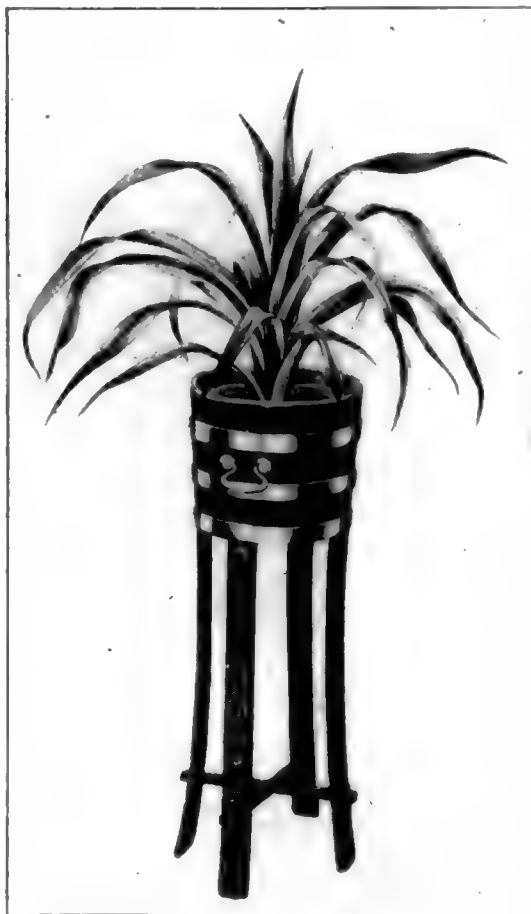

The beds in question should be heavily manured and deeply spaded. This advice may seem somewhat hackneyed, but if you want good perennials which will grow vigorously, withstand droughty conditions and give an abundance of flowers, you can hardly prepare the ground too liberally. Nearly all perennials are strong feeders, and you will be well repaid for any extra pains you take in preparing the ground. Nearly all perennials succeed better planted in the fall than in the spring, October being an excellent month for this purpose.

Some of the best perennials for cutting are the following: Doronicum Harpur Crewe, two and one-half feet, yellow, May; Aquilegia chrysantha and cærulea, two feet, various shades, all beautiful, May and June; Achillea Ptarmica the Pearl, white, June to September, a useful flower; Campanula Medium, single, and C. calycanthema, biennials, but indispensable for cutting in the hardy borders, colors white, mauve, dark blue, pink, two to two and one-half feet, June; Veronica longifolia subsessilis, rich blue, July and August, two feet; Tritoma Pfitzeri and Express, July to September, three to four feet, crimson and yellow; Rudbeckia lanceolata Golden Glow, common, but fine for cutting, six feet or more, golden yellow, July and August; Rudbeckia purpurea, rosy purple, two and one-half feet, July and August; Phlox paniculata, a few first-class sorts of which are F. G. Von Lassburg and Le Cygne, white; Le Mahdi, reddish violet; Pantheon, carmine rose; Coquelicot, pure scarlet; Bridesmaid, white, crimson eye; Henry Murger, white, rose eye; Mme. Paul Dutrie, delicate rose; another phlox of the earlier flowering or suffruticosa section is Miss Lingard, white, delicate pink eye, blooms from June to October. This is the finest phlox grown. The other phloxes bloom from July to October.

In delphiniums formosum caelestinum, light blue, and Belladonna, turquoise blue, are grand. The Chinese section in deep blue and pure white, D. Chinense, are also splendid for cutting. The latter grow two and one-half feet; the former, five to six feet. Digitalis gloxiniflora, foxglove, three to five feet, June, is a valuable early perennial. Gypsophila paniculata, two to two and one-half feet, is one of the florists' great stand-bys. The double form is even better, pure white in color, July and August. Funkia subcordata grandiflora is pure white, fragrant, August, two feet. Helianthus multiflorus plenus, H. rigidus Miss Mellish and H. Wolley Dod are three hardy sunflowers, which will give a succession from July to September, four to six feet. Hemerocallis flava, yellow, May and June; H. Thunbergii, yellow, July, and H. aurantiaca major, double yellow, July, are all fine for cutting.

Other good stand-bys are: Heuchera sanguinea, two feet, August, coral red; Coreopsis grandiflora, yellow, two and one-half feet, June to September; Lobelia cardinalis, scarlet, three feet, July and August; Lychnis vespertina, double white, one and one-half feet, all summer; Papaver orientale, scarlet, three feet, May; Pyrethrum uliginosum, five feet, pure white, August and September, grand for cutting; P. hybridum, two feet, many colors, May and June; Astilbe Chinensis, pink, June and July, two feet; Stokesia cyanea, two feet, lavender blue, July to September, beautiful; Valeriana officinalis, rose-pink, July, sweet-scented, two to three feet.

Peonies, of course, should be included, if not grown elsewhere. They would be better, however, in nursery rows. Half a dozen fine sorts in doubles are: Festiva maxima, white; Queen Victoria, white, early; Francois Ortegat, crimson; Duchesse de Nemours (Guerin), rosy pink; Mme. de Verneville, white; Humei, rose-pink.

Irises are among the most valuable of perennials. The Germanica varieties come first, in May and early June, followed by the Hispanica and Anglica sections. The two latter are bulbous, but live well from year to year. They are grand for cutting in June. In July the gorgeous Kämpferi or Japanese section, in all colors, are in their glory. I. Sibirica Snow Queen is a beautiful, easily grown sort, grand for cutting.

Some other good perennials to cut are: Aconitum Napellus, August and September, dark blue, three to five feet; Aster Novæ-Angliæ, four feet, September, blue, white and pink; Aster Novi-Belgii, Perry's pink, September, four feet; Platycodon Mariesi, eighteen inches, blue, July and August; Physostegia Virginica, rosy lilac and white, a splendid subject for cutting, four to five feet, August; Lupinus polyphyllus, blue, white and rose, June, three feet; Lychnis Viscaria splendens, deep red, eighteen inches, May and June; Helenium autumnale superbum, yellow, August and September, five feet; Helenium grandiflorum striatum, yellow, red stripes, three feet, August; Euphorbia corollata, eighteen inches, June to August, white; Hyacinthus (Galtonia) candicans, bulbous, perfectly hardy, pure white, July to September; Campanula persicifolia, single and double, blue and white, June and July, three feet; the variety Moerheimi, double white, is of special value; Boltonia latisquama, five feet, August and September.

Of course, lilies, such as speciosum, tigrinum, Henryi, auratum, etc., can be grown in your beds; also montbretias, fine to cut from July to October. Sweet-williams, lily of the valley, Clematis recta, pure white, three to four feet, July; Lathyrus latifolius, everlasting peas; Liatris pycnostachya, rosy purple, four feet, August; Dianthus plumarius, border pink, and the beautiful Japanese anemone, A. Japonica, of which Queen Charlotte and Whirlwind are fine varieties, are all grand for cutting.

The anemones should be planted in the spring. Practically all other plants named can be set out this fall.

This list may be too extended. If so, here is a boiled-down list of varieties you can depend upon: Aquilegia cærulea, Anemone Japonica alba, Aster Novæ-Angliæ, Lupinus polyphyllus, peonies in variety, Phlox Miss Lingard, Phlox Le Cygne, Iris Germanica, Iris Sibirica Snow Queen, Iris Hispanica, Iris Kämpferi, Hemerocallis Thunbergii, Hemerocallis flava, Convallaria majalis, Pyrethrum uliginosum, Pyrethrum hybridum, Gypsophila paniculata fl. pl., Campanula persicifolia Moerheimi, Campanula Medium, Clematis recta, Boltonia latisquama, Digitalis gloxiniflora, Coreopsis grandiflora, Helenium autumnale superbum, Helianthus Miss Mellish, Achillea Ptarmica the Pearl, Physostegia Virginica, Tritoma Pfitzeri and Astilbe Chinensis. PANSIES IN FRAMES.

How can I best protect my pansy plants, which were transplanted about a month ago into a coldframe? I wish to have them good and strong for early trade next spring. M. F. F.

Do not place the sashes over the plants until the weather becomes quite severe. Then cover the plants with a light coating of perfectly dry leaves or pine needles, whichever you can get most easily. Let the soil be hard frozen before putting this mulch on. Put on the sashes, and the only further attention needed during the winter will be to give some air during warm spells. If you have some board shutters to lay over the glass, it will prevent breakages and consequent wetting of the leaves. If the leaves keep dry and the ground frozen below them, every plant should be fresh when uncovered in early spring. C. W.

Establishment of W. A. & J. S. Bitler, Kokomo, Ind.

A KOKOMO ESTABLISHMENT.

At Kokomo, Ind., W. A. & J. S. Bitler do a prosperous retail trade, growing a part of their stock, but buying much more from wholesale florists. The accompanying illustration gives a view of their place, which consists of three houses, one 16x75, one 20x75 and the lean-to 10x75, all comparatively new and erected with material supplied by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. The building for boiler and packing is 18x36 feet and there are two living rooms adjoining. The greenhouses are devoted to carnations, mums, violets and bedding stock. The plants seen in bloom in the front of the greenhouses are geranium stock plants, the photograph having been made August 26, 1910.

GYPSOPHILA FOR FORCING.

Would it be possible to get Gypsophila paniculata in flower during the winter? If so, how should I proceed?
J. W. C.

Gypsophila paniculata can be forced, but cannot be had until late winter or early spring. Dig up and pot the roots after they have had a good freezing, or place in boxes six inches deep, several together. Give them a night temperature of 45 degrees when started, which should not be before Christmas, raising this to 50 to 52 degrees when the plants have started well. A higher temperature should not be given, as it will spoil them. As the flowers open, a cooler house will give them more substance.
C. W.

SPIRAEAS FOR SPRING.

Please let me know the right treatment for Spiraea Gladstone, S. compacta multiflora and S. Queen Alexandra for Easter and Memorial day blooming. I have no forcing house or cellar for storing.
F. M. K.

Leave the clumps where they can get one or two good freezings before potting. Easter comes April 16 next year. If you have no forcing house, allow Gladstone and compacta multiflora nine to ten weeks in an average night temperature of 50 degrees. If you can give them 60 degrees, they will flower in eight weeks. Queen Alexandra takes longer and should be allowed ten to twelve weeks. It comes much better later in the season when allowed to come on without any forcing, and is much better for Memorial day than for Easter. Allow it ten weeks for the last named holiday and the two white varieties seven to eight weeks. All the spiraeas want a copious water supply while growing and they appreciate doses of liquid manure. As their foliage is tender, strong fumigation will scorch it.

C. W.

MARGUERITES FOR EASTER.

Will you please tell me when is the proper time to make marguerite cuttings? I have 200 now in 2-inch pots. Will these plants be in time for Easter? I have them in the sweet pea house now. Also tell me what temperature I must give them.

J. G.

Your marguerites which are now in 2-inch pots will make excellent plants for Easter. They should be potted on into 4-inch and later into 6-inch pots, in which size, if kept well watered and fed, they should flower well. If you want larger plants, you can grow some in 8-inch pots. You do not state which variety you are growing. Queen Alexandra flowers later than the older varieties. A temperature of 46 to 50 degrees at night is suitable for the plants, and they will require some pinching until the middle of January.

You can take cuttings any time between now and Christmas and grow them on into nice plants in 4-inch or 5-inch pots for Easter, which comes next year later than usual, April 16.

SCALE ON FERNS AND VINCAS.

We are sending you a fern and vinca leaf. Will you tell us a remedy for such scale? We are greatly troubled with it.
H. R. E.

The scale on the vinca may be overcome by dipping the plants in a solution of tobacco extract, using one part of Rose Leaf Extract to forty parts of water. A somewhat weaker solution may be used for the same purpose on the ferns—one part extract to fifty of water.

More than one dipping will probably be needed, and if the plants are protected from the sun while the foliage is wet with the solution, they are less likely to be injured by this treatment.
W. H. T.

NEPHROLEPIS.

It is time to lift nephrolepis plants from the benches and get them somewhat established in their pots before selling them. It is a mistake to use a light, leaf-moldy and peaty compost for these ferns. They want something heavier. Good, well decayed, fibrous loam, to which is added some sand and some thoroughly decayed manure which will readily crumble through the hands, will make a soil which nephrolepis will revel in. Do not keep the plants heavily shaded. It may make the fronds dark, but it will at the same time render them more brittle, especially such sorts as Whitmani and elegantissima. If the plants are lifted with a nice ball, the soil carefully filled in about the roots when potting and the whole well

A NEW PLANT STAND.

One of the articles which has made its appearance in many retail stores this season is the combined jardiniere plant tub and stand shown in the accompanying illustration. This is made from quartered white oak, with the popular weathered finish, filled and polished. The tub is bound with brass hoops and has brass handles, which adds much to the appearance of the stand. It is one of the specialties for florists manufactured by the American Woodenware Mfg. Co., of Toledo, and is handled by most of the supply houses through the country.

PERENNIALS FOR CUT FLOWERS.

I intend to plant four large sized beds with hardy perennials and should be thankful if you would let me know of a few good varieties for cut flowers, giving the color, height and time of flowering. The beds are each eight feet wide and twenty feet long. R. P.

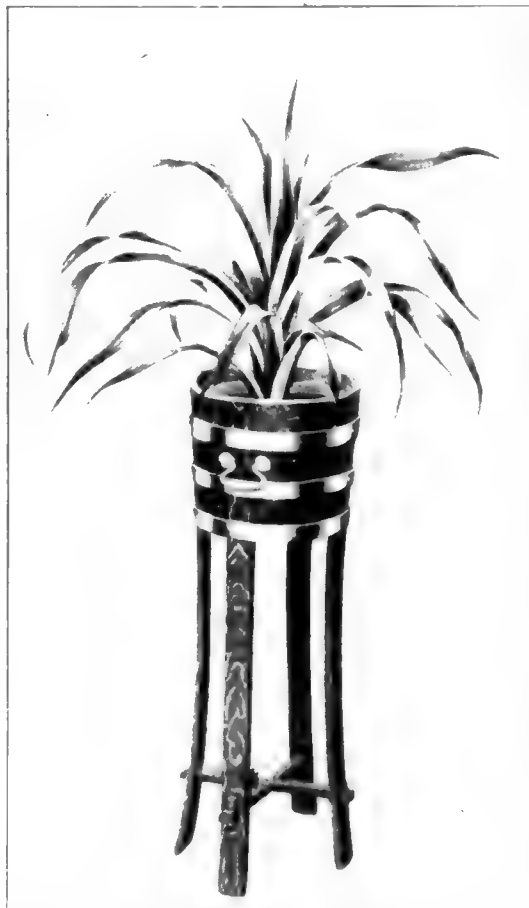

The beds in question should be heavily manured and deeply spaded. This advice may seem somewhat hackneyed, but if you want good perennials which will grow vigorously, withstand droughty conditions and give an abundance of flowers, you can hardly prepare the ground too liberally. Nearly all perennials are strong feeders, and you will be well repaid for any extra pains you take in preparing the ground. Nearly all perennials succeed better planted in the fall than in the spring, October being an excellent month for this purpose.

Some of the best perennials for cutting are the following: Doronicum Harpur Crewe, two and one-half feet, yellow, May; Aquilegia chrysantha and caerulea, two feet, various shades, all beautiful, May and June; Achillea Ptarmica the Pearl, white, June to September, a useful flower; Campanula Medium, single, and C. calycanthema, biennials, but indispensable for cutting in the hardy borders, colors white, mauve, dark blue, pink, two to two and one-half feet, June; Veronica longifolia subsessilis, rich blue, July and August, two feet; Tritoma Pfitzeri and Express, July to September, three to four feet, crimson and yellow; Rudbeckia lanceolata Golden Glow, common, but fine for cutting, six feet or more, golden yellow, July and August; Rudbeckia purpurea, rosy purple, two and one-half feet, July and August; Phlox paniculata, a few first class sorts of which are F. G. Von Lassburg and Le Cygne, white; Le Mahdi, reddish violet; Pantheon, carmine rose; Coquelicot, pure scarlet; Bridesmaid, white, crimson eye; Henry Murger, white, rose eye; Mme. Paul Dutrie, delicate rose; another phlox of the earlier flowering or suffruticosa section is Miss Lingard, white, delicate pink eye, blooms from June to October. This is the finest phlox grown. The other phloxes bloom from July to October.

In delphiniums formosum celestinum, light blue, and Belladonna, turquoise blue, are grand. The Chinese section in deep blue and pure white, D. Chinense, are also splendid for cutting. The latter grow two and one-half feet; the former, five to six feet. Digitalis gloxinia-flora, foxglove, three to five feet, June, is a valuable early perennial. Gypsophila paniculata, two to two and one-half feet, is one of the florists' great stand-bys. The double form is even better, pure white in color, July and August. Funkia subcordata grandiflora is pure white, fragrant, August, two feet. Helianthus multiflorus plenus, H. rigidus Miss Mellish and H. Wolley Dod are three hardy sunflowers, which will give a succession from July to September, four to six feet. Hemerocallis flava, yellow, May and June; H. Thunbergii, yellow, July, and H. aurantiaca major, double yellow, July, are all fine for cutting.

Other good stand-bys are: Heuchera sanguinea, two feet, August, coral red; Coreopsis grandiflora, yellow, two and one-half feet, June to September; Lobelia cardinalis, scarlet, three feet, July and August; Lychnis vespertina, double white, one and one-half feet, all summer; Papaver orientale, scarlet, three feet, May; Pyrethrum uliginosum, five feet, pure white, August and September, grand for cutting; P. hybridum, two feet, many colors, May and June; Astilbe Chinensis, pink, June and July, two feet; Stokesia cyanea, two feet, lavender blue, July to September, beautiful; Valeriana officinalis, rose-pink, July, sweet-scented, two to three feet.

Peonies, of course, should be included, if not grown elsewhere. They would be better, however, in nursery rows. Half a dozen fine sorts in doubles are: Festiva maxima, white; Queen Victoria, white, early; Francois Ortegat, crimson; Duchesse de Nemours (Guerin), rosy pink; Mme. de Verneville, white; Humei, rose-pink.

Irises are among the most valuable of perennials. The Germanica varieties come first, in May and early June, followed by the Hispanica and Anglica sections. The two latter are bulbous, but live well from year to year. They are grand for cutting in June. In July the gorgeous Kampferi or Japanese section, in all colors, are in their glory. I. Sibirica Snow Queen is a beautiful, easily grown sort, grand for cutting.

Some other good perennials to cut are: Aconitum Napellus, August and September, dark blue, three to five feet; Aster Nova-Angliae, four feet, September, blue, white and pink; Aster Novi-Belgii, Perry's pink, September, four feet; Platycodon Mariesi, eighteen inches, blue, July and August; Physostegia Virginica, rosy lilac and white, a splendid subject for cutting, four to five feet, August; Lupinus polyphyllus, blue, white and rose, June, three feet; Lychnis Viscaria splendens, deep red, eighteen inches, May and June; Helenium autumnale superbum, yellow, August and September, five feet; Helenium grandiflorum striatum, yellow, red stripes, three feet, August; Euphorbia corollata, eighteen inches, June to August, white; Hyacinthus (Galtonia) candicans, bulbous, perfectly hardy, pure white, July to September; Campanula persicifolia, single and double, blue and white, June and July, three feet; the variety Moerheimi, double white, is of special value; Boltonia latisquama, five feet, August and September.

Of course, lilies, such as speciosum, tigrinum, Henryi, auratum, etc., can be grown in your beds; also montbretias, fine to cut from July to October. Sweet-williams, lily of the valley, Clematis recta, pure white, three to four feet, July; Lathyrus latifolius, everlasting peas; Liatris pycnostachya, rosy purple, four feet, August; Dianthus plumarius, border pink, and the beautiful Japanese anemone, A. Japonica, of which Queen Charlotte and Whirlwind are fine varieties, are all grand for cutting.

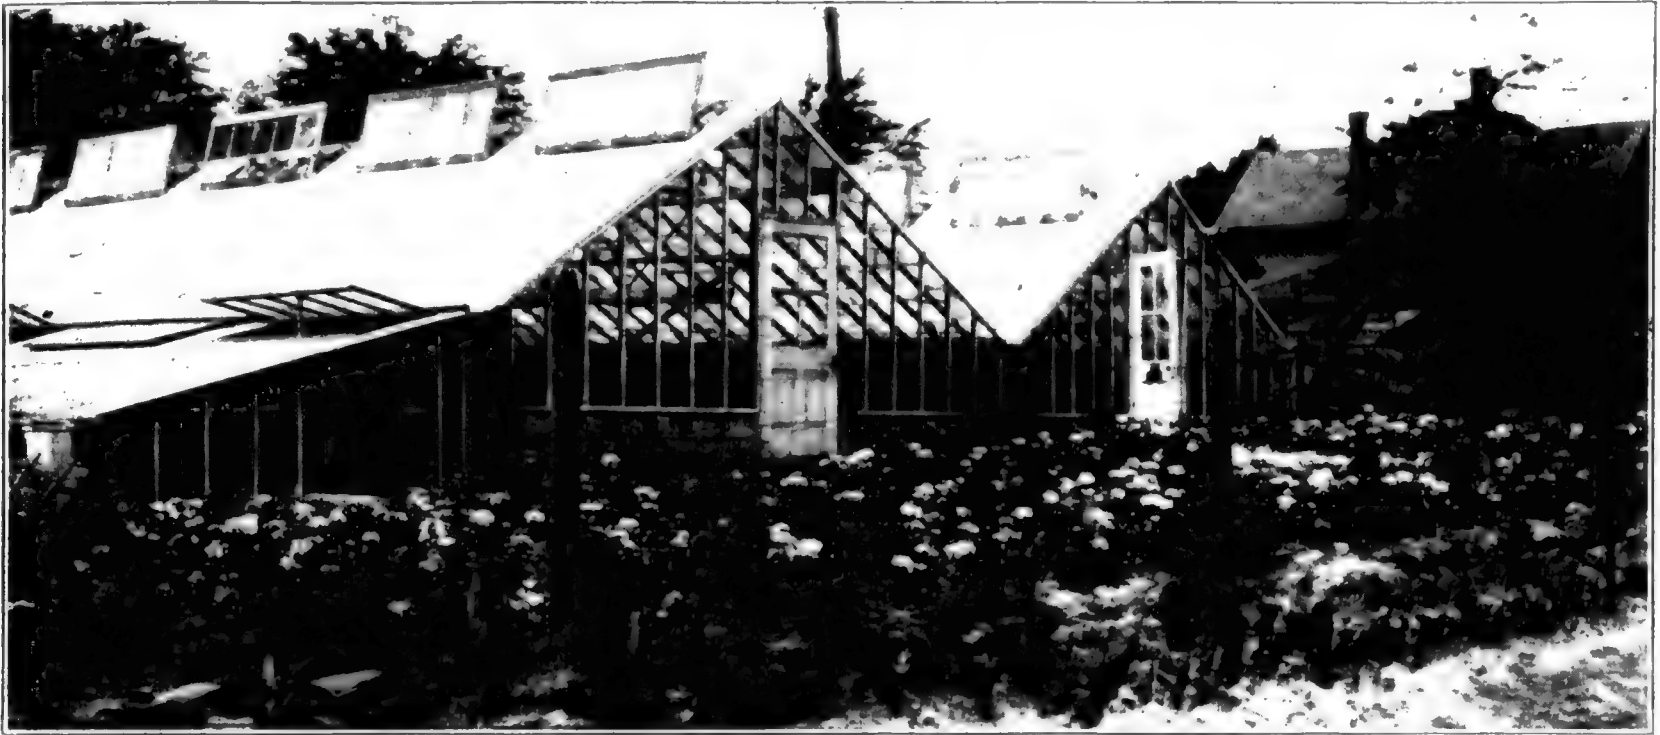

The anemones should be planted in the spring. Practically all other plants named can be set out this fall.

This list may be too extended. If so, here is a boiled-down list of varieties you can depend upon: Aquilegia caerulea, Anemone Japonica alba, Aster Nova-Angliae, Lupinus polyphyllus, peonies in variety, Phlox Miss Lingard, Phlox Le Cygne, Iris Germanica, Iris Sibirica Snow Queen, Iris Hispanica, Iris Kampferi, Hemerocallis Thunbergii, Hemerocallis flava, Convallaria majalis, Pyrethrum uliginosum, Pyrethrum hybridum, Gypsophila paniculata fl. pl., Campanula persicifolia Moerheimi, Campanula Medium, Clematis recta, Boltonia latisquama, Digitalis gloxinia-flora, Coreopsis grandiflora, Helenium autumnale superbum, Helianthus Miss Mellish, Achillea Ptarmica the Pearl, Physostegia Virginica, Tritoma Pfitzeri and Astilbe Chinensis. Please let me know the right treatment for Spiraea Gladstone, S. compacta multiflora and S. Queen Alexandra for Easter and Memorial day blooming. I have no forcing house or cellar for storing. F. M. K.

Leave the clumps where they can get one or two good freezings before potting. Easter comes April 16 next year. If you have no forcing house, allow Gladstone and compacta multiflora nine to ten weeks in an average night temperature of 50 degrees. If you can give

SCALE ON FERNS AND VINCAS.

We are sending you a fern and vinca leaf. Will you tell us a remedy for such scale? We are greatly troubled with it. H. R. E.

The scale on the vinca may be overcome by dipping the plants in a solution of tobacco extract, using one part of Rose Leaf Extract to forty parts of water. A somewhat weaker solution may be used for the same purpose on the ferns—one part extract to fifty of water.

More than one dipping will probably be needed, and if the plants are protected from the sun while the foliage is wet with the solution, they are less likely to be injured by this treatment. W. H. T.

NEPHROLEPIS.

If the plants are lifted with a nice ball, the soil carefully filled in about the roots when potting and the whole well soaked with water, they will show little signs of wilting. A night temperature of 55 degrees is ample.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

The annual banquet and installation of officers of the Springfield Florists' Club was held at the Bookwalter hotel Monday evening, October 10, with twenty-five members about the festal board, all having evidently come with well sharpened appetites as a result of arduous greenhouse labor of the day.

Cigars having been distributed, the retiring president, Roger H. Murphey, of Urbana, assumed the role of toastmaster with a few felicitous remarks, concluding with references to his summer vacation trip to Michigan, which naturally led him to call on one who had been described to him by the proprietor of a fishing tackle store in Michigan as a "fussy little old man," who proved later to have been John M. Good. Mr. Good related numerous amusing incidents of his vacation trip, with some excellent and original fish stories which involved several other florists present.

George H. Mellen was next introduced, and spoke interestingly of the accomplishments of the club and mentioned several subjects on which there might be room for advancement.

"The Good of the Club" was assigned to George D. Leedle for an impromptu talk. Mr. Leedle stated that in his younger days, when he had studied such literature as "Mother Goose," one of the paramount questions had been, "Who killed Cock Robin?" But the modern parallel along this line among our fraternity is, "Who killed the Springfield flower show?" As a means of maintaining a regular and lively interest in the work of a club, a definite plan for the year was advocated, such as a paper or talk on some favorite subject of interest to the profession, to be prepared by various members for each regular meeting. Leman Bradford followed with brief remarks endorsing the recommendations of the preceding speakers.

As chairman of the entertainment committee for the last year, Opha Jackson related some of his experiences. The work of this committee has been somewhat perplexing, by reason of the fact that the former large "wet" majority has swung to the "dry" column.

Christian Binning told of his starting with the Storrs & Harrison Co., at Painesville, O., twenty-eight years ago, at which time Robert George said to him that the florists' business was "played out," but later developments have shown that it had not yet begun. Mr. Binning was of the opinion that what he heard at the annual gatherings of the S. A. F. was of little practical benefit to Springfield plant growers and shippers, and that their interests were more closely allied to those of the American Association of Nurserymen. He expressed a belief that we should effect an organization of all of the catalogue houses of the country as a National Association of Plant Shippers.

Roy McGregor proposed the question as to whether the club should be a business or a social organization.

The most recent new member of the club, Charles O. Youngstrand, spoke from the standpoint of an outsider, or purchaser of our stock. Mr. Youngstrand came to Springfield as a newspaper man, and when told of the immensity of the local plant business, and especially the rose growing, he naturally asked, "Where are the roses?" comparatively none being visible to the passing observer. Later on he discovered that all were too busy propagating and growing to give any attention to planting for ornamentation. He recommended an annual outdoor rose show, provided the local soils were such as to make this feasible.

Joseph Campbell claimed to be able to grow roses and to eat fried chicken with any of the crowd, but when it came to speech making he was down and out.

Frank E. Good spoke of the fact that a new rose is frequently tried in an inadequate way and discarded as worthless, while it might have proven a valuable addition to the list if it had been properly tested. He predicted that his firm would soon have a trial ground where every rose, tender or hardy, would be given a full chance to demonstrate its merits. Mr. Good also spoke of the average heating system in local houses, which he believed to be to some extent antiquated and wasteful of fuel.

Ward Welsh, who is known to the members as "the farmer of Mud Run," rose to his feet with a pompous air which gave rise to great expectations on the part of the listeners, and then gravely announced that he had "lost his little speech, which he had placed in his pocket."

A definite program for the year, with something interesting for each meeting, was urged by C. L. Reese.

Charles Unglaub mentioned the growing and exhibition of specimen plants as something which might add to the attendance and interest, whereupon Mr. Binning produced two fine specimen blooms of Dahlia Grand Duke Alexis, which were passed around and greatly admired.

A local campaign for lawn improvement was favored by Harvey N. Siegenthaler, who proposed a plan for the selling of plants and shrubbery by bright young people from our high school and college, under the guidance of a commission of citizens interested in botanical matters and civic beautification.

Carl Glenn, the retiring secretary, expressed a feeling of relief from the duty, stating that he was there to learn rather than to teach.

C. Pearl Bethard, secretary-elect, thanked the club for the honor conferred on him, and expressed regret at the abandonment of the flower show project, remarking that "we will have one next year."

In relinquishing the office of president, Robert Murphey added a few well chosen remarks and introduced the president-elect, Charles W. Schmidt, who spoke of the advantages of getting together in a feeling of mutual confidence and coöperation, one of the peculiar features of the local floral business being that all are to a large extent interdependent in the matter of replenishing exhausted supplies of stock. Reference was also made to the comparatively few flowers planted by the Springfield public, in spite of the fact that the best advantages on earth for buying in almost every conceivable line are right at hand.

On motion of John M. Good, a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee to revive the project of removing a portion of the cement from the esplanade and planting the spaces with flowers, the florists to supply the necessary stock for a period of five years. Mr. Binning and Mr. Youngstrand joined in advocating some plan for supplying the local papers with literature along the line of instructing the public what, when and how to plant.

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

There has been quite an improvement in trade this month, but it is not regular. One day every one is buying and the next day there is nothing doing. However, the general volume of business will foot up all right. There are plenty of flowers of all kinds—Beauties, roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, dahlias, gladioli, lilies and violets. No scarcity of anything.

Various Notes.

Breitenstein & Co. have retired from the retail cut flower business. This is the second retailer to quit this fall, leaving only three large stores in the downtown section of the city.

A street car struck the auto in which Samuel McClements and his son were riding Sunday, October 9, on their way to church. The son was thrown from the machine and his hand was badly cut with glass from the broken wind shield. Both were badly shaken up, but considered themselves fortunate to escape so luckily.

De Forest Ludwig is taking a scientific course at Cornell.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. is cutting some extra fine roses at its Bakers-town greenhouses. This company has been busy getting things arranged in its new home.

Visitors were: Mr. Edlefsen, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, Wis., and I. A. Oldham, Cambridge, O.

ORANGE, N. J.

The fifth annual dahlia show of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held in Lindsley hall, October 1. There was a large attendance and the show was the best of the kind the society ever has held. Among the outside visitors were Charles McTaggart, with W. E. Marshall & Co., New York; George W. Strange, with W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., and William Tricker, the water lily specialist of Arlington, N. J.

Walter M. Gray, of Maplewood, N. J., captured the silver cup donated by Hitchings & Co., which was awarded for the best sixty dahlia cut blooms. William Reid, gardener for S. M. & A. Colgate, was awarded the second prize cup, donated by James Laing, of Orange. Albert F. Larson, gardener for A. B. Jenkins, won the third prize cup. These gentlemen were the principal exhibitors for prizes, with Max Schneider also capturing a number of firsts.

William Tricker made a fine display of outdoor roses and received a cultural certificate. Other certificates were awarded as follows: To Walter Gray, for Souvenir de Gustave Doazon; P. A. Connors, for dahlias; Albert F. Larson, for dahlias; D. Kindsgrab, for dahlias; Edward Meritt, for dahlias; Charles Ashmead, for dahlias; William H. Reid, for dahlias; Max Schneider, for celosias; William Hatton, for egg plant. The judges were William Tricker, Arthur T. Caparn and James Carswell.

GEORGE E. BROWNE.

The new president of the Detroit Florists' Club, George E. Browne, was born in 1870, in Greenfield, Mich., on the same ground where his greenhouses are now located. For some time his ambition was not along the path which he is now following, for he taught at the Michigan State Normal College for several years, finally starting in the florists' business in 1890. Mr. Browne says that the only important event in his life was when he married, in 1902, and he is now the proud father of two handsome children. The members of the Detroit club are congratulating themselves on having Mr. Browne as the leader this year, for he is bubbling over with enthusiasm for the welfare of the club.

H. S.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

For the last few days, owing to the four days of dark, cool, inclement weather last week, the supply of flowers has been scarcely able to meet the demand. This demand is larger than usual for this time of the year, because of the request for choice stock for decorations for the many affairs given in honor of the visiting delegates to the triennial convention of the Episcopal church, now in progress. The heavy shipping has also taken up large quantities of stock. The general indications, however, are that by the time this letter is in print chrysanthemums will be in strong. Bright weather will bring in other blooms heavier and relieve the tension of the market.

The cold, dark days of last week told on roses more than any other crop. This, combined with the fact that many varieties were naturally off crop, made the number offered seem small in comparison to the normal cut. In spite of this, the prices did not stiffen, except in the case of Beauties, which brought a slightly higher average figure. The Beauties, Brides, My Maryland, Killarney and Taft were of the best quality. The last named also held its own in numbers.

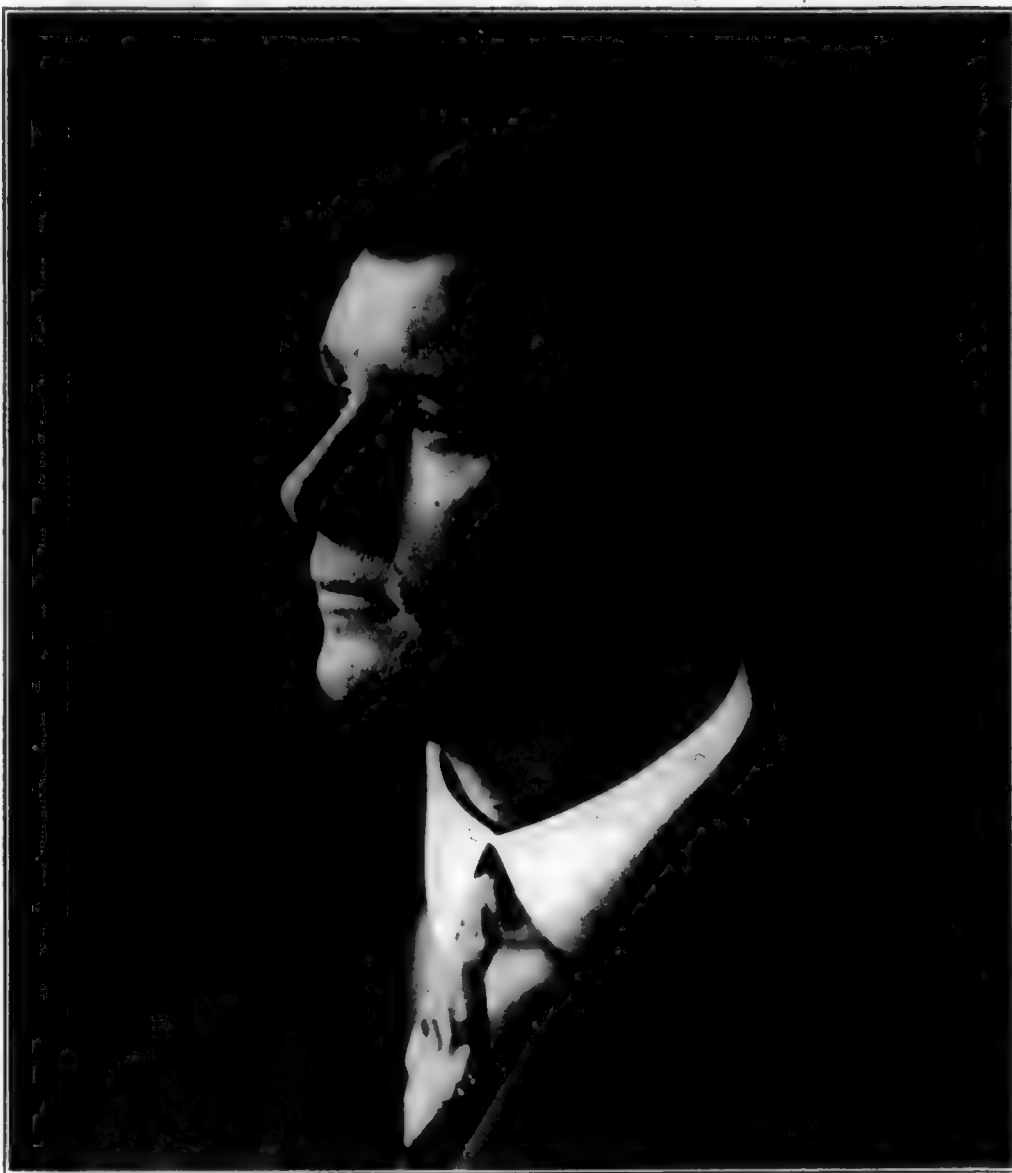

Carnations are improving and coming in stronger every day. Some offered are almost equal to the best of later in the season. Most of the mums on sale so far are choice ones, and bring top prices. Longiflorum find a ready sale. Dahlias, too, have cleaned up nicely. Lily of the valley and orchids are snapped up every day, and often are ordered up in advance. Cosmos, which was off crop for a few days and also put out by the rain, is more plentiful. Some gladioli still arrive. Consignments of pansies are regular.

The supply of decorative greens is ample and of good quality.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held at the club rooms in the Jabez Elliott Flower Market October 10. Ed. Schumann, C. J. Jones, Charles McCrea and Harry Moorman were elected to membership.

J. A. Peterson gave a talk on cement benches, during which he gave an interesting account of their development. Mr. Peterson now has a bench that he believes is perfect. He uses a mixture of one part of either Old Dominion or Atlas cement and six parts of coke screenings, and reinforces this with wire netting and galvanized steel wire rose stakes placed about twelve inches apart. The whole is scarcely more than an inch thick, and is perfectly porous. The bench thus made is cheaper and more durable than wood.

Max Rudolph read a clever paper on the essentials of steam and hot water heating and the advantages and disadvantages of each system under varying conditions. This paper brought out a fund of stories of various incidents, amusing and otherwise, of early experiences with steam heating.

Thomas Peterson, an old friend of J. A. Peterson, was a guest of the latter at the meeting. The former, who recently spent some years in Denmark, intends locating in this city.

Various Notes.

The bowling club will hold its first meeting at Finke & Craig's alleys, 120 East Sixth street, next Monday, October 17, at 8 p. m. A short business session will be held before the games. A large crowd is expected to bowl the opening games.

Last week C. E. Critchell had as guests R. Irving Gresham and Mrs. Gresham, who are just returning to their home in Atlanta, Ga., after an extended honeymoon. Mr. Gresham is manager of the C. A. Dahl Co., of that city.

October 9 Wm. Murphy visited the various greenhouses at the western end of the city. C. C. Murphy's whole establishment is planted with his seedling red carnation, which he is growing especially for the holidays. Alfred Murphy has about half his place planted in solid beds. He is trying this for carnations for the first time. So far the stock looks fine and strong. Ed. Murphy has a crop of Estelle mums grown outdoors and covered only recently with sash. They are ready to cut. Louis Murphy's carnations look well and his six houses of mums are in good shape. At present he is busy boxing 100,000 Dutch bulbs that arrived recently. Charlie Murphy, who planted earlier than anyone else in the district, is long on white carnations.

P. J. Olinger is the proud possessor of one of the balls that Zimmerman, of the Cubs, knocked over the fence in a recent game for a home run, a feat rarely accomplished on the local grounds.

October 9 Fred Bruggeman went up to the greenhouses at New Castle on an excursion.

H. Schmidt & Co., of Oxford, O., are fortunate with their early mums. Theirs are the bulk of the chrysanthemums in the market. They are shipping regularly to two of the wholesalers.

Poole & Purlant, formerly of Bellefontaine and Washington Court House, have purchased the Shearer plant at Winchester, Ky. They were here, together with their families, and bought various stock and articles for their new establishment.

Max Rudolph and Tom Windram are now cutting Estelle mums.

Miss Cora Pherson, of Wm. Murphy's, had a narrow escape October 9 at Natural Bridge, Ky. A boat in which she was riding capsized in deep soaked with water, they will show little signs of wilting. A night temperature of 55 degrees is ample.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

The annual banquet and installation of officers of the Springfield Florists' Club was held at the Bookwalter hotel Monday evening, October 10, with twenty-five members about the festal board, all having evidently come with well sharpened appetites as a result of arduous greenhouse labor of the day.

Cigars having been distributed, the retiring president, Roger H. Murphey, of Urbana, assumed the role of toastmaster with a few felicitous remarks, concluding with references to his summer vacation trip to Michigan, which naturally led him to call on one who had been described to him by the proprietor of a fishing tackle store in Michigan as a "fussy little old man," who proved later to have been John M. Good. Mr. Good related numerous amusing incidents of his vacation trip, with some excellent and original fish stories which involved several other florists present.

George H. Mellen was next introduced, and spoke interestingly of the accomplishments of the club and mentioned several subjects on which there might be room for advancement.

"The Good of the Club" was assigned to George D. Leedle for an impromptu talk. Mr. Leedle stated that in his younger days, when he had studied such literature as "Mother Goose," one of the paramount questions had been, "Who killed Cock Robin?" But the modern parallel along this line among our fraternity is, "Who killed the Springfield flower show?" As a means of maintaining a regular and lively interest in the work of a club, a definite plan for the year was advocated, such as a paper or talk on some favorite subject of interest to the profession, to be prepared by various members for each regular meeting. Leman Bradford followed with brief remarks endorsing the recommendations of the preceding speakers.

As chairman of the entertainment committee for the last year, Opha Jackson related some of his experiences. The work of this committee has been somewhat perplexing, by reason of the fact that the former large "wet" majority has swung to the "dry" column.

Christian Binning told of his starting with the Storrs & Harrison Co., at Painesville, O., twenty-eight years ago, at which time Robert George said to him that the florists' business was "played out," but later developments have shown that it had not yet begun. Mr. Binning was of the opinion that what he heard at the annual gatherings of the S. A. F. was of little practical benefit to Springfield plant growers and shippers, and that their interests were more closely allied to those of the American Association of Nurserymen. He expressed a belief that we should effect an organization of all of the catalogue houses of the country as a National Association of Plant Shippers.

Roy McGregor proposed the question as to whether the club should be a business or a social organization.

The most recent new member of the club, Charles O. Youngstrand, spoke from the standpoint of an outsider, or purchaser of our stock. Mr. Youngstrand came to Springfield as a newspaper man, and when told of the immensity of the local plant business, and especially the rose growing, he naturally asked, "Where are the roses?" comparatively none being visible to the passing observer. Later on he discovered that all were too busy propagating and growing to give any attention to planting for ornamentation. He recommended an annual outdoor rose show, provided the local soils were such as to make this feasible.

Joseph Campbell claimed to be able to grow roses and to eat fried chicken with any of the crowd, but when it came to speech making he was down and out.

Frank E. Good spoke of the fact that a new rose is frequently tried in an inadequate way and discarded as worthless, while it might have proven a valuable addition to the list if it had been properly tested. He predicted that his firm would soon have a trial ground where every rose, tender or hardy, would be given a full chance to demonstrate its merits. Mr. Good also spoke of the average heating system in local houses, which he believed to be to some extent antiquated and wasteful of fuel.

Ward Welsh, who is known to the members as "the farmer of Mud Run," rose to his feet with a pompous air which gave rise to great expectations on the part of the listeners, and then gravely announced that he had "lost his little speech, which he had placed in his pocket."

A definite program for the year, with something interesting for each meeting, was urged by C. L. Reese.

Charles Unglaub mentioned the growing and exhibition of specimen plants as something which might add to the attendance and interest, whereupon Mr. Binning produced two fine specimen blooms of Dahlia Grand Duke Alexis, which were passed around and greatly admired.

A local campaign for lawn improvement was favored by Harvey N. Siegenthaler, who proposed a plan for the selling of plants and shrubbery by bright young people from our high school and college, under the guidance of a commission of citizens interested in botanical matters and civic beautification.

Carl Glenn, the retiring secretary, expressed a feeling of relief from the duty, stating that he was there to learn rather than to teach.

C. Pearl Bethard, secretary-elect, thanked the club for the honor conferred on him, and expressed regret at the abandonment of the flower show project, remarking that "we will have one next year."

In relinquishing the office of president, Robert Murphey added a few well chosen remarks and introduced the president-elect, Charles W. Schmidt, who spoke of the advantages of getting together in a feeling of mutual confidence and cooperation, one of the peculiar features of the local floral business being that all are to a large extent interdependent in the matter of replenishing exhausted supplies of stock. Reference was also made to the comparatively few flowers planted by the Springfield public, in spite of the fact that the best advantages on earth for buying in almost every conceivable line are right at hand.

On motion of John M. Good, a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee to revive the project of removing a portion of the cement from the esplanade and planting the spaces with flowers, the florists to supply the necessary stock for a period of five years. Mr. Binning and Mr. Youngstrand joined in advocating some plan for supplying the local papers with literature along the line of instructing the public what, when and how to plant.

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

There has been quite an improvement in trade this month, but it is not regular. One day every one is buying and the next day there is nothing doing. However, the general volume of business will foot up all right. There are plenty of flowers of all kinds—Beauties, roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, dahlias, gladioli, lilies and violets. No scarcity of anything.

Various Notes.

Breitenstein & Co. have retired from the retail cut flower business. This is the second retailer to quit this fall, leaving only three large stores in the downtown section of the city.

A street car struck the auto in which Samuel McClements and his son were riding Sunday, October 9, on their way to church. The son was thrown from the machine and his hand was badly cut with glass from the broken wind shield. Both were badly shaken up, but considered themselves fortunate to escape so luckily.

De Forest Ludwig is taking a scientific course at Cornell.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. is cutting some extra fine roses at its Bakers-town greenhouses. This company has been busy getting things arranged in its new home.

Visitors were: Mr. Edlefsen, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, Wis., and I. A. Oldham, Cambridge, O.

Hoo-Hoo.

ORANGE, N. J.

The fifth annual dahlia show of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held in Lindsley hall, October 1. There was a large attendance and the show was the best of the kind the society ever has held. Among the outside visitors were Charles McTaggart, with W. E. Marshall & Co., New York; George W. Strange, with W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., and William Tricker, the water lily specialist of Arlington, N. J.

Walter M. Gray, of Maplewood, N. J., captured the silver cup donated by Hitchings & Co., which was awarded for the best sixty dahlia cut blooms. William Reid, gardener for S. M. & A. Colgate, was awarded the second prize cup, donated by James Laing, of Orange. Albert F. Larson, gardener for A. B. Jenkins, won the third prize cup. These gentlemen were the principal exhibitors for prizes, with Max Schneider also capturing a number of firsts.

William Tricker made a fine display of outdoor roses and received a cultural certificate. Other certificates were awarded as follows: To Walter Gray, for Souvenir de Gustave Doazon; P. A. Conners, for dahlias; Albert F. Larson, for dahlias; D. Kindsgrab, for dahlias; Edward Merrit, for dahlias; Charles Ashmead, for dahlias; William H. Reid, for dahlias; Max Schneider, for celosias; William Hatton, for egg plant. The judges were William Tricker, Arthur T. Caparn and James Carswell.

GEORGE E. BROWNE.

The new president of the Detroit Florists' Club, George E. Browne, was born in 1870, in Greenfield, Mich., on the same ground where his greenhouses are now located. For some time his ambition was not along the path which he is now following, for he taught at the Michigan State Normal College for several years, finally starting in the florists' business in 1890. Mr. Browne says that the only important event in his life was when he married, in 1902, and he is now the proud father of two handsome children. The members of the Detroit club are congratulating themselves on having Mr. Browne as the leader this year, for he is bubbling over with enthusiasm for the welfare of the club. H. S.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

For the last few days, owing to the four days of dark, cool, inclement weather last week, the supply of flowers has been scarcely able to meet the demand. This demand is larger than usual for this time of the year, because of the request for choice stock for decorations for the many affairs given in honor of the visiting delegates to the triennial convention of the Episcopal church, now in progress. The heavy shipping has also taken up large quantities of stock. The general indications, however, are that by the time this letter is in print chrysanthemums will be in strong. Bright weather will bring in other blooms heavier and relieve the tension of the market.

The cold, dark days of last week told on roses more than any other crop. This, combined with the fact that many varieties were naturally off crop, made the number offered seem small in comparison to the normal cut. In spite of this, the prices did not stiffen, except in the case of Beauties, which brought a slightly higher average figure. The Beauties, Brides, My Maryland, Killarney and Taft were of the best quality. The last named also held its own in numbers.

Carnations are improving and coming in stronger every day. Some offered are almost equal to the best of later in the season. Most of the mums on sale so far are choice ones, and bring top prices. Longiflorum find a ready sale. Dahlias, too, have cleaned up nicely. Lily of the valley and orchids are snapped up every day, and often are ordered up in advance. Cosmos, which was off crop for a few days and also put out by the rain, is more plentiful. Some gladioli still arrive. Consignments of pansies are regular.

The supply of decorative greens is ample and of good quality.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held at the club rooms in the Jabez Elliott Flower Market October 10. Ed. Schumann, C. J. Jones, Charles McCrea and Harry Moorman were elected to membership.

J. A. Peterson gave a talk on cement benches, during which he gave an interesting account of their development. Mr. Peterson now has a bench that he believes is perfect. He uses a mixture of one part of either Old Dominion or Atlas cement and six parts of coke screenings, and reinforces this with wire netting and galvanized steel wire rose stakes placed about twelve inches apart. The whole is scarcely more than an inch thick, and is perfectly porous. The bench thus made is cheaper and more durable than wood.

Max Rudolph read a clever paper on the essentials of steam and hot water heating and the advantages and disadvantages of each system under varying conditions. This paper brought out a fund of stories of various incidents, amusing and otherwise, of early experiences with steam heating.

Thomas Peterson, an old friend of J. A. Peterson, was a guest of the latter at the meeting. The former, who recently spent some years in Denmark, intends locating in this city.

Various Notes.

The bowling club will hold its first meeting at Finke & Craig's alleys, 120 East Sixth street, next Monday, October 17, at 8 p. m. A short business session will be held before the games. A large crowd is expected to bowl the opening games.

Last week C. E. Critchell had as guests R. Irving Gresham and Mrs. Gresham, who are just returning to their home in Atlanta, Ga., after an extended honeymoon. Mr. Gresham is manager of the C. A. Dahl Co., of that city.

October 9 Wm. Murphy visited the various greenhouses at the western end of the city. C. C. Murphy's whole establishment is planted with his seedling red carnation, which he is growing especially for the holidays. Alfred Murphy has about half his place planted in solid beds. He is trying this for carnations for the first time. So far the stock looks fine and strong. Ed. Murphy has a crop of Estelle mums grown outdoors and covered only recently with sash. They are ready to cut. Louis Murphy's carnations look well and his six houses of mums are in good shape. At present he is busy boxing 100,000 Dutch bulbs that arrived recently. Charlie Murphy, who planted earlier than anyone else in the district, is long on white carnations.

P. J. Olinger is the proud possessor of one of the balls that Zimmerman, of the Cubs, knocked over the fence in a recent game for a home run, a feat rarely accomplished on the local grounds.

October 9 Fred Bruggeman went up to the greenhouses at New Castle on an excursion.

H. Schmidt & Co., of Oxford, O., are fortunate with their early mums. Theirs are the bulk of the chrysanthemums in the market. They are shipping regularly to two of the wholesalers.

Poole & Purllant, formerly of Bellefontaine and Washington Court House, have purchased the Shearer plant at Winchester, Ky. They were here, together with their families, and bought various stock and articles for their new establishment.

Max Rudolph and Tom Windram are now cutting Estelle mums.

Miss Cora Pherson, of Wm. Murphy's, had a narrow escape October 9 at Natural Bridge, Ky. A boat in which she was riding capsized in deep water. Fred J. Murphy proved to be the hero, for he rescued Miss Rherson.

L. H. Kyrk is ill with appendicitis. His friends hope the attack will not be serious and that he will be back at his desk before long.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. John Walt, the wife of the east end florist. Mrs. Walt was run down by an auto near her home on Grandin road, East Walnut Hills. Mr. Walt has the sympathy of the trade in his bereavement.

Visitors: J. T. Herdegen, of Aurora, Ind., and Mr. Goldman, of Middletown, O., each of whom is a heavy buyer in the local market. C. H. H.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The month of October made its entry in a somewhat unpleasant manner, as we had almost continuous cold rain for about ten days, with a frequent drop in the temperature of 20 degrees at night. The growers of store plants are beginning to bring the most tender foliage and flowering plants inside, although the weather is now considerably warmer and fairer.

The majority of the early mums, both out and indoors, are showing good color. To procure clean, silky flowers the growers provide them with sash or white canvas coverings. Although we are still three weeks from All Saints' day, November 1, some of the large growers of chrysanthemums are rather disappointed concerning the general advancement of the early flowers, but hope to have sufficient on hand to fill the immense demand for that particular day, inasmuch as afterwards the prices, even for the better grade of flowers, are considerably less. All we need now is moderate and sunny weather to well repay the mum growers for their months of toil and worry.

The increased demand for poinsettias, especially those grown in pans for Christmas, caused many local florists to pay particular attention to this beautiful winter bloomer and the general output this year will be greater and better than ever before.

The return of the summer travelers already shows a decided change in our previous dull conditions by a noticeable demand for various pot plants to redecorate their homes for the coming season; likewise the sale of the better class of cut flowers has increased.

Various Notes.

The city park, maintained almost entirely by residents of the lower section of New Orleans, is at present at the height of its glory and the superintendent, H. Bernard, and the head gardener, F. Brocker, surely deserve all the praise and congratulation bestowed upon them for their great endeavors to make this park, in the course of time, one of the most beautiful and picturesque in the country. Walking in the shade of the old, majestic live oaks, hung with trailers of light gray moss, the huge foliage groups, the plants of which are perfect in growth and color, surely make a bewildering effect, heightened by flowering beds of cannas, roses, etc. The plants used for the most noteworthy groups were those of assorted crotons, aralias, marantas, caladiums, dracenas, dieffenbachias, sanchezias, ficus, pandanus, etc. Huge specimens of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, N. Piersoni and N. davallioides ferns, measuring from five to eight feet across, and several smaller beds of low growing bedding plants are interspersed to their best advantage. The mums, in groups and pots, looked well and the planting of different varieties of conifers years ago, which has been constantly kept up, proved a success and added greatly to the natural beauty of the park. An enormous stock for the coming winter and spring planting is growing on, promising many a surprise for the thousands of visitors to this delightful city of the south. R. E.

ALTON, ILL.

The Market.

The retail prices here are: Chrysanthemums, good stock, $3 to $5; carnations, 60 cents to 75 cents per dozen; valley, $1 per dozen; roses, $1.50 to $3; American Beauties, $2 to $6. It has been a busy month so far here, and the florists are well pleased with the amount of trade.

Various Notes.

Newman Bros., of Upper Alton, are showing a huge fern in their store, the fronds measuring sixty to seventy inches.

The Alton Floral Co. has had a busy week with funeral work.

Joseph Krug is still doing business at the same stand.

J. F. Ammann's store has been repainted inside and a new ice-box has been installed. Under the new management of H. G. Evans, lately of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., business is flourishing. During the merchants' opening week here he had a fine booth and displayed floral art in all its branches. On the last night of the show he made up six wedding reception and debutante bouquets, and at the end of the affair he gave them away to the ladies in town. This certainly brought him trade, as he has had several wedding orders on the strength of it. The firm has also made some fine window displays in the downtown stores, which have brought hosts of compliments.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

At a reception given the Florists' Club by its president, F. H. Kramer, Tuesday evening, October 4, the rear part of the Kramer establishment on F street, which is ordinarily used for the display of pot plants, was made to resemble a fully equipped rathskeller. In addition to the decorations, Mr. Kramer furnished music and refreshments. Nearly 100 members of the club were present.

Prior to the social session, a business meeting was held, at which plans were discussed for the flower show which is to be held at Convention hall in connection with the National Manufacturers, October 24 to November 6. It has been decided to make one of the features of the show a replica of the famous Fushimi mountain, of Japan, in which all of the florists will be represented. The mountain will be so constructed as to enable thousands that are expected to attend the show to climb to its height and enjoy tea in a picturesque pagoda.

The committee which is planning this display for the show is composed of William F. Gude, George Cooke, O. A. C. Oehmler, W. W. Kimmell, Elmer Mayberry, J. L. Carbery and John Robertson.

The musical program at Mr. Kramer's reception included numbers by Mrs. Inez Seymour Milton, Miss Clara N. Necker, Arthur Manwell and Prof. Dolan. Baby Edith Brown, Washington's juvenile prima donna, made a decided hit. Prof. Fulton B. Karr presided at the piano.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Trade was good last week. Asters are about played out. Some nice carnations are to be seen; these retail at 50 cents per dozen. Fine roses also are now coming in; they retail at $1.25 and $1.50 per dozen. There are some nice Killarneys on the market. Snapdragons, good white and light pink, are to be seen; their retail price is 75 cents per dozen. Violets are to be had of fair quality, retailing at about 75 cents per hundred blooms. Some good bouvardias are offered. Mums made their first appearance a week ago. These bring $2.50 per dozen, retail. Funeral work has been good.

Carnations are doing nicely indoors by this time. We are having grand weather, with warm days and cool nights.

Various Notes.

S. S. Peckham is bringing into this market some nice white and pink snapdragons.

Last Saturday, on the premises of J. H. Cleary, there was an auction sale of the stock of the store, plants, seed, etc., to meet the demands of his creditors. Some good bargains were made. S. S. Peckham, one of the principal creditors of Mr. Cleary, had been appointed one of the trustees.

E. H. Chamberlain is able to be about again, after being confined to the house for a week or so.

All the uptown stores are now making nice window displays. W. L.

At the greenhouses of M. Malonson & Son, at 259 Mount Pleasant street, the carnations are in fine, promising condition. Business, they say, was good all through the summer.

WINTERING WALLFLOWERS.

What is the best treatment for wallflower plants for the winter? We have some nice plants, but are short of room in the greenhouses. Would they do well if set in old hotbeds, with pansy plants, through the winter? We could put them in a bed at the south end of the house, where they would be well protected, but we have some pretty cold weather here, in the central part of Iowa.

G. H.

Wallflowers will withstand 10 to 15 degrees below freezing without being injured. You can winter them successfully in such a frame as you describe. However, if you wish to flower them under glass in the spring, when they sell extremely well, it would be best to put them in pots or boxes early in October. Keep them in your coldframe and house them after Christmas, giving them a cool temperature, not over 45 degrees at night. C. W.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Blanchester, O.—James Burnett suffered for some weeks with lung fever, but at last report his condition was much improved.

Tacoma, Wash.—Mrs. M. Thayer is now proprietor of the business formerly conducted by Mrs. F. Bergfield, at 913 North Sixth street.

Newton Center, Mass.—Miss McGrady celebrated the opening of the winter season by an especially fine display of stock at her store on Union street.

Farmer City, Ill.—H. L. Bracken and Anderson Ray have bought the greenhouses of Geo. D. Barnes and will use them for the growing of vegetables.

Thompsonville, Conn.—The Brainard Floral & Nursery Co. had an excellent exhibit at the fair held by the Union Agricultural Society at Enfield, Conn., September 28.

Houlton, Me.—H. L. Chadwick, who started business here in a small way a few years ago, has spent considerable money for buildings and equipment and his trade has grown in a gratifying way.

Walden, N. Y.—Henry F. Boat & Sons have completed a new greenhouse, 20x60, with concrete walls and concrete benches. It is reported that William McBrier and C. Bunting, of this place, have gone out of the business.

Battle Creek, Mich.—S. W. Coggan, of the firm of Burt & Coggan, has purchased Mr. Burt's interest in the business and is now conducting it in his own name. Mr. Coggan has greenhouses at the corner of South avenue and Hussey street and a store at 11 Main street, west.

Washington, D. C.—C. L. Jenkins & Son, whose greenhouses are at Suitland, Md., are only two years in the business, but find trade excellent. A new Kroeschell hot water boiler is being installed and an addition to the glass is in prospect for next year; the present exposure is about 5,000 feet.

Kansas City, Mo.—D. Freudenthal recently fell from a ladder, in his store in the Bryant building, and received injuries which rendered him unconscious for a time. His left arm was sprained and a large gash was cut over his left eye. He is 65 years old, and did not readily recover from the shock.

Ansonia, Conn.—Peters & Palmer, proprietors of the dahlia gardens on Holbrook street, had a fine exhibit of their stock at the recent dahlia show and secured a number of awards. Their trial grounds, where some valuable varieties are being tested, have lately been attracting much attention.

Rome, N. Y.—Edward H. Kipp, of the firm of Kipp & Edwards, at 408 to 416 Elm street, has purchased his partner's interest in the establishment and will continue the business in his own name.

Dighton, Mass.—Ellery Briggs has this season made considerable additions to his greenhouses. He has added a fine show front on one house. Ferns, callas, geraniums, carnations and violets are among his specialties.

Anaconda, Mont.—R. M. Greig has purchased a lot on Locust street, at the rear of his present greenhouses, and will build an addition which will cover the whole of the new ground, 50x140 feet. He will also erect another boiler house.

Baltimore, Md.—A. Spath, Jr., & Son, who have purchased the establishment of E. Hahn, in Embla Park, are proposing to put in a steam heating system in their greenhouses, in place of the hot water system that is now installed. The change is expected to be made next summer.

New Castle, Ind.—"An order of huge size was handled by us October 10," says Myer Heller, of the South Park Floral Co., "5,000 Beauties, all 18-inch to 45-inch, furnished to an Indianapolis dealer for the opening of a large store there. We believe this is pretty near a record for one order for all good stem Beauties."

Roswell, N. M.—F. O. Santheson, manager of the Roswell Floral Co., recently opened to the public the firm's new greenhouses and grounds, east of this city. The new place includes eight acres of land, well adapted for outdoor stock, with two greenhouses, each 50x100 feet and heated by steam. In the front part of the grounds is a half acre of American Beauties.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The Pikes Peak Floral Co. has bought the lease, business and fixtures of the Colorado Springs Floral Co., 104 North Tejon street, and will conduct a retail floral store at that location. The store will be in charge of F. B. Sauerwald. The retail store of the Pikes Peak company at its greenhouses, corner of Platte and Wahsatch avenues, will be continued.

Montgomery, Ala.—Owing to the need of more room, the sales department of the Fernhill Greenhouses has been removed from the store of the Exchange Drug Co. to that of the Montgomery Drug Co. The proprietor, H. L. Von Trott, successor to S. B. Stern & Co., will remain in charge of the greenhouses on the Upper Wetumpka road. He has everything in fine shape for the coming season.

Mechanicsville, N. Y.—The greenhouses which were recently purchased by W. H. Allen have now been sold by him to Charles Shearer, of Newman avenue.

Nahant, Mass.—Thomas Roland has purchased a florists' establishment at Revere and expects to run it as an auxiliary to his large plant on Summer street.

Burlington, Vt.—W. E. Peters, who has been in business for the last ten years at 184 Main street, will remove, November 1, to the Walker block, 137 St. Paul street.

Toledo, O.—Since the death of Chas. A. Schramm the business at 1307 to 1315 Cherry street has been conducted by his two nephews, Frank M. and Anton J. Schramm, under the name of Schramm Bros.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The Colorado Springs Floral Co., conducted by Frank Hayden, made an assignment October 4 for the benefit of creditors, to F. B. Sauerwald, formerly chief clerk for the concern.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Dr. George Burbank Shattuck, of Vassar, has a lecture on orchids which he is giving in many cities of the east, illustrating it with colored slides in a specially constructed stereopticon. W. A. Saltford, of the local firm, the Saltford Flower Shop, speaks highly of the lecture and also of the pictures.

West Newbury, Mass.—Charles Stewart, an employee of Thomas King, met with a painful death October 3. Being unwell, he drank a quantity of what was supposed to be medicine, but which proved to be carbolic acid. He died before a physician could be procured. He was about 35 years of age and resided with his parents at Gloucester when not at work for Mr. King. The body was taken to Gloucester for burial.

San Francisco, Cal.—The MacRorie McLaren Co., San Francisco, has been incorporated, with a total capitalization of $75,000. The officers of the company are: President, Daniel MacRorie; vice-president, Henry Maier; secretary and treasurer, Donald McLaren. Mr. Maier has been for many years superintendent of the Stockdale Nurseries at Burlingame. The company has taken over all the nursery and greenhouse stock of the Stockdale Nurseries, and has opened an office in Burlingame immediately opposite the station. The main offices have been removed from the Crocker building, in San Francisco, to rooms 711 to 714 in the Westbank building, corner of Ellis and Market streets.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
 We both have them.

BE a good collector, but in the first place don't grant credit where it isn't due.

THE price of glass has gone up through the chipping of another five points off the discount.

THE gladiolus and the dahlia certainly have made long strides in popular favor these last few years.

You get out of a business just what you put in it; if you don't put anything in you can't expect to get much out.

LARGE numbers of florists who grow for their own retail trade are this season planting patches of peonies of the better cut flower varieties.

IT is a peculiar fact that a lot of men in this trade who would not think of cutting prices will grant wholesale rates just because they are asked, if there is no better reason.

WHEN you send photographs to an editor, write the title on the back. The Review frequently receives pictures with no clue by which the sender can be identified, not even a postmark.

THE fertilizer manufacturers say bone meal never again will be sold at the old prices, for the same reason that meats are permanently higher. The demand has increased much faster than the supply.

THE sixteenth annual exhibition of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society will be held in the state armory at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., October 27 and 28. For prize list and entry blanks address the secretary, Herbert G. Cottam, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.

THE Maryland State Horticultural Society, of which R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, is president, will be assisted by a number of other organizations in a big exhibition and congress, November 28 to December 2, at the Fifth Regiment armory, Baltimore, the building in which the S. A. F. is to meet next August. A flower show will be one of the features.

THE final schedule of premiums has been issued for the fifteenth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, to be held at Morristown, N. J., November 3 to 4, in conjunction with the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. Copies may be had by addressing Edward Reagan, secretary, Morristown, N. J.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the J. W. Ross Co., of Centralia, Ill., offers for registration the coleus described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. Raiser's description: Leaves, large to very large; color, rich velvety crimson, shading outwardly to pink, often having gold blotches in the point; beautifully edged with green and gold. Name: Fanny Ross.

IT PAYS.

Advertising is a many-sided subject—no publication can exist without it, and no more does it hold a full measure of interest for its readers unless it carries a big line of ads; the paper that carries the most ads is always the best advertising medium, and the best for the subscribers:

I never fail to tell them we saw your ad in The Review. Have bought a new Burnham boiler and thousands of plants from ads in The Review and have always got full value for my money. Don't want to miss a single copy, as it is a great benefit to us.—Tom O'Connor, Greensboro, N. C., October 6, 1910.

OBITUARY.

Miss Emily Schultheis.

Miss Emily D. Schultheis, of Scranton, Pa., died suddenly, September 21, after a few days' illness. Miss Schultheis had conducted a florists' establishment in Scranton for the last seven years. She had been extremely well for the last few months, after an extended trip over the Great Lakes. She also attended the S. A. F. convention at Rochester, and from there took a trip to the Thousand Islands, Montreal and Quebec. The funeral was held September 24 and was largely attended. Dorothy C. Schultheis states that the business will be carried on by the remaining family.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The general report now is that business is running well ahead of the same date last year, but that prices on the whole are hardly up to those realized for stock at the same time last season. The production has been so increased that even at lower prices most wholesalers are taking in more money than before.

The chrysanthemum now dominates the market. Supplies are large, larger than ever before at this date, and there is a great deal of difference in the quality of the flowers. Yellow is most abundant, with only moderate supplies of white and not many pink yet to be had. Some of the stock is excellent and some of it is extremely poor. The best grade sells quickly and the poorest grade much slower than the growers of it would like. It is possible to fill any order at prices which should be satisfactory to buyers, except that some buyers never will learn their advantage in making their requirements known early in the day. There usually is a fairly close clean-up of stock late in the afternoon.

The Beauty market reminds one of the children's titter-totter. For a few days the supply is on the up grade and then it turns and goes down again, with prices going in the opposite direction, just as the youngsters do on the seesaw. Where last week Beauties were abundant and prices weak, this week they are less plentiful and prices

MUMS!

Headquarters for Quality and Quantity.

There is no exaggeration in the statement that we have the best stock of Mums to be found anywhere in the west—every good commercial variety that's in season; all colors, all sizes, all prices. For years our house has been recognized as Headquarters, and we are confident we are doing something this season to add to our reputation for ability to give every buyer just the stock he can use to best advantage. Let us hear from you about your Mum needs, it's to our mutual advantage.

KILLARNEY

PINK AND WHITE

We also are strong on White Killarney—a big crop is on. This is fine stock, in every way as good as our famous Killarney (pink), and the color is clear. These are the finest white roses of the season to date. In addition to Killarney and White Killarney, we can supply fine

Kaiserin, Maryland and Richmond.

BEAUTIES

While we are able to supply all lengths of Beauties of equally good quality, we are specially strong this week on long-stemmed stock. These Beauties are without question the finest that have been seen in this market this season. Fine large heads, splendid color and substance, strong stem and heavy foliage; quality that attracts the buyers who hunt out the best stock to be had.

CARNATIONS

The quality of our carnations was never better at this date and every day brings an addition to the supply. You can order here with the certainty that you are calling on the largest lot of high grade carnations in this market.

Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Plenty of them NOW. Let your orders come.

Violets

The violet season has opened. As usual, we have the cream of the Hudson river doubles and the finest of home-grown singles.

Headquarters for Asparagus Bunches, Smilax, Farleyense, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy and the best Fancy Ferns in the country.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

Elegant stock—the Chicago Market Brand—a single bunch or thousand lots, it's here.

stronger. The principal shortage is in the medium and shorter lengths; there are enough long-stemmed Beauties.

With more seasonable weather the rose crop has returned to its normal size, and the condition of the market is more healthy. There is no shortage of any variety, and the quality is excellent. An increasing proportion is of the select and special grades.

The carnation market had a period of weakness during the first week of October, but is in a little better condition this week. The supply increased more rapidly than the demand, and prices went down, but as soon as buyers found out the state of affairs they began to take hold more freely. In general, the stock is of excellent quality for this date. Stems are of fair length and otherwise the flowers are excellent.

The wholesalers have been disappointed at the way violets have acted. The supply has increased materially, and with the increase buyers have become critical of quality and arbitrary in their demands for price concessions. Some of the returns for last week will give little joy in Rhinebeck.

Increasing quantities of dahlias are received, and they sell fairly well at cheap prices. Easter lilies are more plentiful. One of the notable changes of the week has been the increase in the supply of orchids. These are now abundant and of excellent quality. Prices are much below those which have ruled for the last few months, and as a result a good business is being done. Valley is plentiful. Much fine Cosmos Lady Lenox is offered, and sells well at a moderate price.

The green goods market presents no special features.

Club Meeting.

Not in many months has there been as large an attendance as at the meeting of the Florists' Club October 6. Flower show arrangements were up for discussion. It was voted to contribute $100 to the premium fund and to hold the club's annual banquet at 6:30 p. m., Thursday, November 10, which is during flower show week. President Asmus was directed to appoint a committee of five to complete the banquet arrangements. He also was instructed to appoint a committee of seven retailers to manage the club's booth for the sale of flowers at the show, and a committee to have charge of the club's other privileges.

President Asmus, H. N. Bruns and Anton Then were appointed a committee to call on J. F. Klimmer, one of the club's oldest members, who is ill.

Three applications for membership were received, and the following twelve new members were elected: W. P. Kyle, 5435 Lake avenue, Joseph Foerster, 2242 North Halsted street, who comprise the firm of Kyle & Foerster; A. C. Rott, William Kellsner, Emil Midendorf, A. Christianson, H. Nicholson and H. Dumke, of Joliet; Fred Smith, 2509 Touhy avenue; Joseph Dimoeck, 3356 Potomac avenue; J. Byers, 48 Wabash avenue, and J. W. Fink, 2642 Herndon street.

A special meeting of the club will be held at the Union restaurant, Thursday evening, October 20.

Friedman's New Store.

O. J. Friedman opened his branch store in the Congress hotel Monday, October 9. The new store will be conducted under the name of the Congress Floral Co., and is in charge of William A. Graff, who has been with Mr. Friedman at the main store for the last four years. Originally Mr. Friedman expected to open the store about October 1, but considerable delay was experienced in getting the refrigeration system properly installed. Pipes are run from the main cooling system used in the hotel, so no ice will be necessary. The refrigerator was built by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., and is 4x8 feet and eight feet high. glass mirror forms the back and sides, and the top and bottom are of tile. The outside finish is mahogany, to match the rest of the store. The walls of the store are decorated with paintings of flowers in the field, while the ceiling is a neat conventional design. There is a fair sized display window, with a brick floor, that should make an attractive setting for vases of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

H. F. Halle has removed his store from the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Halsted street to the southwest corner of the same streets. The new number is 801 Sheridan road.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. now has two large houses filled with orchids, and considerable stock in a third house. The number of plants is not so great as it was expected to be this season, because of the failure to receive a considerable quantity of stock ordered. A large crop of cattleyas is now on, but August Poehlmann says it has not thus far been possible to keep up with the call from the store for these flowers, and that the stock will be materially increased; it is the intention to send a collector into Central America after cattleya plants, importing for their own use.

Manager George Asmus has opened a temporary office for the flower show in the cut flower department of the E. F. Winterson Co. He says the prospects for exhibits never were better, and has plans on foot through which he hopes to realize the most attractive arrangement a Chicago show has yet had. The executive committee of the Horticultural Society is holding frequent meetings, working on the show.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., sizes up the situation accurately when he says that it is no longer a question of supply but of salesmanship in this market.

A. T. Pyfer now does a 12-hour day, but says he likes city life. He has the new city store of the Chicago Carnation Co., nicely fitted up. All the office work has been transferred from Joliet to Chicago, including the young lady book keeper, who has been with the concern several years.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. has made a loan of $200,000, five years, at four and three-fourths per cent, to Luther W. Bodman, secured by the property at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Randolph street, improved with six-story and basement building, the second floor of which is occupied by the Flower Growers' Market. The building still is in course of remodeling.

Two or three years ago Chrysanthemum Touset sported at the J. A. Budlong establishment, and Phil Schupp says the cut blooms are this season proving about the best seller on the list. The color is a peculiarly deep yellow with a pink tint, approaching bronze.

Peter Reinberg is one of those who have now dispensed entirely with Bridesmaid.

C. W. McKellar says it is remarkable the way orchids have increased in demand in the last four or five years. Time was when the best of stores

The local friends of E. Haentze, of Fond du Lac, Wis., have read with interest the press dispatches from Philadelphia regarding the venerable gentleman's seeking a wife.

B. Eldridge, of Belvidere, who consigns to local commission houses, but whose principal business is the manufacture of sewing machines, lost his son by death October 8.

Among the week's visitors have been B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; N. J. Burt, of Burlington, Ia., visiting a daughter who resides here; H. A. Philpott, Winnipeg, who came down for the meeting of the Florists' Club and returned home next day.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Business has improved considerably and things are moving along nicely. This is horse show week and local florists are looking for a good week. Orchids and valley will have the call for corsage bouquets. Beauty roses will also have a prominent place on this occasion.

Stock at present is about equal to the demand. Cosmos is coming in and will be quite plentiful from now till frost comes. Dahlias are also quite plentiful, but the best stock is disposed of readily. Some good ones are to be had in red, as well as a few Roosevelt. Carnations are in good shape and some fine stock is to be seen, considering the earliness of the season. Roses are about equal to the demand and are improving in quality.

Fall weddings and openings have given decorators something to do. Wild smilax, goldenrod and other outdoor flowers and foliage have been used quite frequently.

Various Notes.

The Kentucky Society of Florists held its regular monthly meeting at Fred L. Schulz's store, October 4. The officers of the society were present, also three or four of the members. Please get busy, fellow members, and attend some of the meetings. You pay your dues; why not get your money's worth?

The last report from Charles Raynor, formerly of the Anchorage Rose Co. and now with L. W. McCoy, at Seattle, Wash., states that the change has done him good.

Nanz & Neuner are getting ready to move into their new store, on Fourth street, near Broadway. The new store will be completed about October 15 and will be known as The Rosery. It will be quite an improvement over their present place, having two nice show windows. New features will be put in. A conservatory, 20x100, will be built at the rear. The new store will be modern and up-to-date.

Nelson Wootan, who has bought the Thompson greenhouses on the Taylorville road, is getting the place in shape to do a general nursery business. He will also grow smilax, asparagus, carnations and sweet peas. A bed of mums is in good shape; also the roses. Mr. Wootan is sending in quantities of red dahlias on stems two and three feet long. Mrs. Wootan has been on the sick list, but is now on the road to recovery.

Louis Kirch has some fine red and pink dahlias.

Jacob Schulz's latest ad is an electric sign on a big frame in the rear of the lot adjoining the custom house, facing Fourth avenue, Louisville's busiest retail street, and opposite his store. The sign represents a bunch of American Beauties on 10-foot stems. The rosebuds are made to flash, being lighted and darkened alternately. The words, "Jacob Schulz, the Florist," across the street, in letters eighteen inches high, are always lighted. The ad is attracting a good deal of attention.

The Louisville Florists' Bowling Club has been organized for the season and the following members will bowl every Wednesday night: Jacob Schulz, president; Fred L. Schulz, secretary; George E. Schulz, C. M. Quirey, Phil Oberhausen, Louis Kirch, William Walker, Jr., Lee Walker, James Doerr and Karl Rabe.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The hot wave of last week played havoc with the cut flower trade, which had been starting in nicely. It caused a glut of roses, which slumped violently and have hardly yet recovered their former prices. We are now getting cooler conditions, and values have somewhat hardened, but the increasing output of carnations and chrysanthemums will unsettle the rose market. Killarney and White Killarney are the varieties which have been most in evidence. Mrs. Aaron Ward is more seen and is popular. Bride and Maid are not wanted. Kaiserin is still good and Beauties improving.

Carnations are more abundant. They are, as a rule, short-stemmed yet, as few of our growers adopt summer indoor culture; some have tried and abandoned it. Prices on carnations run a little lower all around, the best stock making $2.50 to $3 per hundred. Double violets are coming from several growers, and singles are quite abundant, but not yet of good quality. The bulk of the plants are still outdoors, growers preferring a little frost before housing them. Chrysanthemums are now coming in quantity, but as yet there is no glut. Few large, fancy blooms are seen nowadays, the demand for them being light. The flowers which are most in demand wholesale at $4 to $10 per hundred. A few fancies make $2.50 to $3 per dozen, but these are top prices. Golden Glow, Halliday, Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, Glory of Pacific, Montmort and Montrovia are the varieties mostly seen. A few Ivory also appeared this week.

There are still quite a few asters, but they are of poor quality, and the prices obtained for them will hardly pay for picking and express charges. Dahlias are getting fewer. They are featured just now by quite a few of the stores, and if cut with longer stems should in future seasons be more in demand. A few indoor grown sweet peas are seen, and a few outdoor stragglers also. Cornflowers, pansies, tuberoses, cosmos and some other outdoor flowers are seen. Pansies average 50 cents per hundred; cosmos, 25 cents to 50 cents per hundred.

Lily of the valley is coming of better quality, and has been in fairly good demand. Lilies are not overabundant, and the bulk make 10 cents to 12½ cents each. Smilax is not much seen nowadays, but one or two growers are bringing it in. Asparagus and adiantum are both good, the fronds of the latter being hard and well ripened. The demand for hardy ferns is improving.

Trade in pot plants is steadily growing, the demand being as yet chiefly for foliage plants, but chrysanthemums are now quite plentiful and of good quality. Lorraines, Christmas peppers and solanums are all seen in quantity. The call for small ferns for dishes is good.

Various Notes.

William C. Ward, of Quincy, is bringing in some good yellow pompon chrysanthemums, also a fine lot of pansies, in which latter flower he is a leading greenhouse specialist.

F. J. Dolansky is cutting extra good Rosiere and Polly Rose chrysanthemums. He has a fine lot of pot plants in variety.

New England's great outdoor carnival, the Brockton fair, held October 4 to 7, attracted this year more people than ever before. Paid admissions on October 5 were 52,650 and October 6, 90,995, gate receipts for these two days being over $60,000. The total attendance was close to 200,000. Is there any other fair in America that can beat these figures for a four days' show? The frost the week previous materially reduced the show of outdoor flowers, dahlias suffering the most. The leading exhibitors of these were G. H. Walker, F. L. Tinkham, A. E. Johnson, A. W. Tripp, W. D. Hathaway and W. F. Turner & Co. Some large growers, like J. K. Alexander, did not have a flower to show, all being frozen. The Montrose Greenhouses secured first prize for fifty roses. The rose men did not show up as they should. Baskets and bouquets of native flowers were this year a new feature. Among the judges were Duncan Finlayson, on vegetables, Wilfrid Wheeler, on fruits, and W. N. Craig and W. D. Hathaway, on flowers.

Among those in the trade noticed at the Brockton fair were: George Cartwright, W. A. Hastings, W. J. Thurs-

Arthur Capers, of Wellesley, who took over the old Wilson place, is bringing in some of the finest carnations seen at 2 Park street this season.

The first annual meeting and banquet of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., will be held Saturday evening, October 22.

The familiar figure of William A. Hastings is again in evidence at C Park street. There is always more cheeriness and hilarity when he is on hand. Mr. Hastings handles the cut of Johnson & Neilson, of Framingham, and Jahn, of East Bridgewater.

Frank Edgar, of Edgar Bros., is feeling proud these days over the arrival of a baby girl October 5.

William H. Elliott, at his salesrooms, in addition to his big line of roses, has at present a fine assortment of bushy and well grown chrysanthemums in pots, some of the nicest commercial stock seen in a long time.

Business with H. M. Robinson & Co. is good in all lines, showing a steady increase over 1909. Roses of all kinds, valley, gardenias, mums and all choice seasonable flowers are arriving in quantity. In the sundries department trade is also active.

W. C. Bowditch, of Grove Hall, one of our plant specialists, is showing some neat chrysanthemums at 2 Park street, in addition to a good variety of palms, araucarias and other decorative stock.

Arthur Griffin, late of Newport and now of Woburn, has just commenced shipping his carnations, which are of fine quality. They are handled by E. F. Hovey at 2 Park street.

Edward MacMulkin will be the lecturer at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club October 18. Mr. MacMulkin is one of our best known retailers. He is also a grower of repute, as well as a landscape gardener of much ability. His talk should prove interesting. A lot of chrysanthemums and other exhibits are promised for this meeting, and there will be a large accession of new members.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, is passing cigars to his friends. It is a boy, born October 4.

J. G. Holmes, of Saugus, is sending in a fine lot of pink, white and yellow anthemums here are extra fine, and a fine line of Dutch bulbs is carried.

George H. Noyes, at the Boston Flower Exchange, is handling quantities of fine chrysanthemums grown by W. D. Howard, of Milford.

Arthur Zirkman, with M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, has been in town for a few days with a full line of the firm's goods.

The Killarney and White Killarney being handled by B. J. McGinty, at 2 Park street, grown by W. R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, are extra fine, and are from own-root stock, which are doing better than grafted plants.

chrysanthemums. They are handled by J. S. Manter at C Park street.

Wax Bros. always keep attractive windows. Last week a fine assortment of named dahlias in one window and a fine vase of Souvenir de Gustave Doazon were noticed. Nymphæas were an attraction in another window. In orchids they had Cattleya labiata, gigas and Bowringiana and Vanda cœrulea.

P. L. Carbone, at his Boylston street store, makes excellent use of branches of oak and other autumn leaves in his window displays. Among cut flowers, dahlias and chrysanthemums were the most prominent. Well colored crotons were also a feature.

William Nicholson, of Framingham, is bringing in some of the finest Polly Rose, Pacific and Improved Halliday chrysanthemums seen this season. His carnations are also in the front rank.

Southworth & Greene, of Stoughton, handled the first double violets of the season seen at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Thomas Roland is sending in extra fine Polly Rose, Pacific and Monrovia chrysanthemums, in addition to the earlier varieties.

N. F. Comley is still bringing in quantities of asters of good quality, also sweet peas, chrysanthemums and carnations.

The Jewish holidays, which came October 4 and 5, helped to cause a slump in cut flower trade by taking out of the market many large buyers. Some of the street fakery took advantage of the Brockton fair to sell flowers in the Shoe City during the fair week. October 6 one of these salesmen disposed of no less than 7,500 roses on Main street, Brockton.

Welch Bros. state that fall business is starting in satisfactorily with them, shipping trade showing a steady increase and being well ahead of a year ago. They are handling at present, among other flowers, some extra fine Beauty roses, valley, cattleyas, chrysanthemums and gardenias.

Local nurseries are getting heavy fall orders. All are eagerly looking forward to rain, which must come before planting can be done. The ground is now so dust-dry that planting is simply out of the question.

The new rose, Mrs. Cutbush, of the Baby Rambler type, is highly thought of by J. A. Pettigrew, superintendent of the Boston park system. It has bloomed all summer in the nursery. The color is a beautiful pink. The park system, in spite of prevalent dry conditions, is beautiful at present, the autumn tints being splendid and some of the berried subjects attractive.

Henry S. Dawson has added a 100-foot propagating house this season at the Easton Nurseries, Holliston. Mr. Dawson's father, the redoubtable Jackson Dawson, celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary a few days ago.

Peter Fisher, who is one of the strongest advocates of indoor culture of carnations, is cutting the finest flowers seen in Boston at present, with stems equal to midwinter quality. He finds a great improvement in plants grown in sterilized soil and will use more of it another season. A new variegated seedling he has is extremely free and a big advance over Mrs. Paten. He also has a fine cerise. Beacon, White Perfection, Winona, Pink Delight and May Day are all fine. Mr. Fisher has more than doubled his planting of the last named, so well does he like it.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, October 10, an invitation was extended to the Vegetable Growers' Association to hold the next convention in Horticultural hall. Plans are under way for a suitable exhibition at the same time. J. A. Pettigrew, C. W. Parker and W. N. Craig were appointed a committee to bring in a list of committees for 1911.

Hambro, is sending in fine George S. Kalb, October Frost, Pacific, Polly Rose and Golden Glow mums, also excellent Killarney and White Killarney.

P. Bova Count, of Randolph, has sold his greenhouse plant to Peter Hylan, who will continue the business and sell his flowers at 2 Park street.

J. Newman & Sons, at their Tremont street store, have a fine orchid display this week, including lœlias, cattleyas, cypripediums and vandas, also a fine line of chrysanthemums and foliage plants.

Vincent Fenvia, of South Sudbury, who is operating the Williams Greenhouses, is shipping excellent carnations to J. M. Cohen, at 2 Park street. The latter is handling an immense cut of mums from Mishawum Greenhouses, J. Leach & Son and Mr. Phelps, of Marlboro.

George W. Ayer, of Reading, at 2 Park street has some of the best Pink Delight, Winsor, Beacon and White Enchantress carnations seen this season. He is growing them in addition to violets, which are his specialty.

Thomas Cox, of Dorchester, at 2 Park street has some of the best George S. Kalb chrysanthemums of the season.

William McGillivray returned October 8 from his European trip. Alexander McKay took charge of the West Roxbury greenhouses during his absence.

Henry R. Comley, on Park street, is showing some nice little plants of the white Campanula isophylla, an excellent plant for florists; also Crassula Portulacæ and a fine lot of Eurya latifolia variegata. Mr. Comley has a stand at the mechanics' fair, now being held in Mechanics' building.

Everett Cummings, of Woburn, is on hand with the best violets seen so far this season, at 2 Park street.

W. N. Craig.

Penn the Florist, on Bromfield street, says trade has been quite brisk with them, there having been a large sale for high class flowers, such as Beauties, gardenias, valley and orchids. They had the decorations for the Gannon-Armstrong wedding October 6, at Meredith, N. H., and had a crew up there for two days. The new store front is nearing completion, and when finished promises to be one of the handsomest in town.

NAME OF COLEUS.

I am sending some leaves of a coleus, of which I have a few thousand cuttings, but I do not know the name of it. It is an excellent bedder, of bright color and with ragged edges. Few of the plants ever seed. This summer we did not have one plant go to seed, but for bedding we have not found its equal. We would be pleased if you could tell us the name of it. C. A. M.

This is quite a unique coleus, one which I do not remember having seen before. If this beds out well you have certainly got a good thing. Would suggest Delight as an appropriate name for it. C. W.

The Rising Eastern Market.

A delay in the mail is to be charged with the absence of the usual market report this week.—Ed.

Mr. Strohlein Abroad.

George A. Strohlein recently returned to his home in Riverton, N. J., after a strenuous trip abroad which his associates in the Henry A. Dreer corporation describe as a time of unceasing activity, interrupted only by the enforced quietude on shipboard. Mr. Strohlein was looking well and talked entertainingly of his visit to England and to the continent. His chief English memento was the capture of Mrs. F. Sander, a new pure white marguerite of the Queen Alexandra type that is considered better than any marguerite yet produced. The merits of Mrs. Sander are size and freedom of bloom, finish of flower, which is pure glistening white, and length of stem. Dreer's will send it out next spring. Mr. Strohlein brought with him an immense stock of azaleas that grade high; the Belgium growers report a scarcity in the smaller sizes, due to an unfavorable season. The stock of kentias was in fine condition, as evidenced by a superb lot just imported, well grown plants without a blemish, fit to stand anywhere now.

Mr. Strohlein spent some time among the rose growers of France, a new field for him, visiting Messrs. Pernet-Ducher, Guillot and others of note. He found them heart and soul in their work, with many new seedlings of rare promise. Mr. Strohlein was impressed by the avenue of evergreens, fully a mile long, at the Bagatelle.

An Irrelevant Story.

Robert Frank, a retired merchant of this city, was describing his western trip. "One of the most interesting things I saw," he said, "was the business enterprise now being carried on by two men of my faith. They have secured control of a portion of the California gold fields that were first discovered and worked in 1849 and 1850. Here they have set up improved crushing machinery and are crushing the quartz that was rejected by the early gold diggers as unprofitable. They can handle about 100 tons of rock daily. The average yield of gold per ton is $2; the average cost of crushing is 65 cents per ton; the stone not worth crushing is sold to the railroad for ballast at $1 per ton. This leaves a nice profit, almost certain to be maintained for a long time."

"Why," you ask, "does this story appear in a florists' paper?" Because it may bring home to each one of us its own truth, that brains are needed in business. Phil.

J. G. Neidinger received 150 cases of immortelles on the boat from Marseilles that arrived at New York October 4.

H. F. Michell Co. has the contract for supplying the bulbs for the county commissioners at Wilkesbarre, amounting to $211.50.

Ernst J. F. Zieger has taken over the Mergenthaler Greenhouses, on East Washington lane, Germantown.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The market remains steady, with prices normal. Crops are showing marked improvement, and growers speak more encouragingly concerning their carnations. Mums are coming on rapidly. In fact, the supply is rather outstripping the present demand, but a couple of weeks will equalize this, and the queen of autumn will reign supreme. A number of small weddings served to swell the week's business.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Cooler weather, refreshing rains, and now Indian summer, with its chilly nights and glorious days, combine to put new life into the cut flower and plant business, though the tide turns slowly. The Jewish holidays last week and the rapid return of the society element were factors in the change for the better, while the October weddings are having a wide influence. Prices have advanced only slightly, but quotations are firm, with the tendency upward, and everything choice of every kind of flower is snapped up on arrival.

The best Beauties touched 30 cents each October 8, and the selected Killarneys, Brides, Maids and Marylands brought 5 cents, but quantities of short-stemmed roses are still arriving for which, in thousands, the buyer arbitrarily fixes values. Some fine Richmonds are now coming to the market. Kaiserin also retains its price and popularity.

Few carnations have sold over 2 cents, but this week promises a higher average, the quality and length of stem improving rapidly. The shipments of dahlias have been large and much of the stock mediocre and neglected. The finer kinds sell well, and retailers use many in basket work. Another week will practically end these, and the asters, as entitled to further notice.

There are plenty of orchids and every retail window of account utilizes the sprays in artistic arrangements. Prices remain at last week's quotation. There are plenty of fine gardenias, and these sell rapidly at $3 to $4 a dozen. The short-stemmed stock is already on the street. For violets 50 cents seems to be the extreme top; 30 cents to 20 cents even is all the bulk of the shipments bring. These go to the pavement merchants. For lilies 8 cents is the top, and most of them go at $6 per hundred. Valley must be fine to bring 3 cents; $2 per hundred is the average.

There are still many tritomas. Chrysanthemums already dominate the market. From now until December the mum is king. The variety grows daily, and the quality improves. Some superb stock sells at 50 cents each, and is all spoken for before it arrives. Polly Rose and Glory of Pacific came October 8. Before many days it will be high tide, and then the flood, as usual.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club October 10 the ladies were present in large numbers and the total attendance reached 150. The feature of the evening was a lecture by J. Horace McFarland, "The Crusade Against Ugliness." He said he had spoken on the subject before 100 audiences and emphasized the value of the work of the florists for the world's betterment and beauty. He received a vote of thanks.

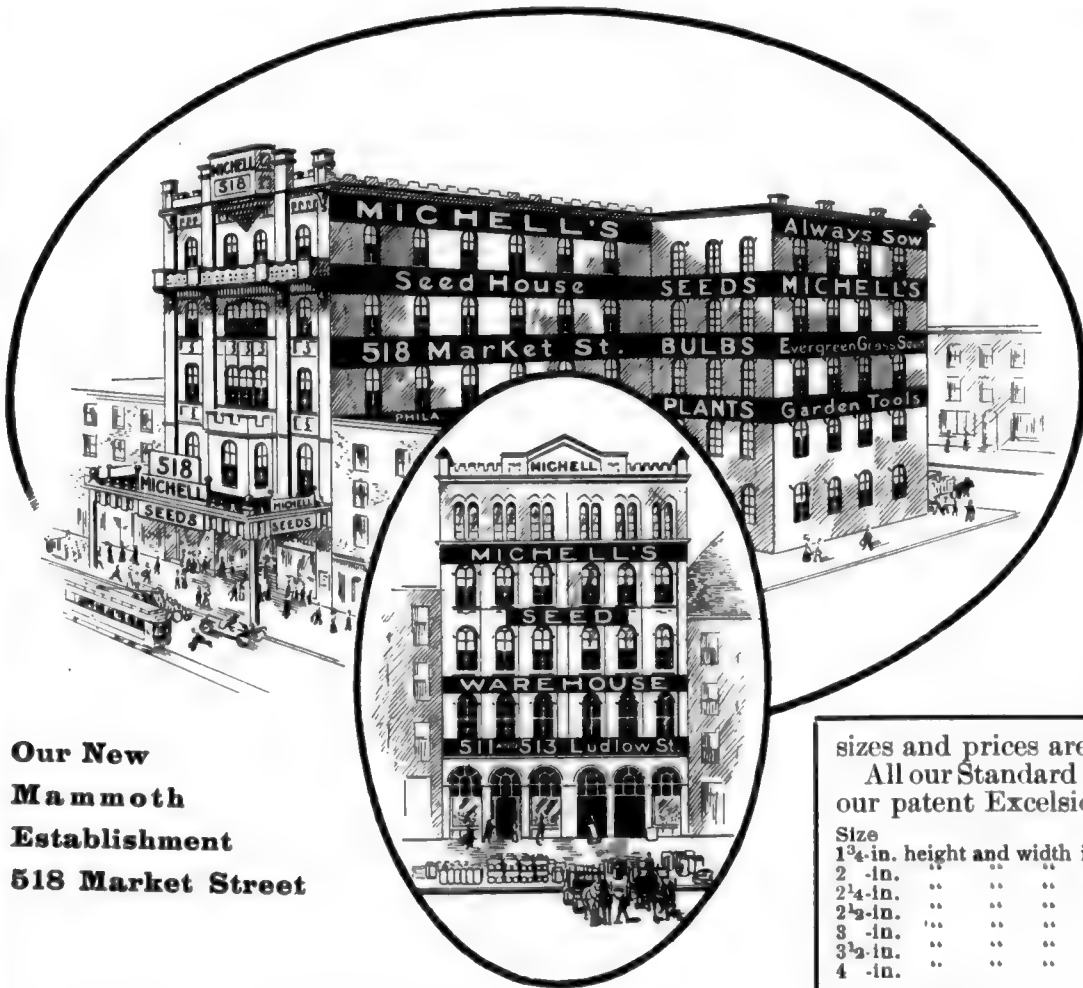

Resolutions on the death of Lyman B. Crow were read and his splendid character and the high esteem in which he was held were emphasized. Chairman Traendly, for the transportation committee; H. A. Bunyard, for the outing committee, and P. O'Mara, for the legislative committee, made reports.

The following new members were elected: Emil Leuly, John Collins, F. Marquardt, John Baumann, George Crawbuck, R. D. MacNiff, P. Einsman, George Wagner, W. F. Shay, E. T. Broomfield and H. E. Philpott. The following ten applications were made for membership: William Taat, Charles Shuster, Maurice Kleinman, Olaf Blomberg, James Fenn, W. J. Moore, Percy

Advantages of Standard Flower Pots

First—Uniform sizes throughout the country.
Second—Breakage is not one-half as great as in other pots, the deep rim protecting them from any ordinary hard usage.

Third—The foot keeps the pot up from the bench so that it is impossible for hole to become clogged. The concave bottom and large hole insure perfect drainage.

W. F. Sheridan, for the program committee, announced a lecture for the November meeting by John T. Withers, on his trip around the world, with stereopticon views. The ladies again are invited.

Various Notes.

The seedsmen are now extremely busy, the weather at last becoming seasonable. The window displays of these and the bulb houses are gastronomically attractive. Prize fruits and vegetables are grouped in seductive array. Sample flowers from their trial grounds add beauty to the effect. All of them realize the power of artistic display. October 8 C. A. Dards had charge of the decorations for the wedding of Miss Havemeyer at Yonkers. It was as elaborate and beautiful as a carte blanche order and his quartet of artists could make it.

Carroll Elliott, of W. Elliott & Sons, had a grand dahlia display in his windows last week, and not to be outdone by Heinz, says there were fifty-seven varieties in it.

J. K. Allen has added a fine electric sign which can be seen at a great distance. The new subway station is close at hand, and the veteran says he is surely in it this season.

Weiss & Sons have opened a wholesale cut flower business at 127 West Twenty-eighth street, in the big store of Geo. Cotsonas & Co. The firm has greenhouses at Mt. Vernon and the Bronx, about 50,000 square feet in all, where mums, carnations and bulbous stock is grown. Mr. Weiss, Jr., the manager, has had five years' experience, his last position being as manager of the Manhattan Flower Market.

Myer, of Madison avenue, had charge of the decoration for the opening of the O'Donnell cafe at Broadway and Sixtieth street last week, using many palms, much autumn foliage and over 1,100 Beauties.

Mr. Godfrey, one of Walter Sheridan's growers, was a visitor last week.

W. G. Saltford, of Poughkeepsie, was a guest of his brother, Geo. Saltford, for several days last week, the two investigating the interesting features of Bronx park and the great white way.

Bowling.

There are valuable prizes every night for the bowlers. The scores October 7 were:

NAME OF PLANT.

I am sending you a plant for identification. It is a hardy annual and forces well. We often find it useful in this part of Iowa as a cut flower and now there is a good local demand for the potted plants for bedding in the spring. The name commonly given to the plant here is forget-me-not. G. H.

The plant is Phacelia congesta, popularly known as cluster flowered phacelia and of the natural order of hydrophyllaceæ, a native of western United States. C. W.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Samuel Woods, superintendent of the city parks, has been renovating the greenhouses and has so improved their construction as to increase their efficiency and durability.

Vegetable Forcing.

CUCUMBERS AND TOMATOES.

Can cucumbers and tomatoes be grown as a spring crop following lettuce on benches, or must they have more soil than the six inches used for lettuce? What varieties of tomatoes and cukes are best for this? J. T.

Yes, you can follow your winter lettuce with either cukes or tomatoes, but six inches of soil is hardly enough. I have grown a fine crop of cukes in beds four to four and one-half feet wide and eight inches of soil after it had been in lettuce all winter. The beds were only six inches deep, but I put a 1x2 strip on edge and nailed it on the side boards, so as to make the sides eight inches instead of six. Then I put a heavy coat of manure on the lettuce soil and worked it all over. This still left room for an inch of soil later; so in the latter part of April I put on another 1-inch top-dressing of rich soil, nearly half manure.

Tomatoes I treat the same way, but do not use quite so much manure, and I am careful to have half rotted manure for the tomatoes. For cukes I generally use fresh manure and lots of it.

While it is possible to grow tomatoes and cucumbers in the same house, it is never advisable, because they like different temperatures and atmospheric conditions. For instance, tomatoes like a fairly good supply of water on the soil, but not on the foliage, which is better off if never wet. They also like a rather dry atmosphere and a temperature several degrees below that of cucumbers. Cucumbers like plenty of water and a damp atmosphere, and they need occasional syringing under the foliage to keep down such insect enemies as red spider and thrips. It also benefits the cucumber plants to have frequent spraying of the foliage in bright, warm weather. Cucumbers seem to do best in a temperature of 68 degrees at night, 75 degrees on cloudy days and 85 to 90 degrees on the brightest, warm days, when there is plenty of ventilation on the houses. Tomatoes should have a night temperature between 60 and 65 degrees, on cloudy days 65 to 70 degrees and on bright days 75 to 80 degrees.

So the conditions are decidedly different for the two crops. If you have separate houses you can treat each as suits them best, but if your houses are connected or all in one it would not be entirely satisfactory, as one crop or the other, possibly both, would be living under unfavorable conditions and would probably be so weakened as to be likely to fall a prey to any diseases to which they might be exposed. A high temperature with the ventilators closed is poor treatment; several degrees more heat can be added if there is good ventilation than would be advisable with the vents closed or nearly so.

It is hard to say what are the best varieties of any kind of vegetable, because the different markets favor different varieties. For instance, pink tomatoes are more in demand than red in some markets; in others the pink ones are not wanted, the bright red being preferred. For winter forcing the pink ones are seldom grown, although Livingston's Beauty, an old pink variety, does well and is hard to beat for yield. Of the red varieties, Comet seems to be grown more than any other. It is prolific, but hardly as good for size or shape as some of our other varieties. Livingston's Stone forces well and is large and productive, with fruit that is smooth and of good shape. If a little earlier it would displace Comet quickly.

Langdon's Improved Earliana tomato is good and may soon take first place. It is decidedly better than the old Earliana, which is the most productive and the earliest of all large tomatoes, but entirely too much of the fruit comes rough and misshapen. This improved strain of Earliana is perfectly smooth. It originated with P. & H. Langdon, of Constable, N. Y., and was disseminated last winter.

Of cucumbers there are no end of different forcing strains of the White Spine type. Almost any that are advertised for forcing are all right, but do not use common garden stock. The Boston Forcing strain is most commonly used, but others are just as good. The long English type is to be avoided, on account of not selling well, although it is extra long, easy to grow and prolific. The Davis Perfect, a half-breed or cross, is giving excellent satisfaction with some growers, but others do not like it. This is due not so much to the difference in localities as to the difference in growers. The best way for each grower is to grow mostly one variety, which has proved satisfactory generally, and experiment with only a few plants of those varieties of uncertain value.

CELERY FOR CHRISTMAS.

I want to grow some late celery and wish to know whether it can be grown in a greenhouse that is covered with oiled paper. Which is better for growing celery, benches or solid beds? I am located in southern Tennessee and should like to have the crop ready about Christmas. I have good sized plants.

C. M. W.

I have never had any experience with houses where oiled paper is used instead of glass, although I used to have a good many hotbed sashes, or frames the size of sashes, covered with muslin and then oiled.

I have much doubt about your being able to get a satisfactory crop of celery for Christmas if grown entirely under oiled paper. If you could grow it in the open air from now on for several weeks, and then set up some protection to keep it from injury through freezing weather, you ought

The Market.

The market last week showed great improvement as to quality of stock in roses and carnations, but the retail trade was not as brisk as it might have been, as the weather was somewhat unfavorable. However, there seems to be plenty of funeral work to make up, but aside from this they state there is little doing. The wholesalers clean up fairly well each day, but there is not so much coming in now.

Prices have stiffened up a little on carnations and these are cleaning up daily at $3 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are coming in and move freely, being entirely sold up every day just now. In roses the consignments are heavier than on any other flowers, but the fancy grades sell well.

A heavy cut of cosmos is now arriving, and all have plenty of them. The fancy long stock sells best; at $1 per hundred. Some extra fine lilies and valley are putting in their appearance. These seem to have a big call daily. Smilax sells well; in fact, all greens are enjoying a good demand. The new crop of bronze galax is expected soon, and orders have been placed ahead for these.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

For some reason or other there has not been much doing among the retailers for the last fortnight—just about enough to keep them busy, and that is all. Though the wholesalers until lately have declared themselves well pleased with the way business has kept up, they also changed their tone and said that the last few days of last week were rather quiet.

Asters are now a thing of the past, to the satisfaction of all, for it was no pleasure for grower or dealer to handle them as they were this season, owing to the inferior quality. Gladioli—what there are—show the effects of the cool, moist nights; they also have seen their best days. Carnations, which are of a fair quality, are coming in quite plentifully. There are plenty of roses and enough green goods to fill all orders and then some. Some really good dahlias come in, and are readily disposed of.

The Milwaukee Flower Show.

Quite a bit of doubt has been entertained by many as to whether Milwaukee is to have a flower show this year. While there has been little said or heard about it up to now, the executive committee appointed by President Zweifel, of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, this spring has been working quietly, and it can now be safely said that Milwaukee will have one of the best shows, if not the largest show, in the country. It will again be held in the main Auditorium hall, from November 9 at noon to November 13, inclusive.

If present plans, as submitted by Aug. F. Kellner, the decorator in charge, are accepted, it will be necessary to take over the stage in order to house all exhibits, which promise to be more numerous than last year. This precaution was taken on account of the way the premium list has been changed, namely, by cutting down the quantity of stock required to compete for the same awards as last year in classes for cut mums and roses, and by increasing the premiums on specimen mum plants, thus making the inducements greater for outside growers. Prizes to the amount of $3,000 will be awarded.

Quite a few of the St. Paul and Minneapolis florists and others in that vicinity are looking forward to our show, and, with the Chicago flower show in progress the same week, we expect a good many more visitors than in the past.

The standing entertainment committee of the club, with Gust Rusch as chairman, was instructed at last week's club meeting to work out the social end for the coming show. Preliminary lists are being mailed this week, and anyone interested who fails to get it can secure one by addressing H. V. Hunkel, 462 Milwaukee street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Various Notes.

The McKenney Co. thinks that the cut carnation, judging from present sales, has lost none of its popularity.

James M. Fox & Son report several advance decoration orders.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports the arrival of a carload of azaleas and also some giganteum lilies.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is still expanding, this time at the Humboldt avenue place, where it was necessary to enlarge the potting and packing shed, to gain working room as well as storage space.

Charles Zepnick, at 1180 Chicago avenue, finished housing his double violets the first part of this week. He has had success with late planting and prefers to follow the old method, instead of taking to the culture as practiced in the violet centers.

Taking advantage of the fine weather, Nic Zweifel, Fred Holton and two friends left for a two days' automobile trip last week, in Mr. Zweifel's car. They called at Oconomowoc, Dousman, Sullivan, Palmyra, Whitewater, Darlington and Janesville. Besides having a fine time, they report having run across some really good stock, which was a surprise to them.

Bowling.

In order to promote good fellowship, the entertainment committee of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, in last week's meeting, made known that they would organize a bowling club and that the first game would be played October 7, at Eagles' hall. There were a good many present, and the following officers were elected: President, Gust Rusch; secretary, Roy Currie; treasurer, Wm. Zimmermann.

The club, which is still nameless, will bowl every Tuesday night at Steinke's place, at Eleventh and Prairie streets, from now on. A hearty welcome is extended to any and all florists to join this club. If you have no intentions of bowling, come around anyhow and help make merry. E. O.

Corvallis, Ore.—The new range of the Oregon Agricultural College, costing $7,000, gives the horticulture department an area of 6,700 square feet under glass. These buildings are constructed with a central two-story house, with five houses under glass, three of them 20x90, and two 20x33 feet. Hot water heating apparatus is installed.

main ones and the quality is good. Carnations have been in great demand, with the supply rather short, as some of the growers are just commencing to cut a few, while other growers have had some good cuttings and the quality of both bloom and stem is much improved.

The outlook at present is good for the coming season, with more stock than usual for this market.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens reports trade much improved, as people are using the street cars more, even if the strike is still on. He cut his first mums last week.

William Graff reports trade as excellent for this time of the year, especially in funeral work.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports business good. This firm is cutting some fine carnations, and in good quantity for this date. The stock plants are extra heavy and look promising. They are

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions are slightly improved over last week; yet there is a scarcity of flowers, owing to the recent rains. Asters are on their last legs and soon will be entirely out of the market. Mums of the standard varieties are filling in nicely and bring tip-top prices. Roses are scarce, but of fine quality, and indications are of a full crop soon.

Carnations are coming along nicely, improving in both quality and form. On account of the increasing demand for carnations, more space is devoted to them this season than ever before. Lily of the valley is scarce and the demand exceeds the supply. California grown violets have made their appearance on the streets, but are devoid of fragrance and the better class stores refuse to handle them; local grown stock is still scarce.

Ferns and green goods are in great demand—a source of considerable worry to the florists, as the supply of Sprenger and plumosus is short.

Various Notes.

The funerals of several well known residents last week practically used every flower available in the city.

P. Johnson has opened a small shop at Fifth and Washington streets and reports business satisfactory.

Thomas Hawks, recently a landscape architect at Chicago, has opened offices here and reports a good business.

Sam Roake, Clackamas, Ore., met with a severe accident last week while loading a car of moss. A box fell, striking him across the face, inflicting painful injuries. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business continues to show an upward tendency and, judging from general appearances, we are to have a prosperous fall trade. With the possible exception of outside chrysanthemums, there is no excess of flowers of any kind and good roses and fancy carnations are really scarce. Of short-stemmed stock there is an abundance at low prices, and much of it has to be used where better quality stock is called for. There is good sale for inside mums and the quality throughout is fully up to that of former years. Japanese lilies are now out of season and there is nothing in that line except some Lilium longiflorum, which are in fair demand. Dahlias are commencing to show the lateness of the season and gladioli are past their prime. Other kinds of outside stock, such as cosmos, gaillardias, coreopsis and stocks, have given way to the outside mums.

Violets are not as plentiful as we should like to see them and will not be so until we have some cool weather. They cost the stores 75 cents per dozen bunches. Green stuff is a little more plentiful. Adiantum shows the lateness of the season.

Various Notes.

Much interest is being shown in the coming floral exhibition, to be given under the auspices of the California

A sterling novelty strain of

DELPHINIUMS

We offer to the trade, for fall sowing, seed of our magnificent new strain of Delphinium "Belladonna" in all colors, and here are a few facts concerning:

- IT is true "Belladonna" type, same as the sterile form.
- IT has the same deeply dentate foliage.
- IT has the same wiry stems.
- IT is of perennial duration, increasing in vigor each year.
- IT has the same graceful disposition of flowers on stem.
- IT is never crowded as in the ordinary Elatum types.
- IT averages three to three and a half feet high.
- IT is self-supporting, requiring no staking whatever.
- IT flowers from break of spring to close of fall.
- IT produces ten times as many blooms as ordinary tall sorts.
- IT begins to bloom when but a few months old.
- IT averages two inches or over across individual blossoms.
- IT contains some of the loveliest shades of blue in existence.
- IT embraces true blue, sky blue, sapphire, indigo, etc.
- IT has been thoroughly rogued of all objectionable purples.
- IT produces a magnificent mass of blue when bedded out.
- IT is a gem for cut flowers.
- IT lasts a full week in the cut state.
- IT is something for florists besides roses and carnations.
- IT is, last and not least, a money maker.
- IT simply sells on sight.

We have sold over 25,000 plants to our retail trade in the past year and a half and the best part of the whole matter is that our customers are more than pleased. Try it on yours; it is worth while.

Price, per trade packet, 50c; per half ounce, $2.25; per ounce, $4.00.

Three Grand New Sweet Peas For 1911

WELL WORTHY OF PROMINENCE IN EVERY "UP-TO-DATE" LIST

"Ethel Roosevelt"

It is a true waved variety of the largest and most perfect Spencer type. There is naturally some variation even in Spencers, and ETHEL ROOSEVELT claims the most exclusive Spencer perfection. The ground color is a soft, pleasing primrose, or straw color, overlaid with dainty flakes and splashes of blush (rim-on). The crimson is not at all pronounced and simply gives some warmth and golden tinting to the yellowish groundwork. It bunches splendidly and will easily lead in this type of coloring for a long time.

We were unable to plant a large acreage owing to the fact that we had only a little seed to sow for 1910 crop, and, like all good Spencers, it flowered freely but refused to seed.—Description of the originators,—MESSRS. C. C. MORSE & CO.

In sealed packets containing 10 seeds each: Per pkt. 15c; $1.00 per doz. pkts.; $7.00 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 pkts. or more, $6.25 per 100 pkts.

In sealed packets containing 20 seeds each: Per pkt. 25c; $2.00 per doz. pkts.; $13.75 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 pkts. or more, $12.50 per 100 pkts.

"Florence Nightingale"

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE is by far the largest and best Lavender Spencer yet introduced! This statement is warranted by comparative trials at Fordhook and the magnificent field crop at Flordale. Our high opinion of FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE has been confirmed also by the two leading expert English specialists, to whom the originators, MESSRS. ALEX. DICKSON & SONS, of Belfast, had sent a few seeds for advance trial—and whose reports are published by permission in our SPECIAL NOVELTY CIRCULAR.

The flowers are truly magnificent and of immense size. The standard is unusually large and bold, pronouncedly waved, yet standing erect and broad,—frequently measuring two inches across. The color is most charmingly soft and yet rich lavender, which is enlivened by a very faint sheen of rose-pink. The large, well-spread wings are of the same coloring, frilled and well waved. It is practically a self color and bunches beautifully,—attracting universal admiration. The plant is extremely robust in growth, flowering most profusely. The stout stems attain twelve to sixteen inches in length and a large proportion bear four well placed flowers, as shown in the illustrations from photographs. FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE comes entirely true from seed,—both as to color and the highest ideal Spencer type.

In sealed packets of same sizes and at same prices as "Ethel Roosevelt."

"Rose du Barri" This new Grandiflora affords an entirely new shade in Sweet Peas. The name itself suggests the color, which is a lovely combination of deep, rich carmine-rose and orange. While the flower is not of Spencer form or size, yet it is slightly waved and for boutonnières or table decoration it is "really a gem." Its brilliant beauty must appeal to every lover of esthetic shades.

The plants, of strong, vigorous growth, are wonderfully profuse in bloom,—and every flower is alike! The crops growing at our Fordhook Farms have attracted great attention the past two seasons. One of the leading experts of England,—MR. A. IRELAND, Marks Tey, Essex,—who had a few seeds for advance trial this year, writes: "It is unique and distinct, a charming flower of deep rose color, overlaid with a lovely sheen of terra cotta. Foliage and haulm very dark green. One of the best decorative peas ever introduced. For artificial light it is unsurpassed."

In sealed packets containing twenty seeds each: Per pkt. 15c; $1.00 per doz. pkts.; $7.00 per 100 pkts.; in lots of 500 pkts. or more, $6.25 per 100 pkts.

Chili and Mammoth Whale are very short.

"Gourds, with the exception of the Nest Egg, are very short, or nearly total failures.

"The above will apply more particularly to our crops, but I understand other growers are receiving poor reports from a number of their crops. I find the crops we have grown under irrigation this season will give us the best results, and fortunately we had a fair acreage of nearly all varieties of cucumber and the varieties of muskmelon we expect to fill in full under irrigation, otherwise would have been unable to make good deliveries on these varieties."

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending October 1 were as follows:

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $50,785.

EVERYTHING SHORT.

Jerome B. Rice, Cambridge, N. Y., says that, as far as his observations go, seed crops of all kinds are in short supply. "Pea seed is the shortest crop on record," he says, "not only in this country, but in Europe as well. Beans will make a fair average crop; sweet corn the same; vine seeds of all kinds are on the short side, and almost all other kinds of garden seeds are also short."

MICHIGAN VINE SEED CROPS.

"We have been unusually favored by freedom from frost so far this season," say S. M. Isbell & Co., of Jackson, Mich. "This is allowing a good many of the vine crops to mature a great deal more fruit than we could have hoped for if frost had come as early as usual. Under these conditions we are expecting to have fairly good crops of everything excepting tomato. This crop has been under hard luck all the season. In the spring, at time for setting out plants, we had cold, unfavorable weather, and, in addition to this handicap, such condition was favorable for damage by cutworms. This sort of weather was followed by extreme drought during the summer, and taking all things together, we think we have never seen a more unfavorable season for tomatoes."

ASTER A GOOD CROP.

It is a novelty to meet a grower who hasn't a kick coming, but Charles H. Vick, president of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, is pleased with the prospect for the aster seed crop. "It is very promising at present," he says, "and we will undoubtedly have a full crop of very choice seed. The past season has been very favorable. There is in the neighborhood of 100 acres of asters planted in western New York, in the vicinity of Rochester, annually for seed."

TOO WET FOR BEANS.

Referring to his comment on the then not unfavorable outlook for beans, published in last week's issue of The Review, Arthur B. Clark, of Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., wrote October 7:

"I presume I ought to supplement the crop report recently sent you, as it now appears that recent frequent rains have rendered it impossible to properly cure the beans. This wet period came on right in the middle of the bean harvest and is causing quite a loss and will result in injuring the quality of the

WITH HOLLAND BULB GROWERS.

With the Holland bulb growers, business has increased quite largely in the last year or two and a considerably greater number of acres are being planted for 1911 crops. The bulk of the tulips are planted in October, so the bulb farms still have enough for all hands to do. During the packing and shipping season work began at 6 a. m. and continued till 9 p. m., but the two evening hours, for which extra had to be paid, have now been dropped from the day. To American readers a day of thirteen hours from start to finish may seem plenty at any time, for that is about as much as any force of seedsmen's assistants is called on to do even in the rush of March. Many hyacinths were planted in September and these bulbs are, by the time these notes appear, all in the ground. Hyacinths have sold unexpectedly well this season and the trade varieties, as well as some of the finer named sorts, were well cleaned up by the middle of September.

Some of the better hyacinths advanced in price during the season, and so did the finer tulips. While practically everything sold well this year, the late tulips, the Darwins and Cottage, have been in better request than before and have made rather good prices. Narcissi are planted for the new crops, also crocus, snowdrops, etc. The growers are looking for a comfortable time for the travelers when they go out this winter, as there is confidence in the Gladioli, cannas, dahlias, etc., have made a good crop. Spiraea will be later this season, as the growers are disposed to give the stock time to mature in the hope that results for customers will be more satisfactory than recently.

TOMATO SEED.

Tomato seed crops at Columbus, O., are three weeks late, but Robert Livingston, of the Livingston Seed Co., says the fine weather throughout September and thus far in October is giving them a lot of fine seed. "We have secured quite a good percentage of the late planted crops, but there are yet a good many green tomatoes on the vines, and at this season of the year they are slow to ripen. No frost has injured even the tops of the vines up to this time (October 10). Muskmelons and cucumbers, especially on our Kirkersville muck farms, have done well; sweet corn and beans fairly well."

BOSTON SEED TRADE NOTES.

A. F. Barney and J. M. Gleason, the former for thirty years and the latter twenty-four years joint managers of the Schlegel & Fottler Co., have joined the firm of T. J. Grey Co., 32 South Market street. The members of the firm will now be T. J. Grey, P. M. Miller, J. P. A. Guérineau, A. F. Barney and J. M. Gleason, which makes a strong combination.

At the two stores of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. the bulb sales are now quite brisk, recent frosts having stimulated purchases for outdoor planting. The firm has had 25,000 dahlias in flower at the Marblehead farm, which were a fine sight.

Farquhar & Co. report a heavy bulb trade and have already cabled for several additional shipments from Holland.

HYACINTHS, TULIPS NARCISSI

Best Quality For Forcing and Outdoor Growing

Get your supply now while our stock is complete. Our orders this year average 25% larger than a year ago. This shows our customers are well pleased with Vick Quality Bulbs. In selecting our stock we pay more attention to quality than price. Our grower writes concerning our stock: "We are giving you bulbs of our own growing exclusively, and you may confidently expect large, strong flowers of all varieties. The bulbs ripened in excellent condition, and may be forced much earlier than usual." We prefer to advertise the best, not the cheapest.

The Quality Will be Remembered When the Price Has Been Forgotten.

If you want the best quality, our prices are low.

A good mechanic never buys cheap tools. Neither does a successful lily bulb grower. If you have a good reputation as a grower you may stand one crop failure, but you can't stand two in succession and about half the failures are due to poor bulbs—the other half in the handling.

You will find in every case of Horseshoe Brand Bulbs a certificate giving a record of the contents; the district the bulbs come from and the packer, indicating the fields. Those who get them should keep them until after their bulbs bloom. These bulbs are from the best fields in Japan; they are well cured, properly packed, and raised from our own seed bulbs. They may cost more than other brands but not more than they are worth. If you don't believe what we say try a case of our Superior Assortment, size 7/9-inch bulbs of Giganteum and keep a record of the blooms.

You buy bulbs to produce blooms—therefore, the only way you can tell their merit is to grow them.

All varieties and sizes on hand ready for immediate delivery.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

Get trade— Get all the trade you can— And then some— But get the money.

In spite of anything, delinquents will creep into your ledger. Then becomes the most tactful necessity in your business—collecting.

At this point the S. & A. Service takes up your troubles—

We maintain one big Department for the special handling of delinquents for Florists and Nurserymen

Relieves you of every thought and worry—

Gives you service that would take you years and cost you thousands to perfect—

Makes collections—and is paid out of the collected proceeds—

The S. & A. 1% Draft relieves more than half the necessity for collection by attorney (10%).

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

It is estimated that Elberta is grown in at least three times the quantity of any other peach.

WHAT is and what isn't an evergreen seedling still remains to be determined in so far as the custom-houses are concerned.

THE National Nut Growers' Association will hold its annual convention at Monticello, Fla., November 1 to 3. Many southern nurserymen will attend.

THIS is the open season for shipments of nursery stock to Canada. The dominion inspectors and fumigation superintendents are said to be busy.

H. A. BARROWS, secretary and treasurer of the Jefferson Nursery Co., Monticello, Fla., also is secretary and general manager of the Jefferson County Sumatra Tobacco Co.

THE Gilbertson Nursery Co., of Mason City, Ia., has engaged A. J. Lindert as office manager. Mr. Lindert has had a life experience in the nursery business and in recent years has been with the Montana Nursery Co., at Billings, Mont.

THE Japanese Nursery & Construction Co., of Yonkers, N. Y., has been incorporated, for the purpose of importing and selling Japanese plants, shrubs and trees, laying out Japanese gardens, building Japanese tea houses, etc. The capital stock is $25,000. The incorporators are K. Moriya, H. B. Odell and G. W. Dobbs, all of Yonkers.

O. F. BRAND, of the nursery firm of O. F. Brand & Son, at Faribault, Minn., has sold his interest in the business to his son, A. H. Brand, and S. G. Kenney, of Owatonna. The elder Mr. Brand had been connected with the trade for forty-five years. He and Mrs. Brand will spend the winter in California, returning in the spring to Faribault, which will still be their home.

GULF COAST NURSEYMEN.

The Gulf Coast Nurserymen's Association met October 4 at Houston, Tex., with R. H. Bushway presiding and fifteen members present. Plans for systematizing work for members of the association and formulating of plans for the business interests of the members were considered.

The members declared themselves strictly against the taxing of growing nursery stock—that is, the trees in the field. They declared it unjust to tax the crops of nurserymen and have the crops of other soil tillers go untaxed. The association agreed to cooperate with the State Nurserymen's Association in testing a case of the taxation of nursery stock.

The matter of import duties was referred to a legislative committee.

The importance of advertising was discussed and a committee appointed to find a medium which would be suitable to the needs of the members of the association. One member declared that "the people who will set out trees next season are in the north tonight, and we have no way of reaching them."

A uniform labor rate was adopted by the members for budding, but the rate was not given out.

The nurserymen seemed cheerful as to the outlook for the year. Although it is early in the season, stock has sold close. Some have sold out, and will probably have to buy to fill orders.

HARDY PERENNIALS

All the plants named below will be supplied in heavy field clumps. We call especial attention to the hardy chrysanthemums and every florist should have a collection of the choice pompon and large-flowering varieties here offered. The strong field roots will be found particularly desirable for winter propagation.

The Great New Forcing Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora Alba or—

“HILLS OF SNOW”

Illustration of a two-year-old field-grown, cut back plant, forced, of Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora Alba. The true forcing variety.

back plants, potted in heavy soil without a fertilizer. Where stimulants were used, the tendency was towards a weak neck that would not hold the mammoth bloom upright. It is imperative, to get the best results, that the plants should be subjected to hard freezing before bringing into the heat.

This shrub forces easily both for Easter and Decoration day. This new Hydrangea is without question the grandest shrub or plant of any kind for forcing that is in existence today. This statement will admit of no controversy.

To show how easily it can be brought into flower, a neighbor florist, just starting in the business, without any previous knowledge on forcing plants, having never forced a single plant of any kind, potted 500 field plants the 20th of October, plunging them in a cold frame. Nine weeks before Easter part of them were brought in and kept at a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees; during the day the temperature would run from 50 to 60 degrees. They were in full flower for Easter.

The balance of the plants were brought in the 20th of March and kept about the same temperature. The first bloom perfected the 12th of May, and the lot was in full bloom for Decoration day and—What a sight! Enough to warm the cockles in the heart of any florist. Everyone who saw them could but wonder.

The plants on which the canes were allowed to remain, when brought in, threw out branches a foot to 15 inches in length with a bloom on every tip. Those that were cut back to within four inches of the pot, the eyes broke near the base of the plant, throwing up from five to eight canes three feet high, with blooms of the purest snow white that were a foot in diameter. The lasting qualities of its flowers are one of its great money making points, as the blooms last in perfect condition from two to three weeks.

The best flowers were produced from cut

IMPORTANT

As is well known, there are two distinct varieties of this new Hydrangea, one of which cannot be coddled or coaxed into producing a single flower under glass. The stock we offer is the true forcing variety. We have a fine stock of 50,000 one, two and three-year-old field-grown plants, ready to pot up for forcing. These will move quickly. Order to-day.

One-year, field-grown plants, 12 to 18 inches, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000.

One-year, field-grown, 18 to 24 inches, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1,000.

Two-year, field-grown, 18 to 24 inches, 2 to 3 canes, $2.00 per doz.; $14.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1,000.

Two-year, field-grown, select, 3 to 5 canes, $3.00 per doz.; $20.00 per 100; $175.00 per 1,000.

Three-year, field-grown, 24 to 30 inches, 5 to 8 canes, $4.00 per doz.; $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1,000.

Three-year, field-grown, select, 10 to 12 canes, $6.00 per doz.; $40.00 per 100.

WICHITA, KAN.

The Market.

The autumn trade is beginning to open up in a most satisfactory manner. The wedding demand so far has hardly been up to expectations, but several events are billed for the following two months. Transient demand is increasing steadily. Those who planted carnation plants earlier than usual are much pleased with the way the plants have acted. Some presentable blooms are showing up from these. Local chrysanthemums are of good quality, but meager in quantity as yet. Indications are for excellent blooms soon. Local roses are also beginning to show up. Shipped stock is mostly satisfactory.

Various Notes.

The florists have their houses reglazed and are heaving sighs of relief to have such a job off their hands.

F. Kuechenmeister has discarded his gasoline engine and installed an electric motor for his water system.

Walter Davidson has returned to his old position with W. H. Culp & Co.

D. S. Hersey has retired. The material in the houses has been sold to a market gardener, who will move it at once.

Harrie S. Mueller is attending the agricultural college at Urbana, Ill.

Frank Mueller is nursing a badly damaged hand.

The stores are showing some early arrivals of excellent jardinières, ribbons and novelties.

Two or three mornings have shown slight frosty tendencies, causing the growers to hustle in the leftovers. The cool nights have also been responsible for a boiler overhauling, and the doctoring of those pipes that acted up last winter.

Bulb planting is now in order, with stock arriving every day. The bulbs this year are so far mainly good in quality, but there have been a few strange mixes in consignments, which, however, are getting straightened out without any serious inconvenience.

R. L. C.

Seattle, Wash.—As reported in The Review of August 11, the two stores owned by Samuel Graff, and each known as Graff's Flower Shop, passed about that time into the hands of a receiver. A little later, it appears, the branch of the business at 1515 Pike place was purchased by L. Friedlander & Co. Now it is announced that the other Graff store, located at First avenue and Madison street, has become the property of E. Fortlouis. The management of the new firm will be in the hands of A. Fortlouis. The designing and decorative features of the concern will be under the personal direction of R. W. Schenk, who has gained a wide reputation for his work in eastern cities.

Stock is arriving in fine condition. Mums have brought extra good prices thus far, but are becoming plentiful now, and of course will get cheaper as the cut increases. So far the fall business has been good, as there have been quite a number of fashionable weddings and receptions.

Florists' Association Meets.

The regular monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at the state house Tuesday, October 4, with a full attendance. Much important business was transacted, mostly pertaining to the flower show, which all signs indicate will be successful. The following committees were appointed:

Exhibition—John Rieman, E. Rieman, John Heidenreich, F. H. Lemon, of Richmond.
Reception—E. A. Nelson, Charles Knopf, F. Hukreide, A. Marshall.
Entertainment—F. S. Smith, F. B. Alley, W. W. Coles, J. A. E. Haugh, George B. Wiegand, George Gause.
Flower booth—Charles Pahud, William Roepke, C. Sonnenschmidt, H. D. Schilling, Frank Hasselman.

Herman Junge is chairman of the press committee. George B. Wiegand will have charge of the general decorations of Tomlinson hall, and John Rieman was appointed superintendent of the show.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wiegand have returned from a week's stay at French Lick.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, was a visitor last week. Mr. Hill states that the week of the flower show is going to be a busy one with his firm, as they expect to make exhibits at five different shows the same week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. and A. Wiegand & Sons report orders for decorations booked almost up to Christmas.

E. Rieman has been doing service on the jury for the last two weeks.

Fred Dorner, J. S. Stuart and Earl Mann were in the city last week attending the meeting of the flower show committee.

John Bargman, with Bertermann Bros., is to leave this week to take a position in Chicago.

A. F. J. Baur and family were in Richmond this week taking in the fall festival.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, has been sending in some good mums.

E. J. Fancourt, with the S. S. Pen-nock-Meehan Co., was a caller this week.

A. Wiegand & Sons and the Smith & Young Co. are cutting cattleyas.

Heller Bros., of New Castle, furnished 5,000 Beauties for a store opening here this week.

E. A. Nelson has moved his camp in this week and is right on the job all the time. H. L. W.

Pottstown, Pa.—Lloyd C. Keim is making extensive improvements to his greenhouses.

The Market.

Business is good and stock is remarkably scarce; so scarce, in fact, that October 10 the local wholesale houses could not take care of all their orders.

The crop of roses is rapidly shortening. Mums are coming in, but only in limited quantities. Carnation plants are hardly moving in the houses, and the flowers are so scarce that few are seen in the stores, thereby causing people to seem to want them specially.

Various Notes.

Albert Stahelin, of Redford, will soon move into the handsome residence erected for him and his bride-to-be.

Albert Iveson, gardener at Grosse Pointe Farms, found a pure white flower in a large bed of salvias. The plant bearing these white blooms is in a perfectly healthy condition, and Mr. Iveson prizes his find.

Kenneth Anderson, of the company bearing his name, is seriously ill.

November 1 Mrs. Patterson, who has been managing the store at 275 Woodward avenue for her son, Murray G. Patterson, will be relieved from duty. Heretofore Murray Patterson has not been actively engaged in business, but he will now devote his entire time to the store.

Many vases of Beauties were in evidence at the opening of D. J. Healy's new store. One immense vase contained over 100 Beauties; these were supplied by Taepke. The balance were mostly from Sullivan.

Charles V. Charvat, father of Louis Charvat, died October 9, aged 69 years. Mr. Charvat conducted a small store and greenhouse at 246 Rowena street for many years.

Thos. Browne, of Greenfield, has completed another fine addition to his range of glass, in the form of a house 40x200. It will be devoted to carnations, which are now being planted. Mr. Browne's mums are promising.

Besides making a good club president, George Browne can also grow good carnations. His stock this year is excellent.

Business cares will be cast aside Monday evening, October 17, and the club night devoted to a card party and smoker.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?

WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known ever-lasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

LOOK! LOOK!! 10,000

and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Azaleas, well shaped plants. Deutsche Perle, Niobe, Simon Mardner, Mme. Van der Cruysen, De Schryveriana, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been quite good for the last few days, but in the first part of last week it was dull, owing to heavy rains during the first three days. The rainfall for sixty hours, ending Wednesday noon, was 10.88 inches, almost as much as we ever had in any one month since the weather bureau was established. Since then the nights have been cool, with fine days, and trade is improving. Roses and carnations have more substance and the stems are longer. Mums are coming in slowly and are fairly good.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. has secured a 2-year lease on the store building at 522 Main street and will move into the new quarters January 1. The store now occupied by the firm will be torn down and a new building erected. This firm is cutting large quantities of roses and carnations. The Beauties and the White Perfection carnations are extra good. Geo. Blackman says business is excellent.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are cutting quite heavily of roses, carnations and mums. The mums were grown outdoors in pots and beds and are good, though the heavy rains were rather hard on them. This firm has secured the services of a lady bookkeeper. Their growing business has made more help necessary.

Ben Kramer reports business as fair.

Nellie Goodge says trade is not extra good at present.

J. C. Elsperrmann has about finished another house.

Henry Seymour is cutting a large number of excellent carnations.

E. L. F.

Lynn, Mass.—The largest exhibit staged at the recent exhibition of the Houghton Horticultural Society by any professional grower was that of Wilbur D. Moon, who showed 200 varieties of dahlias. Edward F. Dwyer & Son made a large exhibit of hardy perennials. The big night of the show was the one on which Winfrid Wheeler, of Concord, delivered an illustrated lecture.

De Pere, Wis.—A. Van Gemert has just completed a range of glass, covering a space 40x140 feet, at Grant and Fourth streets, which is a much more suitable and convenient location than the one he formerly occupied. The new houses are of modern construction, with iron framework and brick walls. Mr. Van Gemert's business has been increasing steadily.

COAL in the sheds is an insurance against any worry when the cold weather comes.

WATER BOILS OVER.

In reading the article from W. S. in The Review of October 6, 1910, in regard to water boiling over, I feel tempted to write you concerning the cause and remedy. To my mind the cause lies in the fact that there is an air pocket at the highest point in the heating pipes. This stops the circulation, and the water in the boiler, instead of circulating, expands into the tank, and as the fire gets hotter it creates a steam pressure. It is all forced out, leaving the plates exposed, and there is positive danger of serious injury.

The remedy lies in tapping this high point and putting in an air-cock. This should be opened occasionally. If on opening water runs out, the pipes are full and circulation will be positive.

I had this trouble myself, which resulted in a large crack in the crown sheet of my boiler—a cast-iron one.

I want to tell your readers how I fixed this break, making it as good as before. Letting the boiler cool, I rubbed the fissure full of Smooth-On Joints, which is an iron cement, manufactured by the Smooth-On Mfg. Co., Jersey City, N. J. In a couple of days I fired up again and the boiler never gave me any more trouble. J. L. J.

PIPING FOR CUTTING BENCH.

Will you please tell me whether the hot water pipes under a cutting bench would give good results if I put the bottom of the bench under the pipes and put the sand right on the pipes? I do not get enough heat the other way. I have ninety feet of 1-inch pipe in a bench 3x10 feet. Is that enough? I use a gas burner to heat it with, but the sand does not seem to be warm at all.

G. H. P.

If the heating pipes were passed through the sand in the cutting bench, more bottom heat would thus be provided than when the pipes are located underneath. It would, of course, be necessary to have the sand sufficiently deep so that the pipes would not come within four or five inches of the surface, and greater care should be taken that the sand does not dry out. Whether the proposed change would give the results desired cannot be told from the data given, as nothing is said regarding the area of exposed glass or the actual amount of heating pipe in the house. A good deal will also depend upon the kind of plants to be propagated. As a rule, it is not advisable to use pipe as small as 1-inch for hot water heating, and it is possible that the trouble is due to a poor circulation resulting from the small size of the pipe.

The heating plans for a propagating house should be such as will provide about 10 degrees of bottom heat, or, in other words, the temperature of the sand in the cutting bed should be 10 degrees warmer than that of the room itself. To secure this, find out how much piping will be required to maintain the desired temperature in the house, and then put in from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent additional piping under the cutting beds, to provide the necessary bottom heat. If the arrangement is such as to give a good circulation the ninety feet of 1-inch pipe should give a temperature of 60 degrees, with an additional 10 degrees of bottom heat, in a house which has about sixty-five square feet of glass.

CRUDE OIL FOR FUEL.

We should like to know whether crude oil can be used satisfactorily in a steam boiler to keep a steam pressure of about thirty pounds. We can get crude oil for $2 to $2.50 per barrel and coal for $2.50 to $3.50 per ton. Would there be enough odor to harm the plants any with our boiler shed between the

HOW? Because it is an accurate, fully tested thermometer, showing the correct temperature at all times, and combines a device which will ring a bell at your bedside when the greenhouse gets either too hot or too cold. Just the protection you have wanted all these years.

We guarantee that results will be obtained at all times. This device has been subjected to the severest tests in our laboratory for over two years, and at the same time has given entire satisfaction, under all conditions, to many users in the trade.

All you have to do is to set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures you want and the thermometer will do the rest. It will ring a good, loud bell when either point is reached, and saves all worry over trouble from sudden temperature changes.

houses? We should like to know where we could get the best burners and how to install them. Is there any florist that has used crude oil for fuel?

F. B.

Crude oil will be found a satisfactory fuel for greenhouse heating, and although at the prices named the oil will be the more expensive fuel, when the cost of firing is considered it may be cheaper in the long run. If the apparatus is properly installed and handled, there will be no injurious effects from using crude oil. Burners for the use of oil can be secured from dealers in Chicago and in all of the large cities in the oil belt.

PIPING FOR A LEAN-TO.

Please give us some instructions about the piping of a small lean-to greenhouse, in connection with a heater in the dining-room. We want a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. The greenhouse is 11x36 and runs east and west. It is four feet high at the low side and eight feet six inches to the ridge. It is sheeted with 1-inch boards and stripped on the inside. At the north end is the coal shed. The greenhouse is thus enclosed on three sides. Our dining-room, at the south, is 11x15, and is almost in a line with the greenhouse, with only a shed between.

We have a small hot water boiler, the No. 62 Ideal, with a grate 24x36, outside measurement. Would you advise us to put this boiler in the cellar and let the smokestack run into the house chimney? The cellar is seven feet deep and is under the kitchen, just east of the dining-room. The greenhouse has one foot of fall from the coal shed to the cellar. Would it be better to put the boiler in the coal shed, and could we then heat the dining-room successfully? We are located in northern Kentucky. What size of pipes would be suitable, and how many should be run through the greenhouse? What size of expansion tank will be needed? If we cannot put the boiler in the cellar, how deep should it be placed in the ground in order to get good circulation?

E. B. K. & S.

If there is no glass in the east wall, as seems to be the case, it will be possible to heat a lean-to of the size described by running one 2-inch flow pipe upon the back wall, two feet below the ridge, and then carrying three 2-inch returns around the other three sides of the house.

A radiator with sixty square feet of radiating surface would probably answer for the dining-room, unless the amount of exposed wall and glass is unusually large. The heater is probably amply large to heat the dining-room as well as the greenhouse, and the simplest way would be to place it in the cellar under the kitchen, especially as this is lower than the cellar under the coal shed. An expansion tank holding five gallons of water would answer. If possible, it will be advisable to place the boiler deep enough so that the top will be lower than the returns.

GALVANIZED HEATING PIPES.

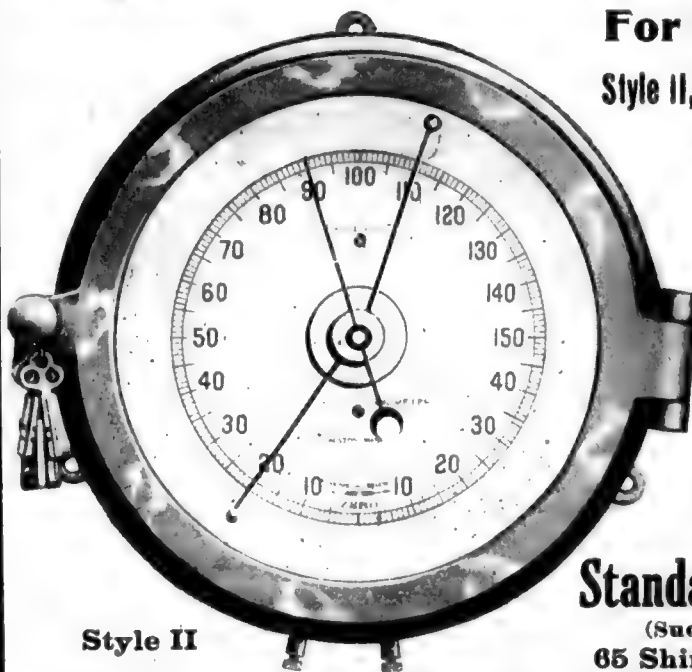

Will you kindly tell us whether it would be advisable to use galvanized iron pipe, instead of the plain iron pipe, in heating with hot water? We are located so near the coast of the Gulf of Mexico that we are troubled with salt water, which rusts out the pipes.
B. F. C.

Under the conditions mentioned the use of galvanized heating pipes would certainly be advisable. They are not quite so effective as the common black pipe, from the fact that they have a comparatively smooth surface, from which less heat will be radiated than from the rougher surface of the black pipe. In actual practice, however, the

GREENHOUSE HEATING

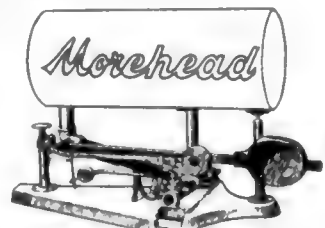

Is a perplexing question to all florists EXCEPT those using

MOREHEAD STEAM TRAPS

- ☐ The installation of a Morehead Return Steam Trap in a Greenhouse is absolute evidence of progressiveness on the part of the florist.
- ☐ It is further evidence of good management, for the "Morehead" is an investment in both satisfaction and economy.
- ☐ The majority of florists are using Morehead Traps. If you are one of the exceptions, it will be to your interest to write us—we will make you a liberal trial offer proposition.
- ☐ By way of getting acquainted, just send your name and address and ask for "Trap Book."

difference is so slight that an extra allowance of from five to ten per cent is all that is required when galvanized iron pipe is used.

CAPACITY OF BOILER.

I have three greenhouses, each 25x75, seven feet high at the sides and sixteen feet to the ridge, which I wish to heat with steam. I have a marine boiler, 2½x10 feet, with a firebox and forty flues. Will it be of sufficient heating capacity for this plant, in this Michigan climate? C. W. A.

The question does not state how much glass, if any, there is in the side walls; nor does it give the temperature desired. However, it may be said that if there is no more than four feet of glass in the side walls of the houses and a temperature of 60 degrees will answer, a boiler with a rating of twenty horse-power should heat the houses. The size of the flues is not given, but if they are as large as 2-inch, the boiler should be amply large for the present plant.

DIAMETER OF RISER.

We wish to know whether a 2-inch riser from the boiler would be large enough to feed the following system: We have three connecting houses, covering in all a space of 50x60 feet. The riser is to run from the boiler to the highest point and divide into three 2-inch flows, dropping from the boiler to the end of the houses, a length of fifty feet, and then returning in each house in five 2-inch pipes. Our temperature seldom drops to 20 degrees above zero here in southern Louisiana, and perhaps we have too many returns for the space. A. F. C.

Whether the number of return pipes is excessive cannot be determined without knowing what temperature is desired in the house, and the size of the riser will depend largely upon the number of returns.

The best results in a house sixty feet long, and in which there are fifteen 2-inch returns, cannot be secured with anything less than a 3-inch riser, although two 2½-inch or three 2-inch could be used instead. If a riser of ample size is furnished and the temperature desired is not greater than 60 degrees, it would be possible to heat the houses using twelve 2-inch returns in addition to three 2-inch flow pipes, while, with a single 2-inch pipe as the riser, the flow at best would be slow and sluggish in the returns and little heat would be furnished.

What is the Most Vital Point in Grate Construction?

Grate makers and users agree that the most important point is to keep the air spaces open as long as possible under all conditions.

We guarantee to keep the air spaces of the Martin Anti-Friction Rocking Grate open longer under any conditions than can be done by any other grate in existence.

The hottest fire you can build will not warp a "Martin," and it can be installed without disturbing the brick work.

We refer to Peter Reinberg, Emil Buettner, Bassett & Washburn, Wietor Bros., Adam Zender, Sinner Bros., Albert Dickinson Co., and many others.

Flower Show.

The flower show held last week in the K. of P. temple, in conjunction with the fall festival, was a decided success, in spite of the bad weather. There were some fine exhibits and the awarding of prizes was quite satisfactory, though the contests were close, especially in the table decorations.

The judges were Walter W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind., and Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis. The prize winners were as follows:

George R. Gause—First for cross, first for magnolia wreath, first for wreath, second for table decorations, second for twenty-five light pink carnations. The cross received special comment.

Charles Knopf Floral Co.—First for fifty white carnations and first for fifty dark pink carnations, second for fifty scarlet carnations, second for fifty light pink carnations, second for twenty-five white carnations, second for twenty-five scarlet carnations, second for twenty-five dark pink carnations, first for twenty-five white roses, first for twenty-five pink roses.

Fred Lemon—First for fifty scarlet carnations, first for fifty light pink, first for twenty-five white, first for twenty-five light scarlet, first for twenty-five light pink, first for twenty-five dark pink, first for twenty-five red roses, first for twenty-five pink, second for twenty-five white carnations, second for fifty white, first for table decorations, second for cross, second for wreath and second for magnolia wreath.

The amateur exhibition was good, but not up to expectations, as all the entries did not show, owing to the bad weather.

Blissfield, Mich.—B. E. Niles is adding another greenhouse, 10x40. He finds his trade increasing every year.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The cut flower trade has shown considerable improvement of late. With the exception of dahlias and tritomas, outside flowers are about done for.

Carnations are coming in quite freely, but not enough to supply the demand. Roses are plentiful. Beauties are coming in daily, and the call for them is steady. Violets have put in an appearance and are quite good for a starter. A few mums are to be had, and the quality is good for early varieties.

Various Notes.

The J. M. Gasser Co. has just completed its new range at Rocky River. It consists of nine houses 27x200, and two houses 27x150, taking the place of fifteen old houses, of which only the glass could be used. The material used was of Moninger construction on 9-foot walls, with iron posts set in concrete. The Evans Challenge ventilator is used throughout. Carnations, mums, orchids, etc., are grown in the new houses. Frank A. Friedley, the foreman, under whose supervision the building was done, deserves credit for the superb construction of the entire plant.

Mrs. Lincoln Brown, of Lake avenue, had the decorations for the Steinbrenner wedding, October 7, at the home of the bride's father, on Bellflower avenue. The entire house was a bower of plants, flowers and wild smilax. About 400 friends of the family attended the ceremony.

G. P. Braund & Co., of Mars Hill, are sending in a good cut of October Frost mums.

A party of local florists made a trip to the establishment of the Lamborn Floral Co., at Alliance, last week. All report a most enjoyable day's outing.

W. F. Kasting, of Buffalo, was recently visiting friends about town. B.

91-93 CHAMBERS ST. NEW YORK

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet.
An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking. "Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

So far as this market is concerned, the aster season is over for 1910. It would be a difficult matter to estimate how many aster blooms have been used by Rochester florists, and the number shipped to other points would be still a greater problem to solve. The season began July 4, with a few blooms of Express. In the height of the season probably 50,000 blooms a day were handled on this wholesale market. Inquiries among various dealers lead one to believe that a million blooms or more have passed through the Flower City's markets during the last three months.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to come, reminding one that the cool days of autumn are here. Whites predominate at present, but a little later the yellows will have the place of honor, particularly among the students of the University of Rochester, orange being the color of that institution.

Various Notes.

Preparations are well under way for the second annual flower show, to be held by the Rochester Florists' Association, November 1 to 5. The general committee has appointed all necessary sub-committees and these are now busy perfecting the detailed plans. The list includes the prominent men in the trade, as well as influential citizens who are especially interested in floriculture. The man who carried the burden last year is again in charge, and Rochester florists are to be congratulated that so competent a man as Charles H. Vick is willing to give his time to making these exhibitions a success.

E. C. Armbrust, for some time past connected with J. B. Keller's Sons, was recently married to Miss Florence A. Moore, of New Britain, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Armbrust will make their home at 21 Savannah street. E. F. R.

144 Sunlight Sash in the yard of M. E. Hiett, Florist, Clarksville, Tenn. Think of the money saved by the elimination of all mats and boards in this yard—think of the saving in labor for covering and uncovering the beds.

Pay for themselves in a single season

Sunlight Double Glass Sash will more than pay for themselves in the better, earlier crops that will bring the big prices on the early market—and in time and labor saved in caring for the beds.

You never have to cover Sunlight Sash

You can throw away expensive, cumbersome boards and mats. You can save all the time you now take to cover and uncover the beds—because Sunlight Double Glass Sash have

Two layers of glass instead of one

Between the two layers of glass is a $\frac{5}{8}$ inch layer of dry, still air. This transparent blanket is a perfect non-conductor, keeping in the heat—keeping out the cold—permitting the plants to get all the light all the time.

Every grower will appreciate the value of this at once. Plants that mature under glass will be ready under Sunlight Sash for the market weeks ahead of those grown under single glass sash—and plants that are forwarded will be bigger and sturdier when the time for transplanting arrives, because the plants get the light from sun-up to sun-down—which means faster and stockier growth. Think of the dollars and cents value of having a perfect crop on the market early—when prices are still high.

The glass in Sunlight Double Glass Sash is held in place without putty. Cannot work loose—easily replaced.

SUNLIGHT DOUBLE GLASS SASH CO.

Louisville, Ky.

One user says: "Mine will pay for themselves the first year"

"The hundred sash I bought from you have given the greatest possible satisfaction.

"We got to 4 degrees above zero and I found my flowers untouched. Moreover, I am daily making 25% more than others who have greenhouses. I have just cut 1000 flowers, although the weather is very wintry. My opinion is that your sash will advertise themselves and you will never be able to make them fast enough. Mine will pay for themselves the first year, and I would not have a single sash for a gift."

O. W. D'Alcorn, Congress Heights, Dist. of Columbia.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

THE LONG-SUFFERING RETAILER.

Oh, yes, he has some pleasures, but so few and far between, that, the dark clouds hanging over him, the sunshine can't be seen. Lots of stock a-getting rotten, flowers filling every space; not an order, not a funeral—what ails the human race? Hang the growers! How we loathe them when they bring the flowers in! Oh, drat it!—and we dump them in the scavenger's old bin.

All at once the flowers vanish! Orders come to beat the band, and we rush to meet the grower, grasp him tightly by the hand. "Bring us flowers! We're up against it—must have flowers, or up we go!" But the smiling grower answers, "You must wait a week or so." Then he gives us the dimensions of new houses he has built, while we are sadly thinking of the surplus flowers we spilt. While our faces look expectant, our hearts are filled with woe, for we know that he is lying, as he did one year ago.

Somehow we worry through it, using up their damaged stock. Although the chilly winter finds our overcoats "in hock," in the end we will forgive them and take them to our breast, for a man that deals in flowers never knows an hour of rest. Frank Shibeley.

A JAPANESE LUNCHEON.

This is chrysanthemum season and the chrysanthemum is the flower of Japan, so that the retailer who wishes to be ready with suggestions for his customers will be interested in studying the accompanying illustration and preparing similar schemes which he can suggest to his customers when they are in need of such a service.

Edward Bell, of the Bell Floral Co., Franklin, Pa., thus describes this table decoration: "For this Japanese luncheon the colors were yellow and red. A framework of bamboo (fishpoles) trimmed with smilax was hung with Japanese lanterns, and these and the candles on the table, which had yellow shades, furnished the only light. Japanese shades on the candles would have been much better, but it was impossible to obtain them on the short notice given. A large green art jardiniere on the center of the table held yellow chrysanthemums, while small jars of the same ware placed around the centerpiece held yellow nasturtiums. The effect was extremely good under the soft light of the candles."

AN AVIATION LUNCHEON.

The season's one rival of the chandelier decoration is the aviation luncheon idea. The airship decoration is not wholly new, for it was illustrated in The Review as long ago as April 29, 1909, but the aeroplane has by now got around to the state fairs and the aviation luncheon has a personal interest for a lot of people who were never before in touch with the idea. Try it when the airman comes to town and you will make a hit.

Here is a decoration for a recent aviation luncheon that will afford some ideas:

The round table was laid out to represent a city boulevard, with a centerpiece of mums and the "street" between the flowers and the plates. The "thoroughfare" was lined with tiny gold candelabra to represent the street lights, and as if passing along were tiny reproductions of all the vehicles known, from baby carriages and "one hoss shays" to modern carriages and automobiles.

In the center was an airship with a miniature birdman and a woman companion seated in a nest of chrysanthemums. The place cards were souvenir postal cards addressed to the guest. The salad was served in small wagons made of crackers, and the ice cream came molded into trains, airships, buggies, and other conveyances.

HALLOWE'EN WINDOWS.

Hallowe'en is the evening of October 31, the eve or vigil of All Hallows, lowe'en. Robert Burns thus wrote:

Some merry, friendly country folks
Together did convene,
To burn their nits and bou their stocks,
An' haud their Hallowe'en.

Hallowe'en is an occasion of popular superstitions and observances in many Christian countries, fairies, witches and imps of all kinds being supposed to be then especially active. In juvenile America it is the occasion for tearing down the neighbor's fence and stacking it up against his front door. In Scotland, as related by Burns, the evening is frequently celebrated by meetings of young people, when various mystical or playful ceremonies are performed, with the view of revealing the future husbands and wives.

So when the florist decorates his window for Hallowe'en, mischief rather than art should be typified.

The woodwork and fixtures are all finished in white enamel. The walls are covered with rough burlap, tinted with Richtone green. The room is lighted by the new Tungsten Diffuser system of electric lights. Both the store and the greenhouses are heated by the city hot water system, thus eliminating annoyance, dirt and smoke. The side door is used in the handling of express and all sorts of deliveries. There is a cash register, of course, and it is of the latest model, operated by electricity.

The completeness, convenience and thoroughly up-to-date character of the establishment are further evidenced by the fact that the show house, the three plant houses, the bulb house, the soil shed, and—last, but surely not least—the garage, with its three motor cars, are all connected and under cover, thus obviating as much as possible the necessity of going outside in unpleasant weather.

Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash.

The business conducted under the name of the Hollywood Gardens, at Seattle, Wash., was founded only a short time ago, but already it occupies a prominent place among the florists' establishments of that city, and is evidently prosperous and progressive, like the city itself. The proprietors are Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Stimson. During the summer they added four greenhouses to their range in the suburbs, and in the first part of September they opened a handsome new store in the Haight building, at the corner of Second avenue and Pine street, in the midst of the shopping district. Parts of the interior of this store are shown in the two photographs here reproduced. The manager, William R. Gibson, thinks it is one of the finest stores on the Pacific coast—or did he say the finest on the coast, without exception? And the pictures themselves bear evidence, more convincing than any description, that Mr. Gibson's taste in such matters is good.

DEAD LEAVES ON GARDENIAS.

I planted a bench of Gardenia Veitchii in July. The plants seem to be making good growth. The depth of the soil is three and one-half inches. I am having trouble with a disease which causes the plants to drop their leaves. I am enclosing a few leaves for your inspection. Can you tell me where the trouble lies?
M. L.

The leaves you speak of sending have not been received. I imagine, however, that the disease, so called, is not really any disease at all, but consists of yellow foliage due to improper soil or drainage conditions, or an oversupply of water, most probably the latter. Gardenias do not need much soil and your depth is right. The soil should be quite porous, so that water will pass quickly through it. If it is fine and inclined to be pasty, you will never be able to grow healthy gardenias in it. A common error is to overwater after planting. Always allow the soil to dry out well between waterings and scratch over the surface soil frequently. A night temperature of 65 degrees is about right. Syringe so that the foliage will become dry before nightfall. Sweet soil, careful watering and a brisk, moist heat are conditions making for successful gardenia culture. There are many other little details which experience alone can teach you. C. W.

REFRIGERATION FOR FLORISTS.

[An extract from a paper by L. C. Corbett, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, prepared at the request of the Committee on Refrigeration for the International Congress now being held at Vienna.]

Low temperatures have long been an important factor in various departments of floriculture. In fact, a number of the most important commercial industries connected with floriculture are based upon the use of cold storage as a factor in their development.

Cold as an Aid to Plant Forcers.

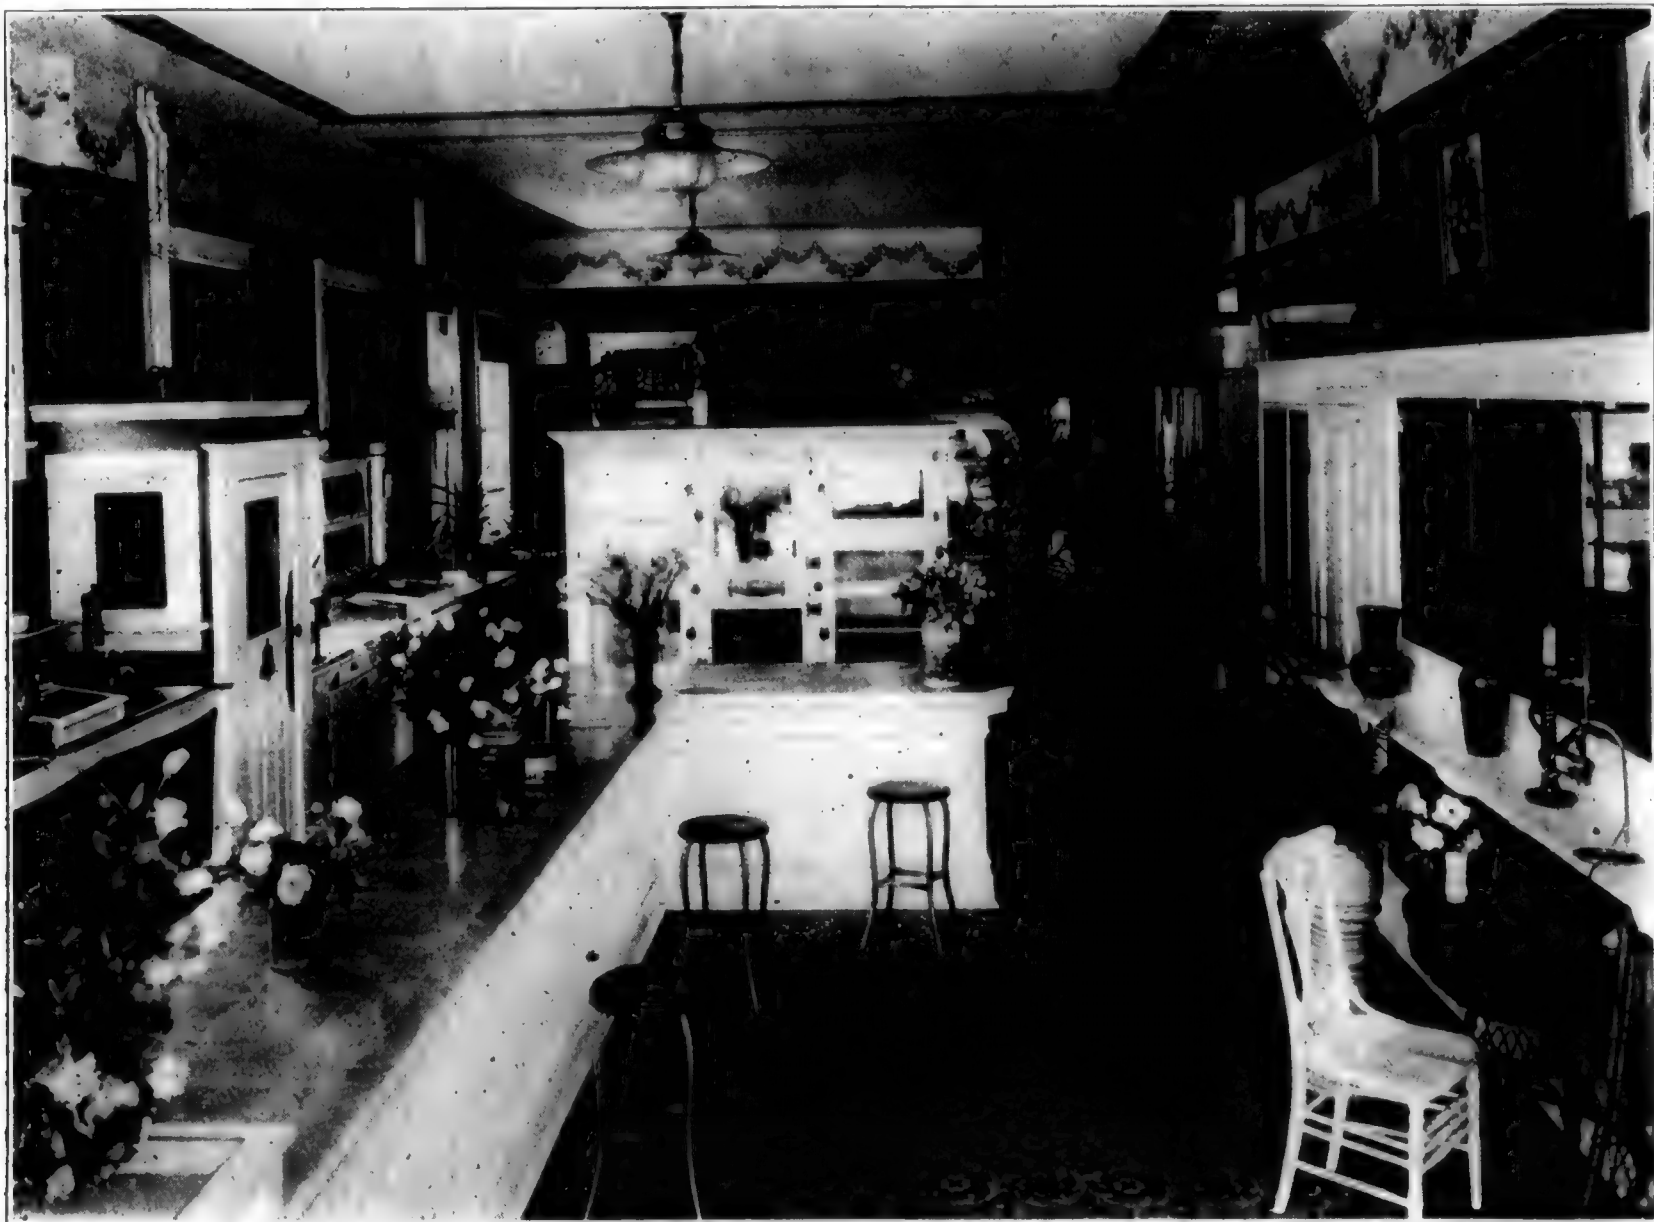

The forcing of many plants, both woody and herbaceous, is made more certain and more remunerative through the use of cold storage. The forcing of polyantha roses, of hydrangeas, lilacs, spiraeas and the like for the Christmas trade are all more certain if the plants have been placed in cold storage for a short period. True it is that the gas treatment now promises to provide another means of accomplishing like results, but the field is yet a new one and full of uncertainty. The forcing of several of the herbaceous plants, such as the lily of the valley, Lilium longiflorum and Lilium Harrisii, is expedited by cold storage, although it is not an absolute necessity to success. The modern handling of lily of the valley is almost entirely based on the successful treatment of the pips in cold storage. In fact, many plants and seeds which require low temperatures in order that they may make satisfactory growths can be handled in cold storage to advantage.

Cold and Cut Flowers.

The success of the modern cut flower trade is due largely to the fact that the standard flowers of the trade, such as roses and carnations, lend themselves to storage. While we have no accurate information, based on careful tests, except that provided by J. Verrier, professor of horticulture in the Cote-d'Or, on "The Utilization of Artificial Cold in Floriculture," which is published in L'Industrie Frigorifique, florists all well know that the value of both carnations and roses is greatly enhanced by subjecting them as soon as cut to a chill which is just sufficient to check the normal vegetative functions, without destroying them. The check should be severe enough to cause the flowers to rest for a period, but the rest should not be a permanent one, from which they cannot be roused. Experience has demonstrated that the condition obtaining in the ice-box or refrigerator where the atmosphere is highly charged with moisture is better suited to the purpose of the florist than the same temperature maintained artificially when the air is dry. Usually the chilling is not long continued, but it is generally believed that a few hours' exposure to a low temperature greatly lengthens the period of beauty and usefulness of roses and carnations. While those practices are of great economic value, even at the present time, there is no reason to doubt that through careful investigation their value might be greatly enhanced.

The wholesale cut flower trade of the great cities of the United States is now greatly facilitated by the use of modern cold storage appliances. While low temperatures are not desirable, a constant temperature of 40 degrees for carnations and roses is absolutely essential. Fluctuations in temperature and humidity produce great injury, while a constant temperature at a moderate degree is the only means of holding delicate flowers over a long period. Such delicate blossoms as orchids cannot be held in storage at all. They are very sensitive to low temperature and cannot be successfully stored.

What Is Needed.

What we at present need are carefully conducted cold storage tests with each of the important commercial cut flowers, coupled with painstaking physiological researches to determine the exact temperature and its duration, in order that the stability of the flowers may be preserved to the greatest extent and that their duration in an ordinary living room after their withdrawal from cold storage shall be greatest. Without these painstaking researches we can never arrive at satisfactory commercial practices. The empirical rules which are followed today serve a very useful and valuable purpose.

The value of the cut flower trade in any European country or in America is sufficient to justify most painstaking and careful research along this line. It is to be regretted that more positive information cannot be given upon these important phases of the cold storage business at this time, but my studies have thoroughly convinced me of the necessity for careful and extended research into these most important commercial fields for cold storage.

LANTANAS AND HELIOTROPES.

Kindly tell me when is the best time to propagate lantanas and heliotropes? If I have no bad luck with my cuttings, I will have quite an assortment to dispose of.

C. A. M.

Cuttings of these should go in at once, as frost is liable to cut them off at any time. Further cuttings can be taken from these during the winter, to produce plants for spring sales. What you put in now will be in the nature of stock plants. The heliotropes require more heat to root them than the lantanas, but both are of easy propagation.

PROPAGATING BOUVARDIAS.

I have a nice lot of bouvardias, from which I would like to grow some young stock. Can you instruct me how?

O. L. H.

All the bouvardias are easily propagated by root cuttings. Shake the soil away clean from a few plants and cut the thicker portions of the roots into half-inch lengths. Cover them with sand in a warm propagating bench and keep moist, potting off singly when they have started to grow and make young roots. This propagation is best done in midwinter, when firing is constant and a steady, brisk bottom heat at command. B. Humboldtii is easily propagated from the young, soft growths, which root easily and can be grown into quite large plants in a season. All the other bouvardias are best from root cuttings.

thoroughly up-to-date character of the establishment are further evidenced by the fact that the show house, the three plant houses, the bulb house, the soil shed, and—last, but surely not least—the garage, with its three motor cars, are all connected and under cover, thus obviating as much as possible the necessity of going outside in unpleasant weather.

Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash.

The business conducted under the name of the Hollywood Gardens, at Seattle, Wash., was founded only a short time ago, but already it occupies a prominent place among the florists' establishments of that city, and is evidently prosperous and progressive, like the city itself. The proprietors are Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Stimson. During the summer they added four greenhouses to their range in the suburbs, and in the first part of September they opened a handsome new store in the Haight building, at the corner of Second avenue and Pine street, in the midst of the shopping district. Parts of the interior of this store are shown in the two photographs here reproduced. The manager, William R. Gibson, thinks it is one of the finest stores on the Pacific coast—or did he say the finest on the coast, without exception? And the pictures themselves bear evidence, more convincing than any description, that Mr. Gibson's taste in such matters is good.

DEAD LEAVES ON GARDENIAS.

I planted a bench of Gardenia Veitchii in July. The plants seem to be making good growth. The depth of the soil is three and one-half inches. I am having trouble with a disease which causes the plants to drop their leaves. I am enclosing a few leaves for your inspection. Can you tell me where the trouble lies? M. L.

The leaves you speak of sending have not been received. I imagine, however, that the disease, so called, is not really any disease at all, but consists of yellow foliage due to improper soil or drainage conditions, or an oversupply of water, most probably the latter. Gardenias do not need much soil and your depth is right. The soil should be quite porous, so that water will pass quickly through it. If it is fine and inclined to be pasty, you will never be able to grow healthy gardenias in it. A common error is to overwater after planting. Always allow the soil to dry out well between waterings and scratch over the surface soil frequently. A night temperature of 65 degrees is about right. Syringe so that the foliage will become dry before nightfall. Sweet soil, careful watering and a brisk, moist heat are conditions making for successful gardenia culture. There are many other little details which experience alone can teach you. C. W.

REFRIGERATION FOR FLORISTS.

[An extract from a paper by L. C. Corbett, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, prepared at the request of the Committee on Refrigeration for the International Congress now being held at Vienna.]

Low temperatures have long been an important factor in various departments of floriculture. In fact, a number of the most important commercial industries connected with floriculture are based upon the use of cold storage as a factor in their development.

Cold as an Aid to Plant Forcers.

The forcing of many plants, both woody and herbaceous, is made more certain and more remunerative through the use of cold storage. The forcing of polyantha roses, of hydrangeas, lilacs, spiræas and the like for the Christmas trade are all more certain if the plants have been placed in cold storage for a short period. True it is that the gas treatment now promises to provide another means of accomplishing like results, but the field is yet a new one and full of uncertainty. The forcing of several of the herbaceous plants, such as the lily of the valley, Lilium longiflorum and Lilium Harrisii, is expedited by cold storage, although it is not an absolute necessity to success. The modern handling of lily of the valley is almost entirely based on the successful treatment of the pips in cold storage. In fact, many plants and seeds which require low temperatures in order that they may make satisfactory growths can be handled in cold storage to advantage.

Cold and Cut Flowers.

The success of the modern cut flower trade is due largely to the fact that the standard flowers of the trade, such as roses and carnations, lend themselves to storage. While we have no accurate information, based on careful tests, except that provided by J. Verrier, professor of horticulture in the Cote-d'Or, on "The Utilization of Artificial Cold in Floriculture," which is published in L'Industrie Frigorifique, florists all well know that the value of both carnations and roses is greatly enhanced by subjecting them as soon as cut to a chill which is just sufficient to check the normal vegetative functions, without destroying them. The check should be severe enough to cause the flowers to rest for a period, but the rest should not be a permanent one, from which they cannot be roused. Experience has demonstrated that the condition obtaining in the ice-box or refrigerator where the atmosphere is highly charged with moisture is better suited to the purpose of the florist than the same temperature maintained artificially when the air is dry. Usually the chilling is not long continued, but it is generally believed that a few hours' exposure to a low temperature greatly lengthens the period of beauty and usefulness of roses and carnations. While those practices are of great economic value, even at the present time, there is no reason to doubt that through careful investigation their value might be greatly enhanced.

The wholesale cut flower trade of the great cities of the United States is now greatly facilitated by the use of modern cold storage appliances. While low temperatures are not desirable, a constant temperature of 40 degrees for carnations and roses is absolutely essential. Fluctuations in temperature and humidity produce great injury, while a constant temperature at a moderate degree is the only means of holding delicate flowers over a long period. Such delicate blossoms as orchids cannot be held in storage at all. They are very sensitive to low temperature and cannot be successfully stored.

What Is Needed.

What we at present need are carefully conducted cold storage tests with each of the important commercial cut flowers, coupled with painstaking physiological researches to determine the exact temperature and its duration, in order that the stability of the flowers may be preserved to the greatest extent and that their duration in an ordinary living room after their withdrawal from cold storage shall be greatest. Without these painstaking researches we can never arrive at satisfactory commercial practices. The empirical rules which are followed today serve a very useful and valuable purpose.

The value of the cut flower trade in any European country or in America is sufficient to justify most painstaking and careful research along this line. It is to be regretted that more positive information cannot be given upon these important phases of the cold storage business at this time, but my studies have thoroughly convinced me of the necessity for careful and extended research into these most important commercial fields for cold storage.

LANTANAS AND HELIOTROPES.

Kindly tell me when is the best time to propagate lantanas and heliotropes? If I have no bad luck with my cuttings, I will have quite an assortment to dispose of.
C. A. M.

Cuttings of these should go in at once, as frost is liable to cut them off at any time. Further cuttings can be taken from these during the winter, to produce plants for spring sales. What you put in now will be in the nature of stock plants. The heliotropes require more heat to root them than the lantanas, but both are of easy propagation.

PROPAGATING BOUVARDIAS.

I have a nice lot of bouvardias, from which I would like to grow some young stock. Can you instruct me how?
O. L. H.

All the bouvardias are easily propagated by root cuttings. Shake the soil away clean from a few plants and cut the thicker portions of the roots into half-inch lengths. Cover them with sand in a warm propagating bench and keep moist, potting off singly when they have started to grow and make young roots. This propagation is best done in midwinter, when firing is constant and a steady, brisk bottom heat at command. B. Humboldtii is easily propagated from the young, soft growths, which root easily and can be grown into quite large plants in a season. All the other bouvardias are best from root cuttings.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Poinsettias.

Do not keep the poinsettias in a warm house yet; 50 degrees at night is better for them than 60 degrees. The time they want an advance in temperature is when the bracts are forming. If kept close and warm now, the shoots will be long, lanky and soft. In a cooler house they will be nice and stocky. Avoid wide fluctuations in night temperatures, and as you value good foliage use the hose or watering pot with care. Many pooh-pooh the watering can as being slow and obsolete. Those who decry its use as being old-fashioned cannot, as a rule, produce plants comparable in quality with such as are watered by hand at the critical stages of their growth. Of course, hand watering is laborious and oftentimes impossible, but the average country florist can well afford to use it in preference to the hose on poinsettias in pots and pans at this season, and he will be well repaid for his extra labor. No plants are more easily and speedily ruined by an excess of moisture at the roots than poinsettias. Feeding in strong doses is just as bad. Each will cause a loss of foliage, and poinsettia bracts on naked stems are wanted by nobody. Do not feed at all until the bracts are forming. Then give it twice a week in moderately weak doses. Some soot with the manure helps to keep the leaves a dark green color.

Lilium Multiflorum.

The bulbs of L. longiflorum multiflorum have recently arrived and been potted. These will come in useful at Easter. The late date will prevent Formosas, which are naturally earlier, cutting much of a figure, and multiflorums and giganteums will be the lilies par excellence. While it is quite possible to pot up these lilies considerably later and still have them for Easter, the earlier they are potted the better they will be. Do not stand the lily pots under the benches. This is a convenient but often a reprehensible practice. Newly potted plants never want to stand where they will get drip. It soddens and sours the soil. Worms speedily find their way in and fatten under such conditions, and drainage becomes clogged and plants unhappy in appearance. A frame shed, cellar or any frost-proof place will be all right for these lilies for some weeks yet. Do not let the sun shine on them. A soaking after potting should carry them until the bulbs are well rooted. Lilies do better kept on the dry side until the pots are full of roots and top growth nicely started. If kept wet, the roots will rot and the plants speedily show traces of the ever present "disease," which is often caused by wrong culture.

Cannas.

Look over the cannas and see that they are correctly labeled before lifting. Let them have a moderate freezing first, and dig them on a dry, sunny day. Do not shake the soil from the roots. They keep much better with a good quantity left on. They should be stored where they will not get any drip, and shelves in a dry shed with a minimum temperature of 45 to 48 degrees will answer well. They are often stood under greenhouse benches. Such places are all right, except for the drip. This starts too early growth, and will often rot the roots.

Marguerites.

Now that the weather is cooler, the marguerites are growing fast. There is still ample time to insert a batch of cuttings. These will make excellent stock for blooming during May and June, and those late propagated plants can be planted outdoors after blooming, headed back a little, lifted and potted in the fall, kept shaded a few days until established, and will flower much earlier than the younger stock. Some have been in fine bloom for Christmas, and all of them will flower during the winter season. Keep young plants potted on before the roots have a chance to become matted, and unless you want an early crop of flowers, keep the shoots pinched until Christmas. Marguerite plants sell well at Easter, but the cut flowers are in better demand during the spring and early summer months than earlier in the season. Spray the foliage with nicotine extract if you see the least signs of the leaf miner, which will soon disfigure the foliage. In growing marguerites, it is well to remember that the variety Queen Alexandra is not an early winter bloomer, not being in good shape until the last of April or May.

Antirrhinums.

Many of the earlier chrysanthemums are now cut and other crops can be planted in their stead. Among these are antirrhinums, which make a profitable spring crop. If it is decided not to renew the soil, give it a good coating, at least, of well decayed manure, and spade it over to thoroughly incorporate it before planting. The first spikes pushed are usually of little account. Pinch these back, and if you want really strong spikes three to four feet long or more, allow only four or five to each plant. Never allow these to become bent, or they are of little value. Keep them tied up from the start, and rub off any side shoots or useless growths which may appear. If you want a late crop of these snapdragons, sow some seed now. Select the tall varieties, which have the best spikes. Do not sow mixtures. Put in pure white, yellow, pink and scarlet, which are the popular shades.

PRINCETON.

Rosarians all over the country know that the home of the great New Jersey university is also the home of the coming rose, Princeton. Gladly accepting an invitation of John Berger to visit the greenhouses of Stockton & Howe, in the beautiful old university town, an afternoon of pleasure and profit was devoted to calling on the new rose in its home.

Princeton is the name given a seedling raised from a cross between the hybrid perpetual rose, Ulrich Brunner, and the tea rose, Safrano. The seedling has been grown by Stockton & Howe for three years. At first it delighted them by its beautiful color and by its freedom of bloom, but there were cultural difficulties. These have been successfully overcome. Today Princeton stands out prominently as one of our most productive roses, awaiting only the judgment of the flower-loving public to make its future brilliant.

Taking, then, the cut flower qualities of Princeton first, the dazzlingly beautiful color is the rose's most striking feature, a color that resembles the pink in Killarney at its best, only it is several shades deeper and has no white or lighter shading.

The effect of the open flowers, standing strongly on their stiff stems clothed with broad, light green foliage, is striking. The color of Princeton is halfway between Killarney and Beauty; it is the color of well grown Salvator Rosa in the tulip. The position that Princeton will occupy in the minds of our floral artists is the position occupied by the Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson carnation, that of a color by itself, something between red and a pink—a deep pink. Here the simile ends, for the color of the Princeton rose is not the color of Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson. It has a color, a vivacity, too, that is quite charming. The flower is rather flat, of Brunner type, of good size and said to be of excellent keeping qualities.

While a prediction on fickle fashion's fancies is a risk, Princeton has so many graces that a social success in December seems assured.

The growing qualities of Princeton are full of interest. The young plants do not thrive under the usual culture given roses in pots. When planted out, Princeton grows like a weed; grows, too, with a vigor that is amazing after a crop has been produced; grows with a freedom from blind wood that warms the grower's heart.

Old plants, cut back to produce stock for this season's planting, were the picture of health despite the tremendous slaughter they had endured. Young plants planted out of the cutting bed were growing freely, while the bulk of the stock produced under usual conditions was excellent. Princeton, like Killarney, requires disbudding to produce stems, and, to judge from a single visit, requires plenty of water during the growing season.

Stockton & Howe have some 3,600 plants of Princeton, set out in tables in one house 20x316. They plan commencing to send cut flowers to their wholesale commission merchants in December. Whether they will reserve this rose for their own growing or will distribute it next season, will be decided later.

INSECTS ON KILLARNEYS.

Enclosed you will find a young Killarney bloom. It looks as if it were eaten, but I can find nothing upon the plants, which are healthy and beautiful. They are second-year stock, on a solid bed. Please tell me what the trouble is, and the remedy.

C. E. Y.

This bud has been bitten by some insect, probably a grasshopper, though there are some small caterpillars that cause the same kind of destruction. Spray the bushes with the following mixture, using a fine spraying nozzle: Soft brown sugar, one pound; Paris green, one teaspoonful. Mix these together and use a tablespoonful to every two gallons of water. Spray twice a week.

Ribes.

ROSE APHIS.

Our roses are troubled with the little green lice or bugs. We have used a kerosene emulsion and also tobacco smoke, but without effect. What would you advise using? They are on the tender young leaves and seem to be sucking them.

S. & L.

The green bug or rose aphis can be easily destroyed by using any of the tobacco preparations, either in the form of a spray or as a fumigant. Burning tobacco stems or tobacco will also be effective.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Exhibition Flowers.

In about two or three weeks more the exhibitions will be claiming our attention and the interest in chrysanthemums will be at fever heat. The weather has been wretchedly bad for the proper development of the flowers, in all sections along the eastern seaboard. A day temperature running up to the top of the bulb and a night temperature of 70 degrees will never give the grower a chance to show his best results. Many reports contain bitter complaints that all the best flowers have damped off and that many of the flowers remaining do not show the length or breadth of petals usual to the variety when conditions are favorable.

Shading is essential on the roof of the house where exhibition flowers are being grown. It will assist materially in keeping down the temperature and will protect the flowers from the blistering sun.

The grower this year who was a little late in getting his buds will probably be in a position to laugh at the man who got his buds before the middle of August, and is now reaping a whirlwind of blasted hopes.

One peculiar result of the intensely hot spell is that the flowers are from ten days to two weeks late in developing. This I have noticed in my own stock, as well as in other stock I have seen. This is, however, not a new experience, but has been noted in these columns before.

Some of the Newer Sorts.

Looking over some of the newer things, from an exhibition standpoint, it would seem that Mrs. D. Syme is going to make good where it has had the least ghost of a chance. The foliage and stem are perfect and half a dozen flowers that have already been cut were simply models of perfection.

W. Wood Mason, in the crimson section, will be in a class by itself if it finishes in the condition it now shows promise of. The bugbear of all crimsons, damping, has so far not made its appearance on this variety and the petals are dropping down in a way to gladden the heart of a mum enthusiast. Another of last year's novelties, Mrs. W. A. Read, opened with splendid promise, but the larger flowers are damping and it does not appear that this variety will be shown as well as it deserves to be.

The giant Onunda is building up its flowers the same as it did last year, and we can look for some enormous flowers to be staged of this particular variety. Mrs. H. Stevens, W. Mease and W. Hoston are each in line.

The finest flower it has been my pleasure to see so far this season is the variety C. H. Totty. This does not appear to mind the heat so much as some other varieties that shade on the same color. Leslie Morrison, Mrs. O. H. Kahn and Yellow Miller are all showing excellent promise at this time, and our old friend Beatrice May will unquestionably continue in her winning ways.

Beware of Overforcing.

Chrysanthemums love a cool, moist atmosphere, and heat is not desirable in any stage of the plants' growth. Growers, occasionally, who are late with their early stock, try to force it along by the application of artificial heat. Such heat is worse than wasted, for the chrysanthemum, as has been repeatedly proved, will not live up to its reputation unless it gets the proper natural conditions of cool, or even frosty nights and clear days.

It is a pity, after the work of a whole season, that the pleasure of the flowers should be crowded into a few weeks at the most, but the chrysanthemum enthusiast for the next week or two will surely say to himself that life is well worth the living.

Where flowers that are wanted for exhibition are opening too rapidly—and this is quite liable to happen—they can be set away in a cool cellar from which the most of the light has been excluded and kept in perfect condition from two to three weeks. I have often had flowers kept in this way that traveled to a show and remained in perfect condition during a four or five days' exhibition, while stock not so treated wilted down the second day.

C. S. A. Committees.

President Elmer D. Smith has announced committees to examine new chrysanthemums, which are as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Flowers shipped to chairman, care manager of Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., C Park street.

New York—Eugene Dailledouze, chairman; Wm. Duckham, A. Herrington. Flowers shipped to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care Eugene Dailledouze.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Flowers shipped to chairman, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwartz. Flowers shipped to chairman, Jabez Elliott Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—J. B. Deamud, chairman; Geo. Asmus, W. H. Kidwell. Flowers shipped to J. B. Deamud, 51 Wabash avenue.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted October 29, November 5, 12, 19 and 26.

THE FLORIST'S WIFE.

[A paper read before the meeting of the St. Louis Ladies' Home Circle by Mrs. John L. Koenig, Thursday, September 15, 1910.]

Having been asked to read an essay before this club, I have selected a subject which I consider of great importance to every lady, mistress of a home, and especially to the mistresses or managers of florists' homes.

The appropriate use of trees, shrubs, vines and herbaceous plants in the adornment of city, village, suburban or country home grounds gives a charm and beauty which are as interesting, instructive and pleasing to the passers-by as to the occupant of the home.

Whose duty should it be more than that of the florist's wife, daughter or sweetheart, to foster the idea and give assistance to her neighbors and friends, as to how and when to plant trees, shrubs, vines and bedding plants? You all know how solicitous we are to tell one another how to fashion a new dress or hat, or how to cook a new dish, or hang new style draperies. Why not use as great effort to promote the beautifying of home grounds? We, standing so much nearer to the craftsman, can obtain expert advice as to the proper time and methods to be employed in the work, and I consider it our duty to see that our home grounds stand as an example to others who have not the advantages we have.

It is not my aim to tell you how to lay out your grounds or what to plant, for that should be left to each one's taste and according to space and locality, but what I sincerely expect of all is to keep whatever you plant in a presentable condition at all times, for nothing is more deplorable to behold than a place which was nicely laid out and then neglected. Let me warn you now not to make too elaborate preparations, unless you are certain that you will be able to maintain the proposed creation; for a single flower bed in a well kept lawn is preferable to a lot of flowers scattered over a large area and left to shift for themselves. Think of the alternative of the morning-glory, with its open countenance halfway up the side of your house, nodding a friendly good morning to the rose in her bed, with a blanket of alternantheras covering her feet; or the discarded ketchup bottle making faces at the empty tomato can among plantain, dock and jimson weeds.

Every successful attempt to adorn your home grounds has a valuable influence upon the community in which you are situated. Such grounds furnish an object lesson which others will attempt to follow, and in this way they serve the useful purpose of stimulating in others a love for the beautiful in nature. It also has a tendency to increase the income of the florists. Fortunately, the beauty which is produced by ornamental planting cannot be selfishly kept for the exclusive use of its owner; every passer-by can take the full measure of his capacity without in the least detracting from the value of the plantation to its owner. Every person who plants a tree is a public benefactor.

VIOLETS WITH SWEET PEAS.

Can you tell me what is the matter with my violets? I am enclosing a few leaves and if you can give me any information regarding them it will be appreciated. I have a greenhouse, 22x70, chiefly in violets, and there is something wrong with them. We also have our sweet peas in the same house and I am enclosing some of them. They are not doing as well as they might. Will you tell us what to do with them? I am located in eastern Missouri.

S. H.

The foliage of the single violets forwarded was badly affected by leaf-spot. This does not usually attack single violets, as it does doubles, and even when it does the plants will grow out of it. The single violets should not be housed before they have had one or two freezings to check leaf-growth. They should not have gone in, in your climate, before the middle of October. Too early planting causes many failures in single violet culture. Your night temperature should be kept as near 40 degrees as possible in winter, but if you have sweet peas in the same house and are intending to flower them early, the temperature must be raised 6 or 8 degrees when the peas start to show buds. This will make it pretty warm for violets, which, however, are usually run out under glass from the middle to the end of March.

Pick off all diseased leaves. Give the house abundant ventilation night and day. Scratch over the surface soil and keep rubbish cleaned up on the paths or under the benches, if you use benches. Never mind if the temperature gets down near freezing; it will not affect the violets.

The sweet pea foliage was all brown when received. The haulm apparently is weak. Your rows should not be closer than four feet apart, and are better even wider, provided the head room is ample. Perhaps your seed was sown thickly and the seedlings not thinned. The individual plants should be four to six inches apart to become stocky. As you are growing the two crops, it will be best to run the house cool, to suit the violets, until the middle or end of February; then gradually raise the temperature for the sweet peas, pulling out the violets as they run out.

JOHN BERTERMANN.

There are few retail florists who are more widely or more favorably known in the trade than John Bertermann, of the firm of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, Ind. He possesses two qualities which naturally lead to such extensive acquaintance—he is up-to-date in his business methods and is also public-spirited, taking an active interest in the general welfare of the craft and attending an unusually large proportion of florists' gatherings, both local and national. His store in Indianapolis is one of the handsomest and best equipped in the country and of course handles a high class of trade. At the last convention of the A. C. S., in Pittsburg, he assisted in the organization of the Retail Florists' Delivery Association and was elected a member of the board of directors of the new society.

John Bertermann was born April 25, 1850, at Wilhelmshöhe, Hessen-Cassel, Germany. He started to learn the florists' business May 19, 1864, in the gardens of the emperor of Germany. During the Franco-German war, 1870-1871, he was detailed to special decoration duty in the Hessen-Cassel, during the time that Napoleon, emperor of France, was prisoner there.

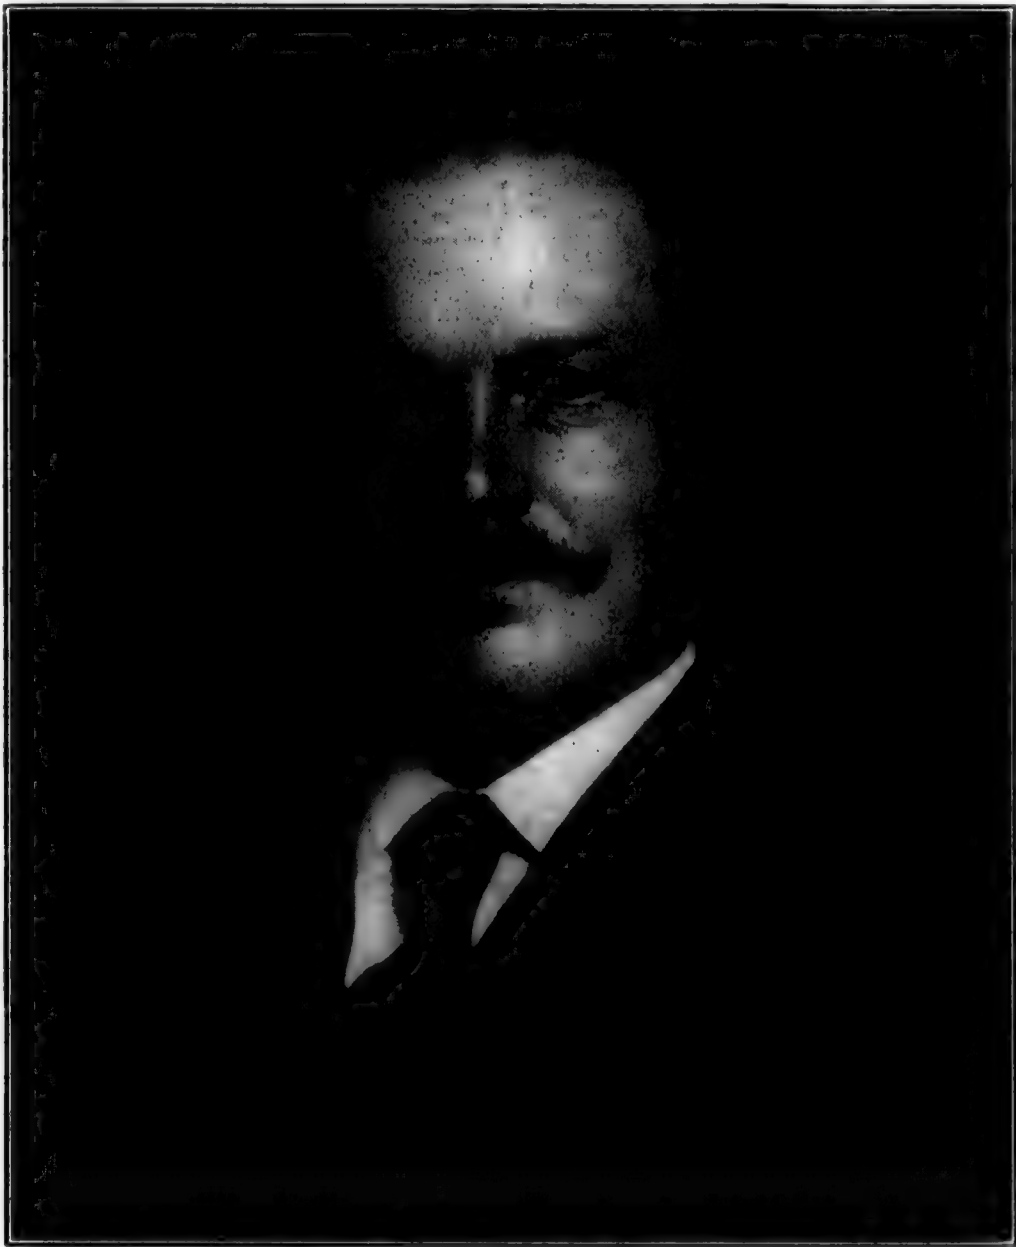

His brother, William Bertermann, sailed for America in 1872 and John followed him in 1876, with the intention of starting a flower business in the new world. They were unable at the time to carry out their intentions, and John took a position at Newport, Ky., where he worked six months with a private concern. For some time after that he was employed by B. P. Critchell, at Carthage, O.

December 3, 1878, the two brothers moved to Indianapolis and found employment with C. Lange, whose business was located in East Washington street. They worked for Mr. Lange until February, 1879, at which time they purchased his business. The next year they built a greenhouse at the corner of Liberty and New York streets, and in 1882 moved the store from East Washington street to the present location at 241 Massachusetts avenue.

In 1891 death called William Bertermann away, which left the business in charge of John Bertermann, under the present firm name of Bertermann Bros. Co.

In 1905 John Bertermann purchased a farm containing 103 acres, located at Cumberland, east of the city, and in the following year he erected on this farm a range of greenhouses which are used exclusively for growing carnations.

Akron, O.—M. Gemind, employee of M. J. Gilbo & Sons, reports that this firm is erecting two houses, each 18x110, which, with last year's additions, will give 30,000 square feet under glass. These houses are truss construction, with iron gutters.

TOLEDO, OHIO.

The Market.

Since violets and chrysanthemums have made their debut, there has been a marked improvement in business throughout the city. Although society has not as yet seen fit to open its doors for the season, nevertheless florists have been quite busy with autumn weddings and flowers for various occasions, as well as the usual tributes to those who have "traveled to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler doth return." As an editor in a recent periodical says: "Flowers greet us as we enter this world, aid us on our way, and bid us God-speed when we leave."

Ideal Indian summer weather prevails, for which all are grateful after last month's cold and rainy spell. Carnations, although quite small and short-stemmed as yet, are coming in better every day, as are also the roses. Dahlias have been so large and varicolored as almost to vie with chrysanthemums. Cosmos, gaillardias and tritomas are still quite plentiful, and are seen in all the florists' windows.

Various Notes.

Harry Heinel has some specially fine carnations this season. He had large, long-stemmed flowers when the others were small, due to the fact that the plants in two of his houses have always been under glass, never having been started in the field.

Mrs. E. Suder has been doubly rushed in the last few weeks, both with an exceptional run of funeral work and the work on her new house. She has made some particularly fine funeral pieces lately, among them a large broken pipe of American Beauties, as a tribute to the president of one of the local sewer pipe lines.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman, who has succeeded George Heinel, has been doing a large business. B. B. S.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Last week found more flowers of all kinds in the market. Mums are coming in freely; some good October Frost, Halliday and Pacific Supreme are to be had. Carnations are improving daily, the quality of flowers from early planting from pots being nearly up to winter form.

Violets are being received daily, valley is fine and sells well, and some good giganteum lilies are in the market. There has been no severe frost in this locality, and quantities of dahlias and cosmos can be had.

Various Notes.

C. M. Wagner decorated his automobile for the Centennial parade, and the car made a most magnificent appearance.

The Smith & Feters Co. had some most beautiful fall windows during Centennial week, which attracted a great deal of attention.

Frank Schoen, lately with the Taylor

Flower Shop, has returned to the J. M. Gasser Co.

Michael Bloy, formerly a grower for the J. M. Gasser Co. and other places about Cleveland, and now the owner of a retail place in Detroit, was in town last week visiting old friends. He reports the business done as quite satisfactory.

The Jones-Russell Co. has been showing some fine fall novelties in wreaths, etc., in its window. B.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange was recently incorporated here, with a capital stock of $15,000.

From Another Correspondent.

There was a remarkable slump in nearly all lines of the flower business last week, owing to the Centennial celebration, but this week is much better and there is a big demand for cut flowers, house plants and some wedding decorations. Dahlias still are plentiful and of splendid quality. With the exception of some fine cosmos, they are the only outdoor stock on the market. The chrysanthemum season is on and there are plenty of them to supply the present demand.

Fred Griffin is receiving some fine Killarney and White Killarney, also good carnations.

The J. M. Gasser Co. decorated seven of the automobiles in the Centennial auto parade, three of them winning first prizes in different classes.

F. J. Schoen is again with the J. M. Gasser Co., after an absence of several months.

The Jones-Russell Co. had the entire exterior of its store decorated in southern smilax during Centennial week, which created quite a sensation, since all the parades passed that way.

C. M. Wagner had a decorated auto in the parade which deserved honorable mention.

Bramley & Son had their automobile delivery wagon decorated in dahlias and American Beauties, taking first prize in Class 5 of the parade.

Smiling Ben Feldner, of the Roseville Pottery Co., paid Cleveland a visit this week.

M. Bloy, of Detroit, has been calling on old acquaintances during the last few days.

The Ohio Floral Co. will soon move to its new quarters in the Sargent building, on West Twenty-fifth street. C. D. F.

DENVER.

The Market.

The warm weather during October has had its effect on the demand for flowers. There is nothing going on in the way of social functions and if it were not for the funeral work that has been used it would be quiet indeed.

Stock of all kinds is plentiful enough, no great amount being required. Roses are abundant and the quality never was better at this time of the year. Beauties also are fine. Some excellent long-stemmed stock is finding good sale at current prices. In the other roses Killarney has the call, both in pink and white. Carnations are now of good stem and color and the blooms are of nice size, selling pretty well. Chrysanthemums are beginning to come more plentifully and the quality of most of them is good. There is not much call for violets as yet.

commercial purposes as follows: Color, 18; form, 12; fullness, 10; stem, 15; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 9; total, 90.

Before the Cincinnati committee, October 15, Chrysolora, yellow, Japanese incurved, scored for commercial purposes as follows: Color, 19; form, 13; fullness, 10; stem, 15; foliage, 13; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 94.

C. S. A. Committees.

President Elmer D. Smith has announced committees to examine new chrysanthemums, which are as follows:

Boston: Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Flowers shipped to chairman, care manager of Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., C Park street.

New York: Eugene Dailledouze, chairman; Wm. Duckham, A. Herrington. Flowers shipped to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care Eugene Dailledouze.

Philadelphia: A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Penneck. Flowers shipped to chairman, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati: R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwartz. Flowers shipped to chairman, Jabez Elliott Market, care of janitor.

Chicago: J. B. Deamud, chairman; Geo. Asmus, W. H. Kidwell. Flowers shipped to J. B. Deamud, 51 Wabash avenue.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted October 29, November 5, 12, 19 and 26.

THE FLORIST'S WIFE.

[A paper read before the meeting of the St. Louis Ladies' Home Circle by Mrs. John L. Koenig, Thursday, September 15, 1910.]

Having been asked to read an essay before this club, I have selected a subject which I consider of great importance to every lady, mistress of a home, and especially to the mistresses or managers of florists' homes.

The appropriate use of trees, shrubs, vines and herbaceous plants in the adornment of city, village, suburban or country home grounds gives a charm and beauty which are as interesting, instructive and pleasing to the passers-by as to the occupant of the home.

Whose duty should it be more than that of the florist's wife, daughter or sweetheart, to foster the idea and give assistance to her neighbors and friends, as to how and when to plant trees, shrubs, vines and bedding plants? You all know how solicitous we are to tell one another how to fashion a new dress or hat, or how to cook a new dish, or hang new style draperies. Why not use as great effort to promote the beautifying of home grounds? We, standing so much nearer to the craftsman, can obtain expert advice as to the proper time and methods to be employed in the work, and I consider it our duty to see that our home grounds stand as an example to others who have not the advantages we have.

It is not my aim to tell you how to lay out your grounds or what to plant, for that should be left to each one's taste and according to space and locality, but what I sincerely expect of all is to keep whatever you plant in a presentable condition at all times, for nothing is more deplorable to behold than a place which was nicely laid out and then neglected. Let me warn you now not to make too elaborate preparations, unless you are certain that you will be able to maintain the proposed creation; for a single flower bed in a well kept lawn is preferable to a lot of flowers scattered over a large area and left to shift for themselves. Think of the alternative of the morning-glory, with its open countenance halfway up the side of your house, nodding a friendly good morning to the rose in her bed, with a blanket of alternantheras covering her feet; or the discarded ketchup bottle making faces at the empty tomato can among plantain, dock and jimson weeds.

Every successful attempt to adorn your home grounds has a valuable influence upon the community in which you are situated. Such grounds furnish an object lesson which others will attempt to follow, and in this way they serve the useful purpose of stimulating in others a love for the beautiful in nature. It also has a tendency to increase the income of the florists. Fortunately, the beauty which is produced by ornamental planting cannot be selfishly kept for the exclusive use of its owner; every passer-by can take the full measure of his capacity without in the least detracting from the value of the plantation to its owner. Every person who plants a tree is a public benefactor.

VIOLETS WITH SWEET PEAS.

Can you tell me what is the matter with my violets? I am enclosing a few leaves and if you can give me any information regarding them it will be appreciated. I have a greenhouse, 22x70, chiefly in violets, and there is something wrong with them. We also have our sweet peas in the same house and I am enclosing some of them. They are not doing as well as they might. Will you tell us what to do with them? I am located in eastern Missouri.

S. H.

The foliage of the single violets forwarded was badly affected by leaf-spot. This does not usually attack single violets, as it does doubles, and even when it does the plants will grow out of it. The single violets should not be housed before they have had one or two freezings to check leaf growth. They should not have gone in, in your climate, before the middle of October. Too early planting causes many failures in single violet culture. Your night temperature should be kept as near 40 degrees as possible in winter, but if you have sweet peas in the same house and are intending to flower them early, the temperature must be raised 6 or 8 degrees when the peas start to show buds. This will make it pretty warm for violets, which, however, are usually run out under glass from the middle to the end of March.

Pick off all diseased leaves. Give the house abundant ventilation night and day. Scratch over the surface soil and keep rubbish cleaned up on the paths or under the benches, if you use benches. Never mind if the temperature gets down near freezing; it will not affect the violets.

The sweet pea foliage was all brown when received. The haulm apparently is weak. Your rows should not be closer than four feet apart, and are better even wider, provided the head room is ample. Perhaps your seed was sown thickly and the seedlings not thinned. The individual plants should be four to six inches apart to become stocky. As you are growing the two crops, it will be best to run the house cool, to suit the violets, until the middle or end of February; then gradually raise the temperature for the sweet peas, pulling out the violets as they run out.

JOHN BERTERMANN.

There are few retail florists who are more widely or more favorably known in the trade than John Bertermann, of the firm of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, Ind. He possesses two qualities which naturally lead to such extensive acquaintance—he is up-to-date in his business methods and is also public-spirited, taking an active interest in the general welfare of the craft and attending an unusually large proportion of florists' gatherings, both local and national. His store in Indianapolis is one of the handsomest and best equipped in the country and of course handles a high class of trade. At the last convention of the A. C. S., in Pittsburg, he assisted in the organization of the Retail Florists' Delivery Association and was elected a member of the board of directors of the new society.

John Bertermann was born April 25, 1850, at Wilhelmshohe, Hessen-Cassel, Germany. He started to learn the florists' business May 19, 1864, in the gardens of the emperor of Germany. During the Franco-German war, 1870-1871, he was detailed to special decoration duty in the Hessen-Cassel, during the time that Napoleon, emperor of France, was prisoner there.

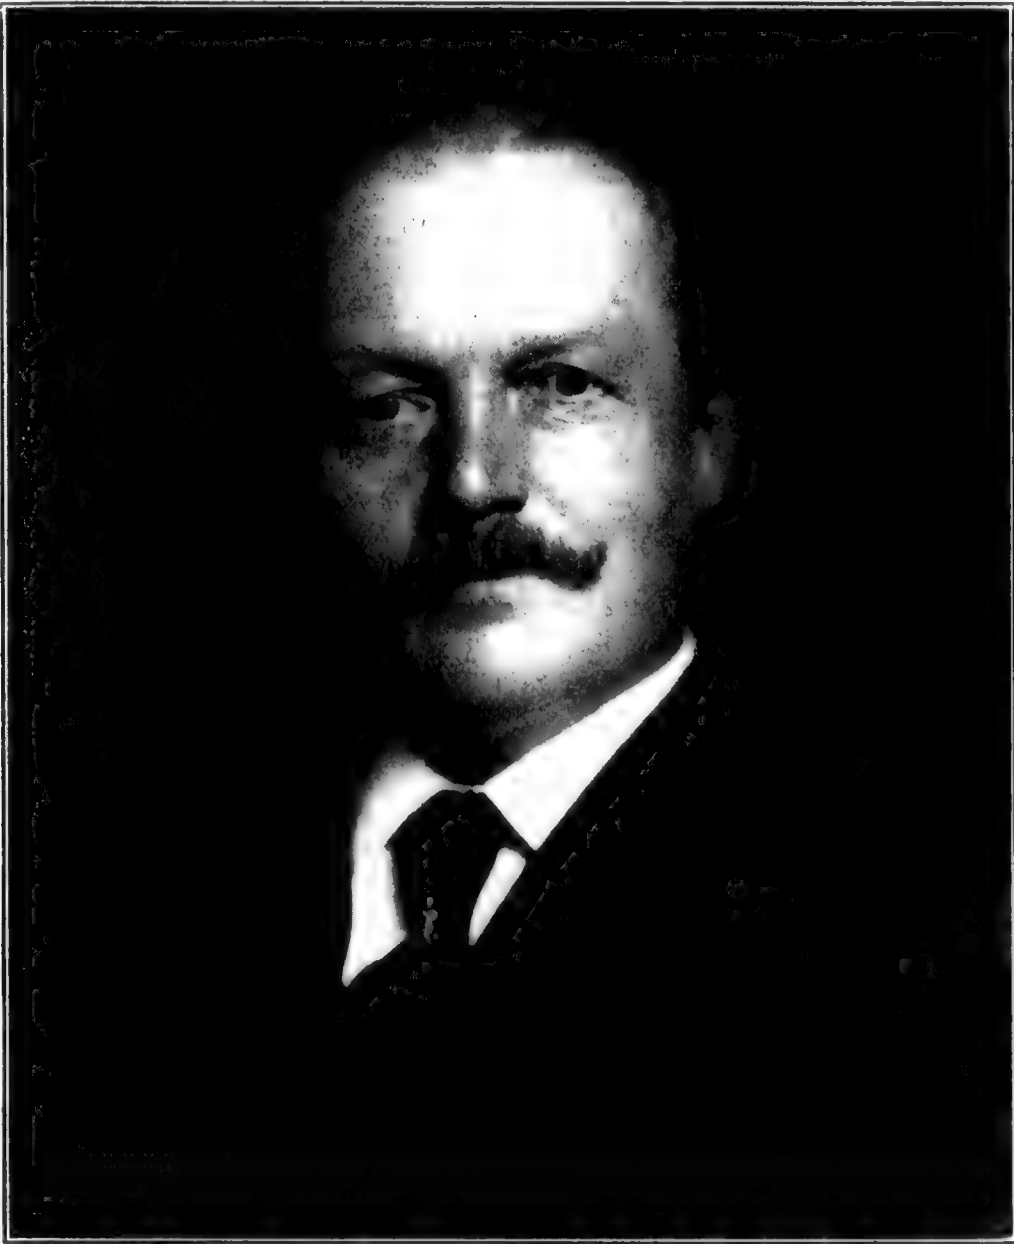

His brother, William Bertermann, sailed for America in 1872 and John followed him in 1876, with the intention of starting a flower business in the new world. They were unable at the time to carry out their intentions, and John took a position at Newport, Ky., where he worked six months with a private concern. For some time after that he was employed by B. P. Critchell, at Carthage, O.

December 3, 1878, the two brothers moved to Indianapolis and found employment with C. Lange, whose business was located in East Washington street. They worked for Mr. Lange until February, 1879, at which time they purchased his business. The next year they built a greenhouse at the corner of Liberty and New York streets, and in 1882 moved the store from East Washington street to the present location at 241 Massachusetts avenue.

In 1891 death called William Bertermann away, which left the business in charge of John Bertermann, under the present firm name of Bertermann Bros. Co.

In 1905 John Bertermann purchased a farm containing 103 acres, located at Cumberland, east of the city, and in the following year he erected on this farm a range of greenhouses which are used exclusively for growing carnations.

Akron, O.—M. Gemind, employee of M. J. Gilbo & Sons, reports that this firm is erecting two houses, each 18x110, which, with last year's additions, will give 30,000 square feet under glass. These houses are truss construction, with iron gutters.

TOLEDO, OHIO.The Market.

Since violets and chrysanthemums have made their debut, there has been a marked improvement in business throughout the city. Although society has not as yet seen fit to open its doors for the season, nevertheless florists have been quite busy with autumn weddings and flowers for various occasions, as well as the usual tributes to those who have "traveled to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler doth return." As an editor in a recent periodical says: "Flowers greet us as we enter this world, aid us on our way, and bid us God-speed when we leave."

Ideal Indian summer weather prevails, for which all are grateful after last month's cold and rainy spell. Carnations, although quite small and short-stemmed as yet, are coming in better every day, as are also the roses. Dahlias have been so large and varicolored as almost to vie with chrysanthemums. Cosmos, gaillardias and tritomas are still quite plentiful, and are seen in all the florists' windows.

Various Notes.

Harry Heint has some specially fine carnations this season. He had large, long-stemmed flowers when the others were small, due to the fact that the plants in two of his houses have always been under glass, never having been started in the field.

Mrs. E. Sudler has been doubly rushed in the last few weeks, both with an exceptional run of funeral work and the work on her new house. She has made some particularly fine funeral pieces lately, among them a large broken pipe of American Beauties, as a tribute to the president of one of the local sewer pipe lines.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman, who has succeeded George Heint, has been doing a large business. B. B. S.

CLEVELAND, O.The Market.

Last week found more flowers of all kinds in the market. Mums are coming in freely; some good October Frost, Halliday and Pacific Supreme are to be had. Carnations are improving daily, the quality of flowers from early planting from pots being nearly up to winter form.

Violets are being received daily, valley is fine and sells well, and some good giganteum lilies are in the market. There has been no severe frost in this locality, and quantities of dahlias and cosmos can be had.

Various Notes.

C. M. Wagner decorated his automobile for the Centennial parade, and the car made a most magnificent appearance.

The Smith & Feters Co. had some most beautiful fall windows during Centennial week, which attracted a great deal of attention.

Frank Schoen, lately with the Taylor

Flower Shop, has returned to the J. M. Gasser Co.

Michael Bloy, formerly a grower for the J. M. Gasser Co. and other places about Cleveland, and now the owner of a retail place in Detroit, was in town last week visiting old friends. He reports the business done as quite satisfactory.

The Jones-Russell Co. has been showing some fine fall novelties in wreaths, etc., in its window. B.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange was recently incorporated here, with a capital stock of $15,000.

The Florists' Club meeting October 11 was at T. M. A. hall, where the club will hereafter meet the second Tuesday of every month, instead of Thursday. The nomination of officers was the principal business. The election takes place at the next regular meeting, November 8.

The Columbine Floral Co. is now located in its new store at Fifteenth and Stout streets. Mr. Poss, having bought the fixtures at the old stand, will continue it at that number, 1553 Curtis street.

The Florists' Bowling League was reorganized last week and will roll at the Brunswick alleys. E. S. K.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The prolonged drought and continued Indian summer are an obstacle to improvement in the cut flower market. There has been no change of importance in the quotations of a week ago, in roses or carnations. If any, the tendency is toward recession, and after the elite demand is satisfied, what flowers are left go in large quantities at the buyer's offer. There have been constantly increasing shipments, but the supply of select stock has not kept step with the enlarged offerings and most of the rose stock especially drags heavily and will while the chrysanthemum dominates the market. Few carnations are worth 3 cents. Quality advances like the length of stem, slowly. In another week they will do better, as to quality, though it looks as though 3 cents might be the top until the mum flood ceases.

Orchids, valley and lilies remain stationary in values and quite abundant. Asters and dahlias have passed on. Violets sell slowly and 40 cents seems to buy the best of them. The street pays 20 cents for the leftovers.

Retail windows are most beautiful with vari-colored mums and autumn foliage, while groupings of the many varieties of nephrolepis add novelty to the arrangement. There are a dozen varieties now to choose from. Already the price of the general shipments of mums is falling rapidly. The end of the week will see the inflow from a thousand sources. Everybody who grows anything around New York has the chrysanthemum on his list. The result can be better imagined than described. Cosmos is fine, but not in demand. Tuberoses are as unpopular as ever.

Various Notes.

The John Wier's Sons place, Brooklyn, was sold at auction October 19 by W. J. Elliott & Sons.

Next week, October 26 and 27, a fine exhibition will be seen at Red Bank, N. J., given by the Monmouth County Horticultural Society, and October 28 and 29 the Nassau County Horticultural Society's show will take place at Glen Cove, L. I. The following weeks are filled with exhibitions in this vicinity, of which due notice will be given. One of the most important will be the $3,000 prize exhibition of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society and that of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. November 2 to 4 are the dates for this big show. Arthur Herrington is manager, and visitors should buy their tickets for Convent Station, N. J., which is nearest to the club grounds and house secured for the occasion. Messrs. Duckham, Totty, Schultz and Reagan are all busy in its behalf.

The Badgley, Reidel & Meyer Co. has added a new safe to its conveniences and redecorated the store and office. Shipments of valley and lilies from Siebrecht, and nine varieties of roses were a part of their exhibit October 17.

John F. Sharkey has a neat store on Sixth avenue and Forty-sixth street, and W. H. Londo is an able lieutenant, with years of experience with Van Praag and other Broadway florists. The move is into the hotbed of the retail section of Sixth avenue, with Burns, Lee, Louis and others a block or two away.

A. J. Rickards, Jr., arrived last week, via the stork route, and the successors of Bridgeman are now in line for another century of the name that has been associated with the seed business since its inception. October 10 was the date of the arrival of the new partner!

The seedsmen begin to feel the strain of the long drought. There has been no frost nor any cool weather to date. The balance of the fall business will have to be crowded into a brief season and day and night work will be everywhere in evidence.

Jos. Cannon, of Philadelphia, is managing the cut flower department in the store of Gimbel Bros., for J. Wolff, Jr., and Mr. Wolff is quite encouraged by his success to date.

John King Duer has retired from the retail florists' business. His store has been closed for several weeks.

Grunewald, the retail florist on Columbus avenue, is back from Germany.

The auction sales of plants continue every Tuesday and Friday. The crowds are increasing and prices are better. Retailers have awakened to the opportunity for bargains. One of the largest buyers this season has been J. B. Nugent, Jr.

The fern supply now being distributed by our expert growers at the retail stores has never been excelled so early in the season. There are a half dozen popular varieties, and Boston itself has lost none of its prestige and sells as readily as when it occupied the center of the stage.

The greenhouse constructors are finding no fault with the warm fall, and all seem to have an abundance of contracts, with much building booked that will keep the wheels revolving until snow flies.

Hession, of Flatbush, has 100,000 carnation plants of the best varieties under glass, the output being handled by M. C. Ford.

The Kervan Co. expects to have its new four-story building finished and to be in it by November 1. It will be the most unique store of its kind in America.

Bowling.

Friday, October 14, the scores made by the bowlers make the outcome of a match with the Astorias, as now contemplated, rather one-sided. The special prize was won by P. J. Smith. The scores:

Player.	1st	2d	3d

Charles Lenker is running for state senator on the socialist ticket.

Wertheimer Bros. report numerous orders for their Sprinkleproof ribbons, which they have just introduced. Considerable comment has been created by the introduction of these waterproof ribbons, and it is predicted by several metropolitan florists that these goods will soon be in general use in first-class establishments, as there is no question as to the practical merits of a moisture-proof ribbon.

The many friends of John V. Phillips, of Brooklyn, will be pleased to hear that his health is so much improved that he now is able to return to business after an absence of two months.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week business was good, and the demand for most lines took up the supply. This week, however, indications on Monday pointed to a glut. This is due to the fact that chrysanthemums are in full blast. A large amount of stock is still sold, but the prices have already shaded considerably. Almost every local grower has large cuts of Estelle mums. They form the bulk of those in the wholesale houses, but Monrovia, October Frost and some fine Touset and Virginia Poehlmann are also offered.

The weather in this vicinity has been the mildest that we have had for several years at this season. As a result, local dahlias and cosmos are better, and are lasting longer than for many years. Both are offered in large quantities and help to increase the amount of stock on hand, and so far there are no signs of a frost that would shut them off.

The market is long on roses of all kinds, especially American Beauties. They cleaned up fairly well until the last few days, when a large part of the request shifted to chrysanthemums. Carnations are steadily improving in quality, and are also plentiful. Longiflorum, lily of the valley and orchids have been finding a ready sale. Snapdragons are now offered.

The supply of decorative greens of all kinds is ample.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some excellent orchids from L. A. Fennell, of Cynthiana, Ky.

Wm. Murphy reports that he is finding an active demand for longiflorum and chrysanthemums.

Albert McCullough's lawn at his home at Pleasant Ridge is attractive with a bed of celosia bloom. His patch of named new varieties in dahlias also attracts attention.

P. J. Olinger went to his greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., Thursday, October 13. In his salesroom in this city he has had constructed a large zinc pan for his ferns that is as deep as the ferns are long. Mr. Olinger finds this arrangement quite satisfactory for keeping these greens without trouble.

Joe Maunders, of Newport, Ky., has the decoration for the fall opening of The Fair, a large local department store. Among other things, his plans include the use of 5,000 carnations on Monday, the same number of dahlias on Tuesday and a like amount of roses on Wednesday.

L. F. Benson, of Indianapolis, is consigning some fine smilax to C. E. Critchell.

L. H. Kyrk's friends are glad to hear that he has about recovered from his illness and will be among us in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Murphy, Alfred Murphy and Miss Cora Pherson visited greenhouses at Richmond, Ind., last Sunday, and say that all the stock there looks fine. They were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hill and Charles Knopf.

Wm. Gerke, of Girard, O., brother-in-law of George Corbett, of College Hill, was in town last week to attend the funeral of his father.

The carnations of the Bloomhurst Floral Co. are so good that last week they brought a record price for the market for this time of the year, $4 per hundred.

Callers last week were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; E. J. Fancourt, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.; H. Schmidt, of Oxford, O., and H. S. Burns, of the Henle Wax Paper Mfg. Co., of New York.

Bowling.

The first meeting of the Bowling Club was held at Finke & Craig's alleys, 120 East Sixth street. Chas. H. Hoffmeister was appointed secretary-treasurer. The scores were as follows:

John Marback, a florist residing at 4809 John street, Cincinnati, committed suicide Monday, October 10, by hanging himself from a rafter in the barn. It was said that he had been despondent for some time, as he was a tuberculosis victim.

E. G. Gillett, in a lecture before a local business club, recently stated that sprinkling oil on the streets had a deleterious effect on trees and shrubbery along such thoroughfares.

Chas. H. Hoffmeister has had much to do with the organization of the Harding First Voters' Club, and was recently elected commander of that body.

ERIE, PA.

The Market.

Trade has been good and the local florists have nothing to complain of. There is no dull season here, as Erie has many summer visitors and there is more or less entertaining all the time.

Chrysanthemums have made their appearance, first the yellow, then the white, and soon we shall have pink and all the other shades. This will be the leading flower for the October weddings and many orders have been placed for the finest varieties. Good stock in roses and carnations is getting more plentiful and is selling well. Gaillardias, cosmos and dahlias are still in demand, while violets and valley are always heralded with joy.

Various Notes.

Victor Morgan, representing Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., and Mr. Stern, representing William Scharrath, New York, were recent visitors here.

Frank Gorny and Henry Hewitt have accepted positions with the Baur Floral Co. John Gleichsner, for many years a trusted employee of this firm, has retired from the florists' trade and is now conducting a flourishing grocery business near the greenhouses.

Eric Thompson and Ed. Lichtinger have gone on a hunting trip.

William McCarthy has returned from a business trip to Cleveland.

The millinery openings which kept the florists busy for a while are over with. B. P.

AMHERST, MASS.

The short course in floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College this year promises to be one of the most successful ever given. The registrations for the course are coming in rapidly and a good attendance is anticipated. The department is endeavoring to make its work valuable, not alone to the students taking the regular four years' course, but to the practical florists as well. The short course of twelve weeks during January, February and March is intended to reach just these people. Tuition is free and the only expenses are for board, textbooks and the traveling expenses incidental to observation visits to practical florists' establishments in the state. Among the ranges to be visited are H. W. Field's, Northampton; Montgomery Bros., Hadley; the college conservatories at Smith College and Mt. Holyoke College; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Joseph Beach & Son, South Hadley; G. N. Sinclair, Holyoke; Peter Fisher, Ellis; Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick; Wm. Sim, Cliftondale; Thomas Roland, Nahant, and others.

One of the most valuable features of the course has been the talks given by practical men, not connected with the college. This year a week will be devoted to greenhouse construction and, aside from the regular lectures of the department, talks will be given that week by R. O. King, of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, a representative of Lord & Burnham, Irvington, and a representative from Hitchings & Co., of New York. A second week greenhouse heating will be considered. F. J. Elder, of Lord & Burnham Co., will speak. Other talks during the course will be given by the following men on the following subjects: W. H. Elliott, Brighton, Mass., and Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass., on rose culture; M. A. Patten, Tewksbury, Mass., and C. W. Ward, Queens, Long Island, on carnations; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., on chrysanthemums; W. N. Craig, North Easton, Mass., on orchids; E. J. Canning, Northampton, Mass., on herbaceous perennials; J. Otto Thilow, Philadelphia, Pa., on a subject to be announced; Edward MacMulken, Boston, on the retail trade.

Men and women from any state in the Union are eligible for this course. Additional information may be had from Professor W. D. Hurd, Director of the Short Course, or from E. A. White, Professor of Floriculture, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass.

YONKERS, N. Y.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society met in Wiggins hall Friday evening, October 7. In the absence of the president and vice-president, Secretary H. Scott called the meeting to order and appointed H. Nichols as chairman.

The committee on the June show made its final report and was discharged with thanks. Mr. Milliot, also, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for the capable manner in which he had performed his duties as manager of the June show.

One new member was elected and several applications were received.

Mr. Sheppard exhibited two fine apples of the Bismarck variety, grown on dwarf trees planted in the spring of 1909.

The question box was brought into use for the first time and a question was asked as to the best way to distinguish the different varieties of tea roses. W. H. Waite undertook to have an answer ready for the next meeting. Mr. Waite was gladly welcomed back and seemed to have been much benefited by his vacation.

In a discussion of the subject of San Jose scale, a question arose as to whether there was any law pertaining to the cleaning up of old orchards in vacant lots. It was decided to submit the question, by letter, to the authorities at Albany and Mr. Milliot said he would do so at once.

Mr. Hendry read an interesting essay on "Mums as Grown in England." The discussion which followed the reading of this paper was participated in by Messrs. Mooney, Waite, Scott and others. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Hendry.

The committee on the fall show reported having received a large number of donations.

The next meeting will be held November 4.

TROUBLE WITH LORRAINES.

Will you tell us the trouble with our Lorraine begonias? We grew them with great success last year, but this year they have been spotted and later the stems turn black and gradually the whole plant dies. We have given them the same treatment as last year.

A. F. C.

Too much moisture at the root and a too cool and damp atmosphere are likely to cause the troubles you have mentioned. Lorraines succeed best in a moderately warm house, not much shaded. Are you quite sure no strong chemical fertilizer or too fresh manure was used in the compost, or that they have not had any overdoses of stimulants? It is difficult to give reasons without knowing exact cultural methods and other conditions. The soil should be light and for the last potting should contain some well decayed manure, sand, loam and flaky leaf-mold. The latter can form from one-third to one-half of the whole compost. C. W.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business last week was more satisfactory than the week previous; the receipts all around were greater, but with the increased demand there wasn't much left to speak of. It was the so-called opening of the mum season, and all that came in were readily disposed of. The funeral last Saturday of one of our oldest and most esteemed citizens did its share to reduce stock to the minimum on that day.

A Visit to H. W. Koerner's.

It was on October 9 that Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Heitman and Mr. and Mrs. Nic Zweifel, in the latter's automobile, together with the writer, paid a visit to H. W. Koerner's place on the Burleigh road, in Wauwatosa. We were just in time to find a large crew busy cutting and bunching some late gladioli and dahlias. Mr. Koerner is a dahlia specialist, with over 45,000 plants, and it ther proven at the S. A. F. convention at Rochester this summer, where he was awarded first prize for the best twelve varieties not yet in the market. Mr. Koerner said that he had to pack his blooms on a Sunday night, and they remained in the boxes till Tuesday morning, thus speaking well of the keeping qualities of his stock. His new seedling, American Giant, which is of a wine color, certainly is a giant and is well named. Another by the name of Vanus will be disseminated in 1912.

Owing to the continued dry spell during the growing season, his dahlias began to bloom quite late this season, but as we have had no killing frost he is still cutting many fine blooms at this time.

Various Notes.

Mrs. C. B. Whitnall returned from California last week after an absence of three months, visiting her mother and her son and his family, who reside there.

Wm. Edlefsen, of the Edlefsen-Leid-

Plocienniczak Bros., at Eighth and Oklahoma avenues, who have their place in apple-pie order, are adding another modern house, 27x120 feet, to be used for bedding stock and other odds and ends till next season, at which time they will plant it to carnations.

Stock never looked better at the Heitman & Baerman place, where they make a specialty of carnations. They are not cutting heavily now, but the prospects for the coming season are encouraging.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is receiving large daily cuts of roses from the greenhouses these days. Mums, too, are coming in more freely and no trouble is experienced in disposing of the stock, as it is of good quality.

Adam Currie & Co. is the name of the new firm which intends to open a store at 130 Wisconsin street in the near future.

The executive committee of the Milwaukee flower show, in a meeting held October 15 at the Auditorium, accepted the plans of the decoration committee and no doubt we now have a surprise in store, which will help make Milwaukee famous. The entertainment, as planned by the committee in charge, will be a special feature of the show and no one ought to miss it. E. O.

OBITUARY.

Peter Lambert.

Peter Lambert, a pioneer florist of Des Moines, Ia., died at his home in that city Thursday, October 13, 1910, after an illness of several months' duration.

Peter Lambert was born in Trier, Germany, August 22, 1835, and came from a family of horticulturists. His brother is Nicholas Lambert, of Lambert & Reiter, of Trier, who are conducting the same establishment at which Peter Lambert got his first schooling in the occupation that he has followed through life.

Leaving Trier for Metz, France, he took two and a half years of schooling in his chosen work, as florist and landscape gardener, and in 1853 he emigrated to America. After joining an expedition against the Indians, Mr. Lambert located in Keokuk, Ia., and on December 18, 1859, he was united in marriage, at Summerville, Ia., with Miss Lucy Compton, of Hancock county, Ill.

Mr. Lambert served in the army during the Civil war, and finally settled in Des Moines, in 1868, where he took up the horticultural work in which he was engaged up to the time of his death. He was superintendent of Woodland cemetery from 1882 to 1892, establishing the greenhouses at 1912 Woodland avenue, and in 1901 he was appointed custodian of Greenwood park, which position he held until his death. He was a member of the G. A. R., I. O. O. F., and the A. F. & A. M., also one of the originators of the Association of American Superintendents of Cemeteries, organized in 1886.

A widow, six sons and a daughter survive him.

Akron, N. Y.—James J. Bates has severed his connection with the Newman greenhouse, and has erected a greenhouse 21x50 in connection with his store on John street. He is doing a good business.

Peter Lambert.

was indeed a treat to see all the different shades in the giant, peony flowering and cactus varieties, plus a goodly lot of seedlings, among which he has a number of promising ones which he intends to disseminate as soon as he has sufficient stock.

Being well along in the season, there were not many gladioli left, but those that were seen were adequate evidence to prove that he had some of the best gladioli in the country. This was furiger Co., who spent ten days in Pittsburgh, Pa., visiting his children, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott and family, returned Wednesday, October 12, and reports having had a fine time.

The Holton & Hunkel force at the Humboldt avenue place were busy the fore part of last week potting up a carload of azaleas. This company is now cutting some fine blooms of Gloria, Pacific Supreme, Halliday and Virginia Poehlmann mums.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Norristown, Pa.—Wm. H. Catanese, the West Main street florist, and Miss Anna Giannone were married October 4.

New Westminster, B. C.—The B. C. Florists' and Nurserymen's Association held a meeting in the K. of P. hall October 5.

Whitesboro, N. Y.—J. C. Spencer, formerly of Spencer & Martin, at Utica, N. Y., has been engaged as grower for W. A. Rowlands, in this city.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Frank Gompf, formerly with W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has gone to West Mentor, O., to become foreman for Carl Hagenburger.

West Lebanon, N. H.—Samuel P. French is erecting another greenhouse. This is the third house that he has added since starting business here.

Hartford, Conn.—Miss Mary Ferral, for a number of years in the employ of the late J. H. Myers, Altoona, Pa., is now here in the employ of Miss Whiting.

Newburgh, N. Y.—The Yuess Gardens Co. is rushing to completion the new range of glass, and expects to have it planted before the cold season. Bulb business is brisk.

Clifton Springs, N. Y.—J. W. Kellogg, proprietor of the Clifton Springs Greenhouses, has built another house and stocked it with carnations. His first year's trade has been highly satisfactory.

Gibson, Ill.—The Swan Peterson Floral Co. leased a vacant downtown building for use during the week of the corn carnival, and placed on sale there a complete and attractive line of stock, including goldfish.

Greensboro, N. C.—A. J. Sykes, manager of the cut flower department of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., recently visited Asheville, N. C., to make arrangements for the opening of a flower stand in that city.

Middletown, N. Y.—E. A. Lorentz has finished his cozy office. He speaks highly of a new finish for floors, called Aquabar. The foundation wall for his show house, just finished, is eleven inches thick at the bottom, tapering to eight inches at the top.

Southbridge, Mass.—A. H. Faxon reports, under date of October 10, that the weather continues remarkably mild, without frosts, and violets are still in the field. Owing to the warm fall, chrysanthemums are opening a trifle early. There are good crops of vegetables and fruits in this vicinity. The summer trade in flowers was rather quiet, but the approach of the winter season is now quickening the demand.

Biddeford, Me.—A horse belonging to Charles S. Strout ran away recently, somewhat damaging the carriage to which it was attached and also slightly marring some other vehicles, but no serious harm was done.

Sycamore, Ill.—Carl Ulander, who for several years was with William Swinbank, in this city, has returned from an extended tour of Sweden, the land of his birth, and will resume his position with Mr. Swinbank.

Oneonta, N. Y.—J. Strong has a snug place. He was for many years landscape gardener for the Delaware & Hudson railroad, and retired with an enviable reputation. He has succeeded in building up a good local business.

Cobleskill, N. Y.—Alfred Goldring has just finished a rose house, with concrete setting. He grows his Paper Whites on the bench, and thus avoids the work of handling flats. Many of the large growers have adopted this plan, which is a saving of time and space. Killarney is a great favorite here, although some store folks say it does not keep well.

Winchester, Ky.—Shearer the Florist makes this announcement: "I have sold my greenhouse plant, which consists of about 8,000 feet of glass with about one acre of land, to Poole & Purilliant, of Bellefontaine, O., at a fair price. They took possession October 8. The stock is all in first-class condition, and I predict for them a prosperous and profitable business, as they are both practical florists."

Manchester, Mass.—The partnership existing between Magnuson & Hylen, the florists on Bridge street, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Hylen, the retiring partner, has sold to Mr. Magnuson, who will continue the business individually. Mr. Hylen has purchased a wholesale florists' business in Randolph, Mass., including half a dozen greenhouses, dwelling, stable, etc. He has moved his family to Randolph.

Slingerlands, N. Y.—Fred Goldring is preparing a choice batch of stock for the fall show which is to be held in the Armory at Albany, and which promises to be the best yet given. The governor of the state has promised to open the exhibition. This will insure a fashionable attendance at the opening, and the boys are working hard to gather in the rank and file. Mr. Goldring is also a successful trucker, as is evidenced by a return of thirteen barrels of potatoes from a planting of three-fourths of a barrel. The variety is Irish Cobbler. He wants to know if any of the fraternity can beat this in this locality this season.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—E. Haentze and Miss Louisa Kleinkoescht, of Philadelphia, were married October 11. Mr. Haentze is 71 years of age and his bride is 23.

Middletown, N. Y.—F. X. Dienst has almost completely rebuilt his plant this summer, replacing wood with concrete. His stock is in excellent shape. He is an annual prize winner at the county fairs.

El Paso, Ill.—C. L. W. Snyder, who recently disposed of his interest in the El Paso Carnation Co. to W. G. Plumb, his former partner, has purchased the Wolk greenhouses on the west side, where he is now conducting the business.

Salem, Mass.—Since E. A. Stearns took possession of the greenhouses at 90 to 92 North street, in North Salem, he has made many improvements there and the place is now attractive in appearance, well stocked and well equipped for business.

Pittsfield, Me.—While in Bangor, Me., recently, A. J. Loder purchased three 50-foot greenhouses of Carl Beers, who is closing out his business interests there. Mr. Loder will move the houses here in sections and rebuild them in connection with his present range.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—C. P. Dudley is making preparations for the opening of a branch store at Huntington, W. Va. The new store will be one of the handsomest in the state and will be under the management of Miss Loraine Boreman, who is an expert in the business.

Pekin, Ill.—George A. Kuhl is principally known in the trade as a grower of ferns and other plants for wholesaling, but in Peoria he has a busy retail flower store. At the recent state fair at Springfield there were sixteen classes for made-up work and Mr. Kuhl's retail store entered in each class, winning a premium in every class, a majority of them blue ribbons.

Fishkill, N. Y.—A successful home garden contest was concluded October 8. This work of teaching and interesting the young people in keeping their dooryards attractive, and utilizing the little plots of ground surrounding their homes for the cultivation of vegetables, plants or flowers, was first started last year through the instrumentality of Benjamin Hammond, who offered two prizes, a winter coat, for the boy and girl producing the best garden. There were about sixty children in the contest last year and $28 was spent for the prizes. As there were only two prizes, many of the children were disappointed, and this year Mr. Hammond divided the prize money into fourteen different prizes.

JOHN G. ESLER, secretary of the Florists' Hail Association, calls attention that since March, 1907, upwards of $90,000 has been paid out for breakage of glass, the sum being nearly as great as was paid in the whole of the preceding twenty years. Although two assessments have become necessary this year, it is worth while recalling that in years of light losses assessments were omitted.

THE St. Louis Horticultural Society, Otto G. Koenig, secretary, for its exhibition November 8 to 12 purposes to try the effect of big premiums. In each of three classes $500 is offered in one prize. One of these classes is for display of chrysanthemums, another for carnations and the third for roses. The exhibitors can use one or more varieties and arrangement counts; though accessories are not permissible.

H. J. JENNEMANN, of Webster Park, Mo., grows dahlias for cutting only, using mostly German varieties. He finds Bergman's Silver the best white, extremely free-flowering, with good stem, and without an equal as a money-maker. Other varieties that he thinks well of are W. W. Rawson, pink; Cardinal, red; Wolfgang Von Goethe, salmon pink; Fortschritt, velvety maroon; Freudenteuer, red, and Mauve Queen, mauve. Some specimen blooms sent THE REVIEW show that the sorts certainly are at home at Webster Park.

THE ULTIMATE TEST.

There are many factors which influence the placing of advertising; comparatively few men buy advertising space through the application of the same tests they would apply in buying other merchandise; but in the end the results count.

Please stop all my advertisements in The Review; all stock sold as the result of the first insertion, and I could have sold much more; returned money on a number of orders I could not fill. Send your bill and I will gladly remit, as I was well paid.—N. P. Colberg, Princeton, Ill., October 17, 1910.

IMPROVEMENT IN VENTILATION.

With regard to the suggestions given by H. G., under the head of "Operate Vents by Power," on page 11 of The Review of October 6, I wish to say that I believe he has struck the keynote of improvement in ventilation. I also wish to say that in a short time, after severe tests, there will be placed on the market an improved ventilator, which will not be too expensive and which can be placed in one house or in a thousand houses at will. It can be set for any temperature in any house, and can be changed at will at any time to any temperature wanted in any house, without affecting the other houses in any way. It is so constructed that it will almost, if not entirely, eradicate mildew. Whether the night man is asleep or awake, it will do its work. There will not be any more worry about ventilators being blown open and glass broken by sudden storms of wind. All that will be necessary will be to set it by a thermometer at the temperature desired; it will do the rest, as far as is within reason. Thomas Chapman.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

For more than a week the market has been suffering from an attack of too fine weather. Daily temperatures have been running to 84 degrees in the shade and midsummer conditions have prevailed, both on the street, in the greenhouses and in the wholesale establishments. A big volume of business must necessarily be being done; otherwise the enormous receipts could find no outlet except by way of the garbage wagon. It is the general report that the supply of cut flowers never before was so large during the second and third weeks of October. Naturally, prices have been and are weak. This is a point which may be disputed by the out-of-town buyers. Whenever there comes a spell of unseasonably hot weather, it affects the quality of stock; the roses are open and all flowers are soft, so that a great deal of selection is required to get out shipping orders. As a result, the selected shipping stock is commanding a premium, while the discard, which could under no possibility be shipped and arrive in usable condition, has to be sold so cheaply that averages are extremely low.

The chrysanthemum dominates the market. The flowers have been hastened to such an extent that receipts are many times what they were a week ago. Some sort of a sale is found for everything, but prices are decidedly below those which growers have been accustomed to receive. It is noted that the call is for the medium sizes; where a dozen large flowers are called for, a hundred are salable at from 6 cents to 10 cents, or possibly a little more.

All roses have been in large supply and there has been difficulty in finding a buyer for the open flowers. Beauties have suffered because of the oversupply of mums; when the mum is cheap the Beauty must be offered at a moderate price if buyers are to be interested. The southern trade is calling for Maid and Bride, the least abundant of roses.

Carnations have felt the effect of the heat and it is complained that they go to sleep quickly. For size of flower

MUMS!

All The Best Shipping Varieties Are Here.

The fine mid-season sorts are now to be had here, such varieties as Virginia Poehlmann, Halliday, Willowbrook, Geo. S. Kalb, Polly Rose, Rosiere, Touset, Monrovia, October Frost, Golden Glow, etc.

There is no exaggeration in the statement that we have the best stock of Mums to be found anywhere in the west—every good commercial variety that's in season; all colors, all sizes, all prices. Let us hear from you about your Mum needs, it's to our mutual advantage.

BEAUTIES

While we are able to supply all lengths of Beauties of equally good quality, we are specially strong on long-stemmed stock. These Beauties are without question the finest that have been seen in this market this season. Fine large heads, splendid color and substance, strong stem and heavy foliage; quality that attracts the buyers who hunt out the best stock to be had.

CARNATIONS

We want to hear from the buyers who use Carnations in quantity. For years we have been known as handling the largest lot of uniformly high quality Carnations in this market, but we do not recall a season when our Carnations were so good or in such heavy supply at this date. Prices are lower than usual for this date and grade of stock, so buyers should take hold strong.

KILLARNEY

PINK AND WHITE

We are strong on White Killarney—a big crop is on. This is fine stock, in every way as good as our famous Killarney (pink), and the color is clear. These are the finest white roses of the season. Our Killarney and White Killarney are noted for their specially large flowers. Also we can supply fine

Kaiserin, Maryland and Richmond.

Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Plenty of them NOW. Also Auratums and Rubrums.

Headquarters for Mexican Ivy, Smilax, Farleyense, Sprenger, Adiantum, Asparagus Bunches and the best Fancy Ferns in the country.

Violets

As usual, we have the cream of the Hudson river doubles and the best of the home-grown singles.

and length of stem the stock is exceptionally good for this season. Only a few days of cold weather is needed to tone them up.

Violets have been in heavy supply, along with everything else. Neither the eastern stock nor the locally grown singles are anything to brag about as to quality. As usual, the best stock is commanding a premium. There are fair supplies of Easter lilies, auratums and rubrums. Cattleyas are abundant and other orchids rather overplentiful. Gladioli are practically finished, but there are more dahlias than there is use for. Cosmos is a veritable glut.

The green goods market remains quiet.

Employees Will Dance.

The Wholesale Florists' Employees' Club will give its fifth annual ball at Columbia hall, 1527 North Clark street, Tuesday evening, October 25. Time is brief, but it was impossible to secure the hall for a later date. Fitzgerald's orchestra has been engaged, as in previous years. The club consists of fifteen members. George Poehlmann is president and John C. Enders secretary and treasurer. In other years the attendance has always exceeded 150 couples, and the boys say they have every reason to believe it will be at least as large this year.

Smyth Doubles Store.

W. J. Smyth considers the business outlook sufficiently good to warrant him in doubling the size of his store at the corner of Michigan avenue and Thirty-first street and thereby more than doubling his facilities for handling his trade. The store next door to the corner one having become vacant, Mr. Smyth has secured it, is taking down the partition to throw the two stores into one, and is decorating and fitting up the enlarged space in first-class style. A great deal of work is made necessary by the change, but when completed Mr. Smyth will have one of the largest and best equipped stores in the city. He has been at the location for many years, and it has been his invariable experience that when he added to his facilities there was a prompt increase in his business.

Reinberg Man Killed.

Peter Knapp, barn boss for Peter Reinberg, was killed almost instantly October 14 beneath a car of crushed stone on Mr. Reinberg's private siding at the greenhouses. It was one of the dumping cars, on which the dumping apparatus refused to work. Mr. Knapp went beneath the car to fix it, when it suddenly let down on him, crushing his head. He was 45 years of age and leaves a widow and five children. For years he drove Mr. Reinberg's wagon twice daily to the market and was well known among the wholesalers.

Various Notes.

There will be a special meeting of the Florists' Club Thursday evening, October 20, at the Union restaurant, to further flower show arrangements. From all appearances the show this year will be fully as good as ever has been held in the Coliseum and it only remains to secure the attendance. The following applications for membership

In writing on the care of "mums" in his "Week's Work," Mr. Fritz Bahr says:—

"While on this subject I might mention our experience with the new insecticide, 'Aphine.' We used this preparation on a hundred-foot Chrysanthemum house from the time the stock was planted out in May up to the present. A spraying was given once every week, and while two successive applications were required to get rid of a dose of aphids the plants had when planted out, the stock after that was kept entirely free from it, by applying a weekly spraying of a strength according to directions. I don't know what Aphine is made of, and it really matters little; the important part, besides its effectiveness, to the grower, is its cheapness, for to keep this house free from these insects didn't cost quite $1.50 all summer."

Thus the effectiveness and cheapness of Aphine is once more demonstrated by an expert authority.

PETER REINBERG, 35 Randolph Street, Chicago

L. C. Schelt, who has grown carnations, has rented his greenhouses at Park Ridge to Wm. Pasvogel, whose place is just across the street, and has become the Chicago representative of the Oak Ridge Pecan Co., with office at 34 Clark street. The pecan company is owned by Mr. Schelt and the Jefferson Nursery Co., of Monticello, Fla. Mr. Schelt has written an interesting booklet on the pecan, for distribution by his concern.

There is little inquiry from New Orleans for All Saints' day supplies. Most of the wholesalers have stopped catering to the far southern trade, and especially in warm weather, being unwilling to grant the deduction demanded if stock does not carry to the buyers' satisfaction.

Frank Oechslein says fall work has been greatly facilitated by the exceptionally fine weather. Business is excellent with him.

H. C. Wendland, of Wendland & Keimel, is in Maine on a hunting expedition in company with W. R. Pierson, of A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

H. N. Bruns uses his auto a great deal in running back and forth between his store and the market.

Thad Kennicott has been in southern Illinois, shooting ducks.

At E. Wienhoeber's a busy week is reported.

The will of the late George Wittbold was probated October 13. The estate was divided among the children, Mrs. Wittbold being the possessor of ample means of her own. According to the will Mr. Wittbold left personal property valued at $45,000 and real estate valued at $12,000.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co. is putting down another well at Plant A, expecting to go 1,400 to 1,500 feet and develop about 800 gallons per minute. The first pompon chrysanthemums were cut October 17.

Henry Klehm, of Klehm's Nursery, when seen in the store of Kennicott Bros. Co., October 17, said the firm has nearly 100 men at work on landscape jobs at Moline. Mr. Klehm goes back and forth on weekly trips. An office has been maintained at Moline for some years.

Fleischman's store now has a uniformed messenger, as well as a chauffeur, on each of its handsome motor cars. The shape of the bodies on the cars makes them easily damaged if caught in a crush of vehicles, and to avoid scratching it is thought best to keep the chauffeur constantly in his seat, especially when the car is working in the downtown district.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., made a five days' trip among the firm's customers in Kentucky and Tennessee last week.

E. F. Winterson is moving his old ice-box to the south side of the store, and will put in two more boxes, running entirely across the east end, under the sidewalk. This will give him sixty feet of continuous ice-box. John Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, says peony roots from Holland arrived last week and are the finest he ever saw.

Miss Ida Evert returned to the Flower Growers' Market October 17. She has eighteen houses of mums to sell within the next few weeks, four houses more than last year. This is the stock of her father, Mat Evert, and her brother, John Evert.

P. F. Farrell, 4643 State street, says that funeral work has held up well and constitutes the main call at his store, although he expects a good plant trade for the holidays. Mr. Farrell is one of the many florists who use goldfish in their display windows, and he states that they are worth far more than the slight care involved.

Bassett & Washburn have two houses 28x200 devoted exclusively to sweet peas, planted in successional batches. The first batch is just beginning to flower, so they expect to pick steadily till after Easter.

The Norwood Park Floral Co., conducted by F. Knoepfel and Carl Niemann, has been sold to Wm. Kavina.

J. W. Ensweiler, who has four houses at 5325 South Morgan street, expects to begin cutting his mums next week. These are mostly in mid-season varieties, such as Chadwick, Eaton, Golden Glow, Ivory and October Frost. There are also some benches of carnations and the usual run of palms, ferns and other plants. Mr. Ensweiler says funeral work is good.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that in spite of the unfavorable condition of the market, last week's sales for his house showed a gain of one-third when compared with the same week in 1909.

J. W. Breakey, who has a well equipped store at 3907 Cottage Grove avenue, says that business has been much better with him this summer and fall than it was a year ago. Mr. Breakey had the table decorations for the Jewish banquet at the Standard Club October 13.

R. C. Lange has a neat store and greenhouses at 3339 North Whipple street, and does quite a retail business. Mr. Lange has about 10,000 mums of the Enguehard, White Bonnaffon, October Frost and Glory of the Pacific varieties that are coming on in fine shape.

John Schoepfle, who has recently returned from a three months' trip in Europe, says he is more than pleased with the business done at his store at 933 Belmont avenue during his absence. Trade is much better than a year ago, and Mr. Schoepfle has hired extra help to look after it.

The new conservatory of Stollery Bros. is completed and certainly is a credit to the firm. It is a modern, light, airy room, about 36x48 feet, and extends from the rear of the store at 1046 Wilson avenue through to Winthrop avenue, where there is another artistic entrance. By day the light streams in through an immense skylight, which takes up almost the entire ceiling space, and by night a brilliant illumination of electric lights attracts visitors and makes a beautiful display. The conservatory is not yet fully stocked, but with the mums that are now arriving from their greenhouses, they expect soon to have everything in tip-top shape.

Henry Van Gelder says he expects to sell 150,000 mums in the next two months, which, as the sporting editor would say, is some mums, believe us.

At E. H. Hunt's Clifford Pruner says the supply department is working to its full capacity.

Among the week's visitors have been Paul Beyer, of South Bend, who says business holds up to the best of previous years; Laurette E. Miller, of the Findlay Flower Store, to be opened at

The Market.

The warm weather last week had a bad effect on the retail trade and the local market. The wholesalers have been loaded down all the week with everything in season, and with retail demand slow, there naturally has been a slump in values all the way around.

Cut chrysanthemums are coming in quite heavily and every house is well supplied with fairly good blooms in all the early varieties in white and yellow. Prices did not go over $2 per dozen for the best blooms. Violets, which were coming in fine shape, have been considerably hurt by the warm weather last week.

In roses all varieties suffered last week. There were too many of them in the market and American Beauties especially met with a slow demand, as everybody is seeking mums. The smaller roses also piled up daily. Carnations, both white and Enchantress, sold well, but colored stock was left over. Cosmos became a glut early in the week. Tuberoses, asters and gladioli are about over; fine valley, dahlias and lilies can be had and all greens are in stock and have a good demand.

Club Meeting.

Only fifteen members attended the regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club at Odd Fellows' hall Thursday afternoon, October 13. Probably the fine weather kept many growers away, as there is still much outdoor work to do. A much larger attendance is looked for at the next meeting, which will be held Thursday, November 10, during the week of the flower show. Visiting florists are invited to attend and arrangements are being made for a lunch to be enjoyed after the meeting.

Applications for membership were filed by Hugo Gross, of Kirkwood; M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill.; Alex P. Geranios, St. Louis, and G. M. Thost, of De Soto. Delinquents who have not paid their dues by the next meeting, will be dropped from the membership list at that time. Fred H. Weber was recommended as state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, and a vote of thanks was given to H. Jenemann for his exhibition of dahlias.

Now, everybody come to the next meeting, November 10, in Odd Fellows' hall.

C. A. Kuehn was still confined to his bed October 17, but reports were that he was much improved and expects to be attending to business by the end of this week.

Gus W. Grossart, of Belleville, was here last week and said the florists in Belleville had been quite busy with funeral work.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berning have been added to the list of florists who are out riding in automobiles these fine evenings. Mr. Berning's purchase is of the touring type.

The Retail Florists' Association is taking active steps toward the elimination of credit being given to customers who are habitually slow pay.

Flower show matters are progressing nicely. The show takes place November 8 to 12 in the Coliseum and the liberal list of prizes should bring out keen competition in all classes.

Robert J. Windler is making a grand window display of fancy crotons. Mr. Windler reports that business has opened up good with him.

W. E. Ogle, florist at Belleville, Ill., is consigning to this market some good chrysanthemums.

Henry Jennemann, of Webster Park, exhibited a grand vase of fancy dahlias at the club meeting October 13. His collection of dahlias is one of the largest and best in this section.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, has 10,000 square feet of glass planted to violets. The output will be handled by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

Subject to Market Changes

Swan Peterson, of Gibson City, Ill., is consigning a fine lot of white and yellow mums to this market, which are handled by C. A. Kuehn.

George Hecht has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his little girl, who died last week.

Wm. Schray & Sons will, as usual, have a fine stock of pot' chrysanthemums and cut blooms. Julius Schray is the head of this department. They rebuilt some of their houses this summer.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., reports that he and Henry Johann, of Collinsville, Ill., have purchased the flower store of Miss Mattie Schnell, at East St. Louis, Ill. Mr. Ammann has stores in Alton and Edwardsville and Mr. Johann has a store in Collinsville. The East St. Louis store is the only one in which both are interested. J. J. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The weather has been ideal for the world's series for the baseball championship between Chicago and our own Athletics, but it has not been so good for the cut flower market; the fortnight ending October 19 has been a hard one. The supply of outdoor flowers, nipped on the morning of October 13, is again in full sway. The combination of outdoor and indoor flowers makes a load that staggers the market. Add to this a daily increasing supply of chrysanthemums and you have the situation. There is business, plenty of business, but it would take something phenomenal to consume the enormous supply. One wholesaler clearly expressed the condition of affairs by saying it will get worse every day until frost.

People are tired of dahlias; the demand decreases; hundreds are used where thousands were sold. Beauties and chrysanthemums have ceased to be the strong factors. Orchids, gardenias and valley have replaced them. The carnation market is not in good shape. Violets have received a setback from the warm weather; doubles are arriving. Greens sell slowly. Good sweet peas have come. Cyps and a few Vanda carulea have strengthened the orchid list. Cattleya labiata is fine and plentiful. The white Dendrobium formosum and the feathery oncidium can be had in moderate numbers.

Chrysanthemums are improving in quality and declining in price. Golden Glow, Monrovia and Donatello are the yellows, with Halliday in prospect. Glory of Pacific and Pacific Supreme are the pinks. October Frost, Opah, Polly Rose, Estelle and Early Snow, just in, are the whites. Then there is Tint of Gold. Cosmos Lady Lenox is fine.

A Modern Place.

The Joseph Heacock Co. has its new place at Reulof Station, about six miles below Trenton, in operation. This place, which will be run as a branch of the main place at Wyncote, consists of about fifty-eight acres of fertile farm land. One immense greenhouse, 55x600, was completed last July, of Lord & Burnham construction, semi-iron, even span, with concrete sides and concrete beds. Two tiled drains were laid the entire length of the house, to carry off surplus surface water. Nine beds and ten walks form the interior arrangement. The north outside walk has seven 1¼-inch steam pipes, the south side five lines of pipe. The inside walks have two pipes each, thus distributing the heat evenly. These pipes are all fed by an asbestos covered main that runs along the north side of the house, starting from the middle and running each way, thus giving 300 feet of pipe, for which five inches expansion is allowed. A neat device for hanging the pipe on the concrete walls with rollers underneath is in use. An idea of Mr. Heacock's for vaporizing nicotine in a small socket is carried out on each side of the house at intervals of about twenty feet. The general effect, standing in the center or at either end of this immense structure, containing something like 40,000 square feet of glass, is impressive. It seems that the plants in such a house have an immense advantage over the darker, smaller houses that chill so easily in winter storms. One-half this house is planted with 8,000 Killarney roses, the remaining half with 5,000 White Killarney and 3,000 Richmond. Two dozen Beauties have been planted on trial, to see the effect of soil and environment. The plants are starting nicely, and have been yielding flowers for the last month.

The heat for this greenhouse is supplied by two horizontal tubular boilers of 100 horse-power each, with room for two more, to be added in case of need. One sixty horse-power boiler will supply sufficient heat for the present glass, but two boilers of larger capacity have been installed as a safeguard, and in order that no further addition need be made for the next house. The smokestack is fifty feet high and circular, believed to be more enduring than if square. A blower for burning rice coal, a pump for bringing the condensation back to the boiler and a concrete coal bin that is eventually to be covered complete the heating arrangements.

The water arrangements are particularly interesting. An artesian well drilled 204 feet in depth supplies 125 gallons of pure water a minute. The water in well rises within twelve feet of the surface, and after four hours' hard pumping it was lowered only three feet. A powerful duplex Worthington steam pump is used for bringing the water to the surface. Steam to a pressure of thirty pounds is kept steadily on the boiler, so that when a spigot is turned on anywhere in the house the pump will at once start, giving a water pressure of eighty pounds. There is no elevated tank, no surface compression tank; the water is pumped direct from the well into the pipes.

The buildings, not yet completed, are of the most substantial character, stone and brick; boiler shed, cooling room, etc., are all built to stay, with ample proportions, bearing silent testimony to the excellent judgment used in planning this fine place.

Houses have been erected for the manager, Robert Jamison, and his assistant, and there are other buildings. There are also the farm house and the barn, stabling horses, cows and pigs. Excellent crops of corn, rye and clover show that the soil of Reulof is responding to skillful culture. The impressions made are that the improvements of Reulof will endure. The best material has been used everywhere, used with an intelligence born of knowledge and experience.

The fall show at Stokes' Seed Store was a great success. There was a stalk of corn sixteen feet high, for which special arrangements had to be made out in front. There were pumpkins, reminding one of the description of Jane—not pretty, but massive; in fact, they were tremendous. There was a Porto Rican squash, five feet in length, suggestive of innumerable fries, as George H. Atkinson cleverly put it. There was corn of superior quality and dahlias from our own roots that are to be. In fact, it was a most interesting and instructive exhibition.

to $3 per dozen, a more popular grade sells from $6 to $12 per hundred, small flowers at lower rates. Among other varieties now seen, in addition to the regular earlies, are Virginia Poehlmann, Gloria, Ivory, William Duckham and Pacific Supreme. The last named is popular, selling much better than Glory of Pacific. Roses sell only moderately well. They are more abundant and of good quality. Killarney and White Killarney are easy leaders. Mrs. Aaron Ward is forging to the front. Beauties are quite good. Bride and Maid had to move. Carnations are a little lower. While stems are improving, the majority are yet quite short.

Lilies are rather more plentiful. Some nice Cosmos Lady Lenox is seen.

Dahlias are still in evidence, but are not now of good quality. Candytuft is abundant, but hard to sell, and there is still plenty of gypsophila. Such violets as arrive sell fairly well. They are not yet of good quality, but they are improving. Some good gardenias are coming in and a more abundant supply of orchids. Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is now much seen, also Vanda cærulea and Cattleya labiata in abundance. Quite a few Cypripedium insigne are also coming in. Lily of the valley is variable in quality. It is selling quite well. Gladioli are done. Some late, straggling asters are still seen, but are of little value. There is a good call for Asparagus Sprengeri, but less demand for both adiantum and Asparagus plumosus. Smilax is seen on some stands, but is not in much demand.

Club Meeting.

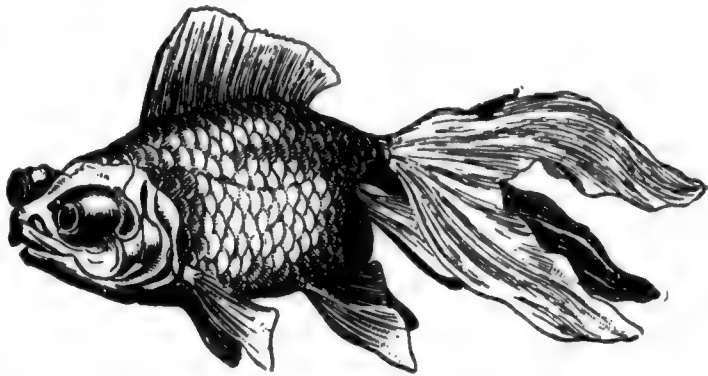

There was an attendance of 150 at the club meeting October 18, the attraction being Edward MacMulkin's lecture on "The Retailer, What Is Expected of Him and What He Has Been Doing for the Last Thirty Years." The lecturer handled his subject ably and was given an enthusiastic vote of thanks. There was discussion by Messrs. Fisher, Kennedy, Finlayson and many others. The committee on S. A. F. entertainment made a further report, favoring a reception, collation and dance at Horticultural hall or some other convenient and sufficiently large hall, in preference to a formal banquet. The former would, it was felt, cause more sociability and be in every way more enjoyable. There was much discussion, and P. Welch, W. J. Stewart and E. MacMulkin were added to the original committee to solicit contributions.

There was an accession of eighteen new members.

Exhibits included chrysanthemums from S. Daniel Whyte and new variegated seedling carnations from Peter Fisher, each receiving a report of merit. The W. W. Edgar Co. showed Lorraine begonias. Paul De Nave brought a collection of orchids. W. N. Craig also had a collection of cattleyas and some chrysanthemums blooming in 4-inch pots. Gerhard Bleicken showed Glory of Pacific chrysanthemums. Duncan Finlayson brought Chrysanthemum Beatrice May. R. L. Cameron showed a new Killarney sport, and William Elliott showed Mrs. Waddell rose.

Various Notes.

William A. Riggs, of Jamaica Plain, has purchased and will operate the John G. Forbes place at Auburndale.

Andrew Christensen returned from his European trip October 13 per S. S. Lusitania. He had beautiful weather while away, and thoroughly enjoyed his visit. While the bulk of his time was spent at his old home in Denmark, he found time for a trip up the Rhine in Germany, also Sweden, France and England. He was particularly impressed with the Parisian parks and boulevards, the municipal markets there and elsewhere in Europe for the sale of cut flowers and plants among other produce exciting his admiration, and he feels that it would be a wonderful benefit to the growers and greatly increase cut flower sales here if producer and consumer could be brought together in the same way. In England carnations seen, such as Enchantress, Fair Maid, Winsor and other American varieties, were of grand quality, equal to our best winter blooms. Roses were also fine and cheap.

S. J. Goddard is still having great success with Carnation Helen Goddard. Granite State, one of George E. Buxton's white seedlings, is proving free. Winsor, Pink Delight, White Enchantress and Beacon are good. During his recent European trip Mr. Goddard met most of the leading English growers of carnations, and several are planning to visit America at the time of the national show in Boston next spring. At C. Engelmann's big establishment at Saffron Walden, carnations planted out were doing remarkably well. The bulk of growers, however, prefer pot culture. The quality of flowers seen was fine, equal to the best produced here. Britannia and Mrs. Burnett, which are not successes here, were superb there, on long, strong stems. We have much to learn from Great Britain in staging carnations, sweet peas and other flowers tastefully. Paul Crampel geranium, as seen bedded out, was wonderful, as were the tuberous begonias, some doubles carrying flowers six and one-half to seven inches across. The new double white marguerite was a grand acquisition. Malmaison carnations were fine, and Mr. Goddard brought some also cutting marguerites in quantity. In chrysanthemums their specialties this week are Virginia Poehlmann, Pacific Supreme and Halliday. They have just received a big importation of azaleas.

The W. W. Edgar Co. is again growing Formosa lilies heavily. They are cutting a fine lot of longiflorums daily, and chrysanthemums in quantity. They never had as fine Lorraines before. These are specimens in 15-inch pans. John J. Fisher acts as salesman at C Park street.

Mr. Atkinson, of the noted firm of Fisher, Son & Silray, Sheffield, England, spent a few days in Boston last week, seeing the parkways, arboretum, etc. Mr. Atkinson is over on a combined business and pleasure trip.

James Petros, now at the Rosary, Clarendon street, will about November 10 open a store on the ground floor of the reconstructed Y. M. C. A. building at the corner of Boylston and Berkley streets.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, the orchid specialist, is cutting a fine lot of Cattleya labiata, as well as some other seasonable orchids.

The demand for stalls at the Boston Flower Exchange has been so good that only three are now left unsold.

Maurice Hambro is this week handling excellent Gloria and President Taft chrysanthemums. They are grown by S. J. Reuter.

William Downs is vastly improved in health, and expects to start back from England about November 1. He is enjoying excellent weather. He reports sweet peas as being ten feet high in October, with 12-inch stems, and hybrid tea roses, tuberous begonias, dahlias, geraniums and other garden flowers remarkably fine, no frost having yet been experienced.

The work of planting the tulips in the Boston Public Gardens commenced this week. It has been delayed with the expectation of rain coming, the soil being almost dust-dry, but rains do not seem to be coming New Englandwards this season. W. N. Craig.

Newburgh, N. Y.—Caldwell & Jespersen have built an attractive office and show house, which greatly add to the appearance of the place. They report good business.

Mayville, Wis.—Miss Ella Naber has sold her greenhouses and business to Charles Schuhmann and wife, who will soon move the greenhouses from their present location to the Schuhmann property on North Main street. Miss Naber, who successfully conducted the business for the last seven years, expects to move to Chicago about December 1.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business has not been up to the standard for this season of the year, and it is generally thought that the warm weather has a great deal to do with it. Stock is getting more plentiful. Dahlias have not been extra good to date and they keep poorly, owing to the heat. Mums are much in evidence and are increasing daily. Polly Rose, Pacific and Comoleta are the principal varieties. The price holds up well and they find ready sale. Carnations are still scarce.

Flower Show.

On Wednesday, October 12, the Buffalo Florists' Club held one of the most successful and best attended meetings in the history of the club. The purpose of the meeting was to make final preparation for the coming show. The meeting was called by President Streit and, after a few introductory remarks, the chair was turned over to Wm. F. Kasting, chairman of the general show committee. Reports were then heard from all chairmen. The rest of the evening was devoted entirely to the selection of spaces and a discussion of the best and most artistic way of decorating the hall. The show will be held November 2 to 5, at Convention hall, the most spacious and well known public building in Buffalo.

A complete and artistic plan has been drawn by George W. McClure, embodying the general idea of the show, and this in itself, when carried out, will make a beautiful garden out of the bare walls, etc., of Convention hall. Spaces were soon spoken for by the many representatives, and every indication points to a decided success. It will require the hearty cooperation of every florist in Buffalo to carry out the extensive plans and thus a general interest will be aroused. No expense is to be spared in advertising, and we shall expect every member to recommend the idea to every customer. One of Buffalo's best bands has been engaged and music is provided for every performance.

The chairman of the general committee has asked the correspondent of this paper to send a special note to the effect that the committee would be greatly pleased to receive any exhibition flowers for the flower show. The flowers will not be open to competition. They will be handled in perfect order,

CATSKILL, N. Y.

Henry Hansen has returned from the trip he recently made to the Fatherland, after a sojourn of forty years in this busy and picturesque old town. He brought back with him a good supply of wooden shoes, to help make a lasting impression. He enjoyed the flavor of the Edam cheese so much that he brought a couple of big fellows along. His thoughts can be imagined when the case, on arriving home, was opened and found to contain shavings in place of the cheese, upon which duty had been paid! And for this imposition there is no redress.

Hamburg, the busy port where our genial fellow craftsman first saw the light of day, is growing as much lily of the valley as formerly. Mr. Hansen pedaled sixty miles one day on a bicycle through the old, familiar scenes of boyhood days. Now he has settled down again to business, and is busy building a storage house for the blocks of stock he purchased while abroad.

M.

MADISON, N. J.

The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society held an enthusiastic meeting October 12. The flower show committee announced that all plans were completed. This committee has worked hard and consistently since last spring, and the society owes it much. Something like a thousand tickets were distributed among members to sell, so nobody will be safe in the streets for the next week or so. There is nothing like united effort. The next thing is to get things there for people to see. We have 121 classes to fill, and $3,000 in cash to shower on them after they are filled, so we think that should bring our brothers from a distance. We want them; in fact, must have them, for we want to give Morristown people a show such as was never seen in New Jersey, and if our friends come up as they say they will, we can do it. The show will be held November 2 to 4, at the Morris County Golf Club, Convent Station, between Morristown and Madison. It is about 200 yards from the station. The chrysanthemum Society of America, in exhibiting here, has intensely interested the society people, and they will be on hand in goodly numbers. The seedsmen and nurserymen promise to put up trade exhibits on a large scale.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

The horse show was held here last week and was, perhaps, the last to be held here for some time, as the auto seems to be the one best bet for society just now. There is no doubt that in the course of time the horse will come back and put the auto on the shelf, but what's the use? Airships are coming right along, and society always picks the newest amusements.

Although not as good as last year, the local florists are well satisfied with the business for the show this year. The usual quantity of orchids, valley and gardenias was disposed of. Beauties and other roses had a fair call. Orders for table decorations were rather light and proved rather disappointing. On the whole, things have panned out pretty well, as funeral work had a good, steady call last week and stock was used up nicely.

Besides roses and carnations, some good mums are coming, both white and yellow. This has been a good season for dahlias and we are cutting them galore; never before have there been so many in the market, both in singles and doubles. Cosmos is also plentiful. The greenhouse men have been busy getting in palms and other stock from outdoors.

Various Notes.

There is a rumor afloat that a stock company will take over the Anchorage Rose Co. and that Chas. W. Reimers will be manager. This is not definite.

At the last meeting of the bowling club the Gaillardias put one over on the Rudbeckias by taking two out of three games. The boys haven't got their wings in shape as yet; woe be unto those wooden soldiers when they do!

A large light of plate glass was broken in Henry Fuchs' show window last week, in a peculiar way. A gentleman was in to see Mr. Fuchs, and in going out he walked into the show window and knocked a large iron plant vase through the glass. The door, when open, is flush with the back of the platform in the window, hence the man evidently thought the door was closed and stumbled over the platform into the vase. K. R.

In the exhibition of delivery wagons at the recent horse show, a handsome delivery outfit was displayed by M. D. Reimers, the South Fourth avenue florist, and received the blue ribbon. The award was applauded by the audience. On the opening night of the show, the president, A. J. Carroll, entertained the mem-

ONIONS FOR EARLY SPRING.

Please let me know when the best time is to plant onion sets to get them very early in the spring, in the climate of Kansas. What would be the best kind, and should they be covered?

L. V.

The earliest of green onions in the spring are the winter onions, which live outside without any protection all winter. They should be planted in August, so as to get started into growth before cold weather. It is too late now to put out a bed of them. Many people have a bed of this variety in their home gardens, from which they pull all they want to use in the spring and leave a portion to multiply from the roots and fill up the bed again. The better way is to plant a new bed every August and leave only enough unsold to grow the sets on for the August planting, or pull and sell them all and use the ground for another summer crop, buying new top sets to plant when the time comes in August.

A great many people think these winter onions of poor quality, but this is not the case, except late in the spring, when they get too large, strong and tough. Early in the spring, almost as soon as the frost is out of the ground, they are ready to sell, and no nicer green onions can be grown, but, as already stated, they get poor in quality a few weeks later, if not all sold. Then the green onions from common bottom sets—simply small onions, set out very early in the spring—begin to come into the market and are so much nicer than that there is an end to the winter onion pulling season. A good way for gardeners to manage is to grow both kinds, and thus have green onions of good quality all the time. Any kind of bottom sets or small onions make good green onions for early spring planting, but the white or yellow are preferred. The larger they are the sooner they make a salable onion, but the smaller they are the more you get in a bushel.

Last winter I had a lot of them that lived over in the ground outside, as there were some small ones that were not harvested last fall and there was plenty of snow all winter for protection, and I harvested a good lot of them unexpectedly. I have also grown this kind in coldframes, by planting them late in the fall and placing glass sashes over them, covering the sashes with manure and taking the manure off early in the spring.

I believe they would winter satisfactorily outside in your latitude, with only a straw or manure covering. You might try some this way, and some again as soon as the frost is sufficiently out of the ground in the spring to get them in. Small onions culled out of the crop are cheap in the fall, and since it is too late to put out winter onions, you

Alfalfa Growing in the Great San Joaquin Valley.

THE FINEST IRRIGATED LAND

TO BE FOUND IN ANY COUNTRY UNDER THE SUN

$85.00 per Acre

This astonishingly low price for land that yields such large returns is possible only for the reason that we own 4000 acres in the great San Joaquin Valley.

This land is suitable to grow Cotton, Corn, Alfalfa, Cantaloupes, Potatoes, Beets, Watermelons, Tomatoes, any kind of fruit, Oranges, Lemons, Walnuts, Almonds, Figs, Peaches, etc.

California offers an opportunity to-day that cannot be equaled in any other section of the country. The demands for California's products are increasing so rapidly that the crops are eagerly seized at highest prices. Thousands of recent settlers in California are making big money from their small farms with no more effort than they formerly put into less lucrative work that paid them only a bare living.

Price, $85.00 per acre, one-fourth cash, balance one, two and three years. Annual net returns, $100.00 to $1000.00 per acre, depending on individual effort and the crops raised.

You should get in touch at once with your opportunity, for you can do as well or better than thousands who had no previous experience, and who to-day are rapidly making fortunes at farming. Send a postal or letter for full particulars. Good California land is going rapidly. At least, investigate. Do it at once. Curiosity makes money.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, October 12. One new member was elected and one application received. The schedule for the fall show is out and judging by the prizes offered this year it will eclipse all others held so far by the society, especially with James Halloway as manager and George Ashworth assisting. Awards were as follows: Society's prize for best vase of peony-flowered dahlias, T. J. Trepas first, H. Gaut second. Cultural certificates to George Dorber, Center Island, for a fine vase of Maryland and Chatenay roses; to F. Petroccia for onions and cauliflower. Honorable mention to J. McDonald for vase of cosmos; to F. Petroccia for same; to J. Robertson for vase of Ivory roses and for three beautiful celosias; to H. Gaut for sweet potatoes and cosmos. A silver

We are Western Headquarters for the very finest of Hudson river

We introduced these to the Western buyers and always have handled a far larger quantity than any other house.

Violets

American Beauties

When a Retail Florist orders Beauties the chances are nothing else will take their place to disappoint him means that he must disappoint his customer. We realize the florists' position and make it a point to see that all Beauty orders receive special attention. Our supply is large at all times (especially good crop now on) and the quality always is right up to the top notch. What length do you need today, and how many?

Killarney

We are doing a very large shipping business on Killarney because of our big supply of high grade stock. Fine heads on all lengths of stem. You will find it will help your business if you use our Killarney.

White Killarney

This is now the leading white rose. It is in white what Killarney is in pink. We can supply in quantity, any grade you say, of the same high quality as our widely known and used Killarney. Ships anywhere.

My Maryland

If you haven't tried our Maryland you are missing a good thing. You can quickly build up a trade on it and we are in a position to keep you supplied.

No matter what roses your trade requires, we can furnish them as you want them—all varieties, all grades and all prices. You have only to let us know your wants.

Miscellaneous Flowers

Buyers who want the miscellaneous flowers, sometimes the most difficult to obtain, can order of us with the certainty that our facilities will provide every article that is to be had anywhere. Gardenias, Lilies, Daisies, Pansies, Cosmos, Dahlias, Gladioli, Bouvardia, and in their season, Sweet Peas, Antirrhinums, and all other flowers—if they're on the market we have the best selection.

Cattleyas and

The sale for orchids having become large in stock, it is important for up-to-date retailers

We handle the finest Cattleyas that we can furnish in quantity right through Any special variety, if in season, can be furnished. Glad to answer any inquiry.

In our Florists' Supply Department we carry every article used in the trade

Fancy Carnations

If we are stronger on one flower than on another, we are strongest on carnations, the flower you use in greatest quantity. Year after year we handle more carnations than does any other house in the West, quite possibly more than any other house in the U. S. Of course we have every variety and grade. We seek the orders of the man who wants only the finest as well as those of the buyers in thousand lots; also the orders for smaller quantities of standard grade. We do not recall a season when carnations were so good or so plentiful this early in the fall.

Chrysanthemums

You will find Randall's your best source of supply on Mums. We are now receiving and shipping all colors in quantity. For the next six weeks we shall have an enormous supply. We can furnish anything you call for—special fancy exhibition grade or small stock for your dollar boxes and special sales. All the popular varieties as they come in season.

Fancy Greens

All the fancy greens are to be had here in quantity, gathered from all America to be at your call. Croweanum, the giant adiantum; Farleyense, the finest of all greens; Mexican Ivy, the newest green; Asparagus and Smilax, for the decorators; Sprengeri and Plumosus, indispensable in stores; Galax, the first aid of the design maker; Fancy Ferns, the one article that is indispensable.

Southern Wild Smilax

When a retail florist needs wild smilax it is a real necessity—he can't make the decoration if his order isn't filled. We don't trust to our ability to get the stock after we receive your order. We get a daily shipment from the South, and there never is a doubt of our filling an order placed in advance—usually we can fill any ordinary order if given time to rush the cases to the depot. Quality of our wild smilax is first rate.

JOSEPH L. SCHILDER, manager of the seed department of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O., has been at the Congress hotel, Chicago, for three days this week.

WILLIS R. ROBERTS has been appointed advertising manager for William H. Maule, Philadelphia. Mr. Roberts was the manager of the Religious Press Association, of Philadelphia, for upwards of twenty years.

O. S. JONES & Co., Sioux Falls, S. D., have bought what is known as the Kiehl tract for use as a trial ground. It is reported the purchase price was $250 per acre, which is a record for farm lands near Sioux City.

WHEN the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League met at New York October 13 the consensus of opinion was that the seed supply for 1911 warrants higher prices than any seedsman cares to charge his regular customers.

SOMEWHAT contrary to the expectations of the Holland bulb merchants at the beginning of the season, hyacinths have moved off to a good clean-up, the demand having been considerably better than in recent years. Prices of many of the leading varieties have gone up sharply.

THE crop of commercial limas in southern California is turning out better than expected. The damage from such a storm as recently visited the Coast lima bean section always looks at first greater than it turns out to be, authorities say. The weather that followed the rain has been exceptionally favorable for that part of the crop which still was unharvested.

It is reported from Holland that a dealer in agricultural implements, named Dallinga, at Winschoten, has devised a special radish thrasher, a machine which performs the difficult task of separating the seeds and pods of freshly harvested radish. The machine is being used by some of the Dutch seed growers and is said to be giving excellent results, directly cleaning the pods and saving all seeds from the straw. The same report has it that the radish crop in Holland is harvested and will yield a medium crop.

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $54,506.

THE FESCUES.

While the festucas are essentially permanent pasture grasses, some of them are useful for lawns, and most of the lawn seed mixtures contain the fescues in greater or less proportion. The item, therefore, is one of importance to the seed trade. Prices have been advancing steadily, and the present season's crop is reported smaller than last year, so that there has been another advance in price. In this connection the reports made by the big German grass seed houses will be of interest.

Conrad Appel, of Darmstadt, says of Festuca elatior that the Rhenish seed is of excellent quality this season, owing to the wet weather, but that the crop is somewhat smaller than last year, and higher prices had to be paid for the rough seed. Of Festuca duriuscula and Festuca ovina the yield did not come up to expectations, on account of unfavorable weather; already last year the prices for the rough seed were high, but this year still higher prices have been asked from the dealers, and had to be paid; the few lots of bright and heavy quality were in demand and soon disposed of. Festuca ovina angustifolia was a better crop than last season, and could be obtained from the growers at lower prices. The weather has influenced the quality, and many lots are of dark color and light weight. Festuca heterophylla and Festuca rubra of true German origin were again a small crop, and prices equal those of last season. The yield of the New Zealand red fescue has been small, and the few lots are in firm hands.

A. Le Coq & Co., Darmstadt, say that at the beginning reports of small crops of Festuca duriuscula and Festuca ovina were discredited by those who hoped for a reduction of prices, which, however, has not come. There are no strong offerings of seed, and it looks as if the stocks were, indeed, not abundant. There seems to be no hope for a reduction of prices and, on the contrary, higher prices than last year are likely to rule. Most of the seed is of good color, but badly mixed with weeds, the separating of which causes high prices for fancy quality. The quantity of true Rhenish Festuca elatior harvested was larger than last year, but the quality is not so heavy; speculation has made it necessary to pay a higher price for the rough seed than last year, and, consequently, prices for cleaned seed will also be higher. Festuca ovina tenuifolia yielded a better crop than last year; the rain spoiled much seed, but there are some bright lots. The crop of Festuca pratensis is estimated to be only two-thirds that of last year, and as this was only a small one, we cannot be surprised to see exceedingly high prices; old stocks are entirely sold out and the new crop will soon be exhausted. The yield of Festuca rubra is much smaller than last year, but the quality of the bulk is satisfactory, and this year's imports show a surprisingly good germination. First-class rough seed commanded a high price. Festuca heterophylla yielded a good crop.

Gustav Schott, of Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, says of Festuca ovina and duriuscula fine qualities are scarce and prices will be somewhat higher than last year. Festuca tenuifolia is available in fine qualities at moderate price. Crops of Festuca heterophylla and rubra again look thin. Of Festuca pratensis the yield is everywhere smaller than last year, and it is doubtful whether it will be possible to cover the requirements. Prices therefore set in high. Those high prices also influenced the market for Festuca elatior, which, even though the crop turned out about an average, is dearer than last year.

CUP FOR MR. BRUGGERHOF.

The board of directors of the Wholesale Seedsman's League did a graceful act at their meeting October 13 in presenting to Frederick W. Bruggerhof, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday, a testimonial in the form of an exquisitely moulded and chased loving cup, bearing the following inscription:

One of the features of the interesting event was an immense birthday cake of four feet in diameter and of eighty candle-power. There were many felicitous speeches expressive of the highest admiration for Mr. Bruggerhof as a seed merchant and as a friend.

Born in Barmen, Prussia, of Holland ancestry, Mr. Bruggerhof entered the firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co. in 1849 and has therefore been identified with the seed trade for sixty-one years. He became a member of the Thorburn firm in 1855, becoming its president in 1894. B. Landreth, secretary of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, himself one of the venerable American seedsmen, says of Mr. Bruggerhof: "He is acknowledged to be the best all-around seedsman in the United States, the highest authority on the history of the seed trade in America, and his views as to variations and merit command the highest consid-

If you have a good name as a grower you can stand a lily failure once without losing much trade; but no matter how good your reputation or what excuse you offer, you can't stand it twice in succession.

Now about one-half of the Easter lily failures are due to inferior bulbs and the other half in the handling. You can greatly increase your blooming average by buying only the very best bulbs—good clean stock from vigorous fields—and giving them attention. No grower can be successful in the long run with cheap bulbs, for good bulbs are not generally cheap.

You can't buy a better grade than the Superior Assortment Horseshoe Brand Giganteum 7/9 and they are $22.50 per case of 300 or $9.00 per case of 100 bulbs. If you want we will reserve bulbs in Cold Storage for you and ship them any time during 1911, charging you only a very nominal fee for storage.

You may have a catalogue for the asking and it is worth your while to ask.
